- From the Airports to where else?
- Bus stations, Train stations, Ports, Ships, Malls,
- Schools, every Street corner, they (''they'') want
- to be doing touchy feely 'feel ups' Everywhere.
- cuhulin

Let's see an Airplane in the Sky with 100~300 Passengers on-board being Blown-Up a/o Falling Out of the Sky a/o Flown into a Building.

-or- A Bus with 45~60 Passengers on-board being Blown-Up a/o Driven into a Building*.

* Most likely a Terrorist would get a Car/Truck and make the process a lot simpler with a direct attack.

1 - Buses simply are NOT a High Value Target.
-wrt- Airplane $100M -v- Bus $100K
-and- Airplane 300 People -v- Bus 60 People

2 - Buses are a Soft Target -but- Why try to get On a Bus to Blow-It-Up ? Just put a Package on the XYZ Package Express is a lot easier.
-or- Do a Road-Side IED
-or- Do a On-the-Road Stop and Destroy

Bus Stations might be a Target of some 'value'
But again not as Valuable as an Airport.
-also- Bus Stations have fewer Passengers then an Airport -so- Less Terror News Impact.

Other then Airports and Airplanes the next level of Targets are not Busses -but- Trains and Train Stations. In Facility's Value and Number of Passengers.

A Train Fright Car filled with Fuel a/o Compressed Gas with an IED going through a City is a Real Threat.

For shear Numbers of People Sporting Events offer the most Bodies for a Terrorist Act and should have a High Threat Assessment.

Having said all the above : IMHO putting $1M Full Body Scanners in Bus Stations is NOT the Best 'Bang-Stopper' for the DHS's Tax Payers

The box loop I built does exceptionally well at rejecting local

Cuhulin,

IIRC The old Trainers saying was :
You Can Fix Dumb*
-and-
You Can Fix Stupid
-but-
You Can't Fix Dumb and Stupid in the Same Person at the Same Time.

* Fix 'Dumb' {Lack of Knowing} by Education
-by- Acquiring Knowledge
Fixing 'Dumb' is usually eaiser
Being 'Dumb' can get you into Trouble.

 Fix 'Stupid' {Lack of Thinking} by Correction
-by- Thoughtfully Applying Knowledge
Fixing 'Stupid' {Un-Thinking/Un-Caring} is often Tougher Being/Acting 'Stupid' can get you into Killed.

- - The expensive pixel loop is "shielded", don't forget.
- You are going to have to shield the turns and stop
- local electrical field noise pickup,
- hence, the length of copper tubing I mentioned ...
- aluminum could work ...

Some where I remember seeing a Loop Antenna make out of a Hula-Hoop with the Wires inside it.

Then the builder took Aluminum Foil Tape and Ran it around the OD and then pressed it down onto and around the surface of Hula-Hoop.
http://www.shop3m.com/70006068806.html
Claim that it worked better with the Grounded Foil Cover. I always though that the Foil Tape should have been Spiral Overlapped Wrapped around the Hoop.

FWIW - I find many insanely creative uses for Aluminum Foil Tape :

- The box loop I built does exceptionally well at rejecting local
- interference. That's the main reason I have not torn it apart or
- bought something better.

* "Ionizing radiation such as the X-rays used in these scanners have the potential to induce chromosome damage, and that can lead to cancer," Agard says.
* Government officials have miscalculated the dose that the X-ray scanners deliver to the skin
* Columbia University's Center for Radiological Research als has 'concerns'
* Melanoma, a dangerous skin cancer; breast cancer; immune-system problems; mutations in sperm cells; and effects on a developing fetus.
* About 5 percent of the population : one person in 20 — is especially sensitive to radiation.
* Two examples are the BRCA-1 and BRCA-2 mutations associated with breast and ovarian cancer, {?Are TSA Full Body Scanners ?Designed?

To Kill Women?}
* Children are also more vulnerable to radiation damage
* A radiation-induced mutation in their cells can lead to cancer decades later.
* The most likely risk from the airport scanners is a common type of skin cancer called basal cell carcinoma,

* "It appears that real independent safety data do not exist."
* "There has not been sufficient review of the intermediate and long-term effects of radiation exposure associated with airport scanners.
* There is good reason to believe that these scanners will increase the risk of cancer to children and other vulnerable populations." * Air travelers over 65 years old are especially susceptible to the "mutagenic effects of the X-rays,"
* As are HIV and cancer patients, children and adolescents, pregnant women, * Men (because the X-rays can penetrate skin and put the testicles "at risk for sperm mutagenesis").
* Eyes could also be at risk because X-rays can penetrate the cornea.

But dogs don't have Director Chertoff to support.

"Which brings us to the money shot. The body scanner is sure to get a go-ahead because of the illustrious personages hawking them. Chief among them is former DHS secretary Michael Chertoff, who now heads the Chertoff Group, which represents one of the leading manufacturers of whole-body-imaging machines, Rapiscan Systems. For days after the attack, Chertoff made the rounds on the media promoting the scanners, calling the bombing attempt "a very vivid lesson in the value of that machinery"ï¿½all without disclosing his relationship to Rapiscan."

Actually, you did. You said it was "getting troublesome" and that it "washes away parts of the atmosphere". If part of the atmosphere is getting "washed away", that's depletion.

Yeah. I don't think there is any other way to view this; Other than, this is an outright attack on the infrastructure of America and transferring such services and their profits into foreign hands.

In the end, it is just in line with the actions and activities of a shadow government, corporations and the elite and powerful move towards the NWO (New World Order.)

Hopefully, large numbers of Americans are waking up and ready to take action for real changes which will remove the criminally-treasonous public servants from their offices and replace them with public servants being willing and capable to represent the majority of Americans--the real government.

I think subject line should read:
You are all = pathetic or You're all = pathetic (basic English grammar)
Talk about the pot calling the kettle black, oh dear now what has got your superiority goat then? The IQ level, the banality of the subject matter, or just, not on topic.
We could go on, but threatening revenge is also discourteous, give them enough slack, better yet, lead by example, or is your own POV not up to it lately or do you just read posts from subject line?
Think of the Bell curve and your position on it.

PDNFTT.

Please Do Not Feed The Trolls.

To do so only shows everyone what an internet 'newbie' you are.

Look at the diversity of crossposts, for a start (that's your first big clue), then look at the subject matter, and the fact that it signs with someone elses name.

The ID:
<psyop@lawyer.com>

is a well known and documented stalker troll originating out of the USA.
Go ahead and do a Google on that ID and see for yourself.

And you are about the 20th internet 'newbie' to get sucked in by it.

Learn from this..... and if you must reply to trolls, at least snip their bullshit.

I learned about friction causing static on one of those at Apache Lake in 1962. We were cooking bacon, listening to KRUX Glendale, and the crackling on the radio was in perfect sync with the stainless steel spatula on an iron skillet. Luckily the guy frying the bacon was a scientist who pointed out the phenomenon.

Actually, I should have explained that "explanation." The link above, I was poking fun at. And, I gave a silly answer by a "government scientist" which, is quite obviously, in error and might be what confuses many, or seems to.

Birds DO urinate, it is true that both feces and urine are present in the product of their waste removal system -- but, they DO urinate ... or pee!

THIS:
"The urates are a by-product of the kidneys and are usually snow white when dry. They are chalky in texture and will vary in size from tiny (as in the budgie) to large and spread out (as in the macaw). It's normal to have some transient color changes during the day and some colored formulated foods can tinge them a creamy color.

The urine is the liquid portion and its normally clear. The volume of urine will change according to what the bird is eating. You will see more after consumption of fruits and vegetables and less after pellets."

FROM HERE:
http://www.wingwise.com/droppings.htm

However, google will provide you with much more, also.

I know in some newsgroups, you don't give flippant answers, too many miss the sarcasm they contain ...

NTIA'S INITIAL PLAN TO FREE-UP SPECTRUM FOR BROADBAND

These Web addresses show how NTIA envisions freeing up large amounts of prime spectrum for wireless broadband. NTIA manages the use of spectrum by Federal agencies whereas the FCC regulates non-Federal use. However, the two agencies are synchronizing their efforts to pry spectrum loose.

On June 28, 2010, President Obama issued an executive memorandum directing NTIA, working with the FCC, to develop a plan to make available 500 MHz of spectrum over the next ten years -- spectrum that would be suitable for fixed and mobile broadband use. Following are the first real details on how this may come about.

VULNERABLE TV SPECTRUM

FCC Chairman Genachowski would like the Federal government to pay individual TV broadcasters for relinquishing some or all of their RF spectrum. Fair enough. However, the following news article contains faint hints of the Draconian steps that may take place if the voluntary part does not work out so well.

Your station's EAS participation is voluntary, right?
Spectrum relinquishments may go down the same path. It's called mandatory voluntary. Works like a charm.

It's 'You are all pathetic." that shortens to 'You're all pathetic', with the apostrophe replacing the missing letter.

Since having my mailbox stolen, many times, I now have an inside mailbox at the local post office ... it is getting increasingly dangerous here in California. The weird part? A WHOLE BUNCH OF IDIOTS DON'T EVEN SEEM TO NOTICE!

They say the homeless and kids are doing it. But, I kept increasing the strength and durability of mailbox, as each kept getting stolen, they used a cordless diamond wheel or saw go get the last one ... you generally don't see a lot of homeless people and kids with those sorts of tools ...

Sorry, but that is what it is like here ... :-(

Actually, with one exception, they don't!

Birding - Do birds urinate ?
Expert: Roger Lederer - 5/31/2004

Question
In general, do birds urinate ?

Answer
No.Unlike mammals, which excrete waste fluid as urine and solid waste as feces, birds mix both liquid waste and solid waste into the white paste you see as bird droppings. The only exception is the ostrich, which has a urinary bladder. For more information on wild birds, see www.ornithology.com. Roger Lederer

To pee, as distinct from crapping, you really do need a bladder. Without the bladder, all the birds are doing is crapping as the liquid waste is mixed with the solid waste.

The $86.2 million paid for advertisements, polling and grass roots events to drum up opposition to the bill thatï¿½s projected to provide coverage to 32 million previously uninsured Americans, according to Tom Collamore, a Chamber of Commerce spokesman. The Chamber used the funds to ï¿½advance a market- based health-care system and advocate for fundamental reform that would improve access to quality care while lowering costs,ï¿½ it said in a statement.

Heaven forbid that a wealthy capitalist choose to fund the "other

The wealthy only have the right to spend their money how they see fit

I am probally a lot more Westernfied that Bret Maverick ever was.If I get on I-55 here in Jackson and keep heading South, I will be in N'Awlins.I don't have to cross the Mississippi River to go to N'Awlins and Louisiana.Some people think all of Louisiana is West of the Mississippi River.Technically, I suppose N'Awlins is East of the Mississippi River.N'Awlins is on the North side (Look at a map and see for yourself) of the Mississippi River.West of the Mississippi River is considered to be Midwest, and also West and Northwest and Southwest, depending on where you are.I Know Natchez and Jackson (the City of Jackson I live in) are East of the Mississippi River.Parts of Minnesota is East and also West of the Mississippi River.

I've heard this at other places on shortwave. At first I thought it was something natural like the sun or the ionosphere. But now I wonder if it's power lines. It sounds like a cycling industrial (machine like) sound. Does not alter much and has some phasing and echo / reverb.

Does anyone know what this is ? I have a recording somewhere that I'll try and dig out.

There is no distinct and separate "peeing" process. If a bird craps on

Was our great financial crisis caused by greedy and reckless bankers and Wall Street players? Or by a broad range of individuals, financial institutions and governments who became less risk-averse and prudent? Or by government housing policies that brought on the housing bubble and mismanaged the risks?

Without waiting for the evidence, many in the political class, and particularly those on the left, immediately bought into the argument that the financial crisis was caused by greed. This view of the cause provided much of the political energy behind the passage this year of the Dodd-Frank Act, also known as the financial reform act.

Peter J. Wallison, a former general counsel of the U.S. Treasury and now a fellow at the American Enterprise Institute (AEI), has debunked this argument, conclusively showing in a study that Barney Frank's government housing policies caused the crisis.

From the frequency and description, I would say it is CODAR (pulsed

Get Me ReWrite! By Barry Ritholtz - May 13th, 2010, 7:20AM My approach to everything I have written, studied and analyzed in this space is pretty straight forward: Start with the data and evidence and go forward from there. Figure out what the “Truth” is; try to get as close to the objective reality beneath the noise in order to make intelligent investing decisions for myself and my clients.
There are others who do not share this objective. Their goals are either political (winning the next election) or ideological (having their belief system become dominant). Truth is irrelevant to these people. Not surprisingly, these folks — many of whom contributed to the crisis in a might way — are desperately trying to duck responsibility for what happened. Those who helped cause the crisis are engaged in an ongoing effort to rewrite its history. Their goal? Exonerate their own bad behavior, throw off any responsibility to the collapse, blame anything but their own ideology and horrific decision making. They want to keep pushing their tired political agendas, despite the damage they may have caused. When writing Bailout Nation, I tried to steer clear of partisan finger pointing. I kept the focus on what actually occurred, what could be proven mathematically. I blamed Democrats and Republicans — not equally, but in proportion to their what they did. Unsupported theories, tenuous connection, loose affiliations were not part of the analysis. Every legislative change, each regulatory failure, all corporate actions, to be blameworthy, had to manifest themselves in actual mathematical proof. This led me to ascertain the following 30 year sequence: -Free market absolutism becomes the dominant intellectual thought. -Deregulation of markets, investment houses, and banks becomes a broad goal: This led to Glass Steagall repeal, Derivative exemptions, Investing house leverage exemptions, and a new breed of unregulated non bank lenders. -Legislative actions reduce or eliminate much of the regulatory oversight; SEC funding is weakened. -Rates come down to absurd levels. - Bond managers madly scramble for yield. -Derivatives, non-bank lending, leverage, bank size, compensation levels all run away from prior levels. - Wall Street securitizes whatever it can to satisfy the demand for higher yields. -"Lend to securitize" nonbank mortgage writers sell enormous amounts of subprime loans to Wall Street for this purpose. -To meet this demand, non bank lenders collapse lending standards, leading to a credit bubble. -The Fed approves of this innovation. -Housing booms, then busts -Credit freeze, market collapse recession. You will note that the CRA is not part of this sequence. I could find no evidence that they were a cause or even a minor factor. If they were, the housing bubbles would not have been in California or S. Florida or Ls Vegas or Arizona — Harlem and South Philly and parts of Chicago and Washington DC would have been the focus. Nor do I blame Fannie and Freddie. Now understand, there is no love lost between myself and the GSEs. For years, I have called them "Phoney and Fraudy." Since George Bush and Hank Paulson nationalized them, I have accused the government of using these two as a backdoor bailout for banks — a hidden PPIP/TARP used to buy all the garbage mortgages that banks are desperate to get off their balance sheets. Longtime readers will recall we very publicly shorted Fannie based upon their fraudulent practices and horrific balance sheet. But even I cannot reconcile the movement to place all of the world's troubles at the feet of the GSEs. Not, at least, according to the data. That lack of evidence, however, doesn't stop ideologues from making the attempt. Consider this attempt at rewriting the causes of the credit crisis by Kevin Hassett: "The worst financial crisis in generations was set off by a massive government effort, led by the two mortgage giants, to make loans to homebuyers no matter whether they could make the payments. Lenders were willing to lend money to just about all comers, no matter how low their income. Why? Because the lenders knew Fannie and Freddie would purchase the loans from them for a high price before bundling them into securities to sell to investors." Now, this makes for a fascinating narrative that plays into a number of different ideological beliefs. It exonerates the radical free market deregulators, it ignores what the private sector did, and it somehow ignores the fact that Congress was controlled by a very conservative GOP from 1994 to 2006 — the prime period of time covered leading up to and including the beginning of the crisis. But worse than all of that, the data supporting Hassett's position simply isn't there. Over the past 2 years, I have repeatedly asked the people who push this narrative to provide some evidence for their positions. I have offered a $100,000 if they could prove their case. Specifically, I have requested some data or evidence that DISPROVED the following facts: -The origination of subprime loans came primarily from non bank lenders not covered by the CRA; -The majority of the underwriting, at leats fro the first few years of the boom, were by these same non-bank lenders -When the big banks began chasing subprime, it was due to the profit motive, not any mandate from the President (a Republican) or the the Congress (Republican controlled) or the GSEs they oversaw. -Prior to 2005, nearly all of these sub-prime loans were bought by Wall Street — NOT Fannie & Freddie -In fact, prior to 2005, the GSEs were not permitted to purchase non-conforming mortgages. -After 2005, Fannie & Freddie changed their own rules to start buying these non-conforming mortgages — in order to maintain market share and compete with Wall Street for profits. -The change in FNM/FRE conforming mortgage purchases in 2005 was not due to any legislation or marching orders from the President (a Republican) or the the Congress (Republican controlled). It was the profit motive that led them to this action. These are data supported facts I pounded on in BN. Of course, folks like Hassett hate this factual history, as it conflicts with their goals and politics. Rather than produce evidence, they create story lines unsupported by facts. But Monkeys love a good narrative, and so they give that to them. However, as an investor, I demand evidence, data and facts. The blame Fannie & Freddie crowd have managed to remain blissfully data free. They have steadfastly ignored all calls for proof. Its way past the time to call out their intellectual dishonesty. If you cannot show any data, if you cannot prove what you are alleging with actual facts, you need to be called out for what it is you actually are: Proponents of a failed philosophy. http://www.ritholtz.com/blog/2010/05/rewriting-the-causes-of-the-cred...

Homeowners' Rebellion: Recent Rulings Could Shield 62 Million Homes From Foreclosure
Thursday 19 August 2010
by: Ellen Brown, t r u t h o u t | News Analysis

Over 62 million mortgages are now held in the name of MERS, an electronic recording system devised by and for the convenience of the mortgage industry. A California bankruptcy court, following landmark cases in other jurisdictions, recently held that this electronic shortcut breaks the chain of title, voiding foreclosure. The logical result could be 62 million homes that are foreclosure proof.

In a Newsweek article a year ago called "Too Big to Jail: Why Prosecutors Won't Hit Wall Street Hard in the Subprime Scandal," Michael Hirsch wrote that we were unlikely to see trials and convictions like those in the savings and loan scandals of the 1980s, because fraud and blame have been so widespread that there is no one to single out and jail. Said Hirsch:

"The sad irony is that in pleading collective guilt, most of Wall Street will escape whipping for a scheme that makes Bernie Madoff's shenanigans look like pickpocketing. At the crest of the real-estate bubble, fraud was systemic and Wall Street had essentially gone into the loan-sharking business."

"Unfortunately," he added, "prosecution of fraud is the only way you're going to get reform on Wall Street."

Sure enough, a year later we got a banking reform bill that was so watered down that Wall Street got nearly everything it wanted. The too-big-to-fails, rather than being whittled down to size, have grown even bigger, circumventing antitrust laws; and they are being allowed to carry on pretty much as before. The Federal Reserve, rather than being called on the carpet, has been given even more power; and the Consumer Protection Agency - the main part of the bill with teeth - has been put under the Fed's watchful eye. Congress and the Justice Department seem to have bowed out, leaving no one to hold the finance industry to account.

But the best laid plans even of Wall Street can sometimes go awry. In an ironic twist, the industry may wind up tripping over its own Achilles heel, the Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems or MERS. An online computer software program for tracking mortgage ownership and rights, MERS is, according to its web site, "an innovative process that simplifies the way mortgage ownership and servicing rights are originated, sold and tracked. Created by the real estate finance industry, MERS eliminates the need to prepare and record assignments when trading residential and commercial mortgage loans." Or as Karl Denninger puts it, "MERS own website claims that it exists for the purpose of circumventing assignments and documenting ownership!"

MERS was developed in the early 1990s by a number of financial entities, including Bank of America, Countrywide, Fannie Mae, and Freddie Mac, allegedly to allow consumers to pay less for mortgage loans. That did not actually happen, but what MERS did allow was the securitization and shuffling around of mortgages behind a veil of anonymity. The result was not only to cheat local governments out of their recording fees, but to defeat the purpose of the recording laws, which was to guarantee purchasers clean title. Worse, MERS facilitated an explosion of predatory lending in which lenders could not be held to account because they could not be identified, either by the preyed-upon borrowers or by the investors seduced into buying bundles of worthless mortgages. As alleged in a Nevada class action called Lopez v. Executive Trustee Services, et al.:

"Before MERS, it would not have been possible for mortgages with no market value ... to be sold at a profit or collateralized and sold as mortgage-backed securities. Before MERS, it would not have been possible for the Defendant banks and AIG to conceal from government regulators the extent of risk of financial losses those entities faced from the predatory origination of residential loans and the fraudulent re-sale and securitization of those otherwise non-marketable loans. Before MERS, the actual beneficiary of every Deed of Trust on every parcel in the United States and the State of Nevada could be readily ascertained by merely reviewing the public records at the local recorder's office where documents reflecting any ownership interest in real property are kept.…

"After MERS, ... the servicing rights were transferred after the origination of the loan to an entity so large that communication with the servicer became difficult if not impossible... . The servicer was interested in only one thing - making a profit from the foreclosure of the borrower's residence - so that the entire predatory cycle of fraudulent origination, resale and securitization of yet another predatory loan could occur again. This is the legacy of MERS and the entire scheme was predicated upon the fraudulent designation of MERS as the 'beneficiary' under millions of deeds of trust in Nevada and other states."

MERS now holds over 62 million mortgages in its name, including over half of all new US residential mortgage loans. But courts are increasingly ruling that MERS is merely a nominee, without standing to foreclose on the collateral that makes up a major portion of the portfolios of some very large banks. It seems the banks claiming to be the real parties in interest may have short circuited themselves out of the chain of title entitling them to the collateral.

Technicality or Fatal Flaw?

To foreclose on real property, the plaintiff must be able to produce a promissory note or assignment establishing title. Early cases focused on MERS' inability to produce such a note, but most courts continued to consider the note a mere technicality and ignored it. Landmark newer opinions, however, stress that this defect is not just a procedural. but a substantive failure, one that is fatal to the plaintiff's case.

The latest of these decisions came down in California on May 20, 2010, in a bankruptcy case called In re Walker, Case no. 10-21656-E-11. The court held that MERS could not foreclose because it was a mere nominee and that as a result plaintiff Citibank could not collect on its claim. The judge opined:

"Since no evidence of MERS' ownership of the underlying note has been offered and other courts have concluded that MERS does not own the underlying notes, this court is convinced that MERS had no interest it could transfer to Citibank. Since MERS did not own the underlying note, it could not transfer the beneficial interest of the Deed of Trust to another. Any attempt to transfer the beneficial interest of a trust deed without ownership of the underlying note is void under California law."

In support, the judge cited In re Vargas (California Bankruptcy Court), Landmark v. Kesler (Kansas Supreme Court), LaSalle Bank v. Lamy (a New York case) and In re Foreclosure Cases (the "Boyko" decision from Ohio Federal Court). (For more on these earlier cases, see here, here and here.) The court concluded:

"Since the claimant, Citibank, has not established that it is the owner of the promissory note secured by the trust deed, Citibank is unable to assert a claim for payment in this case."

The broad impact the case could have on California foreclosures is suggested by attorney Jeff Barnes, who writes:

"This opinion ... serves as a legal basis to challenge any foreclosure in California based on a MERS assignment; to seek to void any MERS assignment of the Deed of Trust or the note to a third party for purposes of foreclosure; and should be sufficient for a borrower to not only obtain a TRO [temporary restraining order] against a Trustee's Sale, but also a Preliminary Injunction barring any sale pending any litigation filed by the borrower challenging a foreclosure based on a MERS assignment."

While not binding on courts in other jurisdictions, the ruling could serve as persuasive precedent there as well, because the court cited nonbankruptcy cases related to the lack of authority of MERS, and because the opinion is consistent with prior rulings in Idaho and Nevada Bankruptcy courts on the same issue.

RICO and Fraud Charges

Other suits go beyond merely challenging title to alleging criminal activity. On July 26, 2010, a class action was filed in Florida seeking relief against MERS and an associated legal firm for racketeering and mail fraud. It alleges that the defendants used "the artifice of MERS to sabotage the judicial process to the detriment of borrowers"; that "to perpetuate the scheme, MERS was and is used in a way so that the average consumer, or even legal professional, can never determine who or what was or is ultimately receiving the benefits of any mortgage payments"; that the scheme depended on "the MERS artifice and the ability to generate any necessary 'assignment' which flowed from it"; and that "by engaging in a pattern of racketeering activity, specifically 'mail or wire fraud,' the Defendants ... participated in a criminal enterprise affecting interstate commerce."

Local governments deprived of filing fees may also be getting into the act, at least through representatives suing on their behalf. Qui tam actions allow for a private party or "whistle blower" to bring suit on behalf of the government for a past or present fraud on it. In State of California ex rel. Barrett R. Bates, filed May 10, 2010, the plaintiff qui tam sued on behalf of a long list of local governments in California against MERS and a number of lenders, including Bank of America, JPMorgan Chase and Wells Fargo, for "wrongfully bypass[ing] the counties' recording requirements; divest[ing] the borrowers of the right to know who owned the promissory note ...; and record[ing] false documents to initiate and pursue non-judicial foreclosures and to otherwise decrease or avoid payment of fees to the Counties and the Cities where the real estate is located." The complaint notes that "MERS claims to have 'saved' at least $2.4 billion dollars in recording costs," meaning it has helped avoid billions of dollars in fees otherwise accruing to local governments. The plaintiff sues for treble damages for all recording fees not paid during the past ten years and for civil penalties of between $5,000 and $10,000 for each unpaid or underpaid recording fee and each false document recorded during that period, potentially a hefty sum. Similar suits have been filed by the same plaintiff qui tam in Nevada and Tennessee.

Axing the Bankers' Money Tree

Most courts continue to look the other way on MERS' lack of standing to sue, but the argument has picked up enough steam to consider the rather stunning implications. If MERS is not the title holder of properties held in its name, the chain of title has been broken and no one may have standing to sue. In MERS v. Nebraska Department of Banking and Finance, MERS insisted that it had no actionable interest in title, and the court agreed.

An August 2010 article in Mother Jones titled "Fannie and Freddie's Foreclosure Barons" exposes a widespread practice of "foreclosure mills" in backdating assignments after foreclosures have been filed. Not only is this perjury, a prosecutable offense, but if MERS was never the title holder, there is nothing to assign. The defaulting homeowners could wind up with free and clear title.

In Florida, Jacksonville Area Legal Aid attorney April Charney has been using the missing-note argument ever since she first identified that weakness in the lenders' case in 2004. Five years later, she says, some of those homeowners are still in their homes. According to a Huffington Post article titled "'Produce the Note' Movement Helps Stall Foreclosures":

"Because of the missing ownership documentation, Charney is now starting to file quiet title actions, hoping to get her homeowner clients full title to their homes (a quiet title action 'quiets' all other claims). Charney says she's helped thousands of homeowners delay or prevent foreclosure and trained thousands of lawyers across the country on how to protect homeowners and battle in court."

If courts overwhelmed with foreclosures decide to take up the cause, the result could be millions of struggling homeowners with the banks off their backs and millions of homes no longer on the books of some too-big-to-fail banks. Without those assets, the banks could again be looking at bankruptcy, as was pointed out in a San Francisco Chronicle article by attorney Sean Olender following the October 2007 Boyko decision:

"The ticking time bomb in the US banking system is not resetting subprime mortgage rates. The real problem is the contractual ability of investors in mortgage bonds to require banks to buy back the loans at face value if there was fraud in the origination process.

"... The loans at issue dwarf the capital available at the largest US banks combined and investor lawsuits would raise stunning liability sufficient to cause even the largest US banks to fail...."
Nationalization of these giant banks might be the next logical step - a step that some commentators said should have been taken in the first place. When the banking system of Sweden collapsed following a housing bubble in the 1990s, nationalization of the banks worked out very well for that country.
The Swedish banks were largely privatized again when they got back on their feet, but it might be a good idea to keep some banks as publicly-owned entities, on the model of the Commonwealth Bank of Australia. For most of the 20th century, it served as a "people's bank," making low interest loans to consumers and businesses through branches all over the country.
With the strengthened position of Wall Street following the 2008 bailout and the tepid 2010 banking reform bill, the US is far from nationalizing its mega-banks now. But a committed homeowner movement to tear off the predatory mask called MERS could yet turn the tide. While courts are not likely to let 62 million homeowners off scot-free, the defect in title created by MERS could give them significant new leverage at the bargaining table.

A personal note -- I was visiting San Francisco back in 2004 (business trip) when I contacted an old friend from college, a career DEA Agent who was stationed in SF. He'd been there over 25 years. I went to dinner at his house (which was nice but very small) and he drove me around SF showing me million-dollar properties. The median price for a house in SF at the time was about $800,000 and rising. He couldn't understand how anyone could afford a house, since the median income was about $85,000. I remember him remarking "Somebody must be making money, but I can't figure out how." Now we know. Bankers and bond brokers -- virtually the whole financial industry -- worked assiduously to create the bubble, then when it started to burst, sold short. This was a middle-class catastrophe. Before the bubble burst, SF lost a large percentage of its Black population. In fact, there were Black ministers complaining that the housing boom was turning SF into a town of Whites and Asians, with a very diminished Black population. Blacks, you see, weren't stupid. When some fool offered them $3/4 Million for their house, they sold, moved the Alabama, Georgia, or the Carolinas, paid cash for a much better, newer house, and if they still had to work, what the hell, any job would do. This was a white, middle and upper middle class crisis. Poor Blacks didn't start it or make it, although quite a few unlucky ones were victimized by it.

Because he didn't cause it. I'm sure he did on The Glenn Beck Program and Fox & Friends, but those places aren't the real world. Those places are artificial constructs, self-contained, hermetically sealed media romper rooms where right wingers can say whatever they want, where they can twist and pervert reality into whatever suits them without having to worry about seeing their idiotic assertions and simplistic worldviews assaulted by "liberal" facts, or maybe even shot down.

????? Caucasians (Indo-Europeans) have moved out from there ,supposedly, 3,000+ years ago. And modern European culture IS very differnt from the one in US. Btw,Asians seem to be unusually well to adapt (in general) in nearly any environment- and it is obvious over here: according to the statistics it is the most sucessful wave of immigrants in recent times . Seriously...

well said, thanks. in my area its almost 100% lily white. it was a lower/middle class area. by the early 2000's, huge homes were being erected, many had to have cranes to erect the huge support beams in them. they soar higher than the tree's, all occupied by whites. its a suburb. today many of those homes sit empty, or are up for sale. with no chance at all for a sale.
before the neo-liberals got a hold of america, the average home in my area was a 3 bedroom rambler. today its a castle at least 3 stories tall, sitting mostly empty. i have yet had one of these conservative/libertarian/fascist sociopaths that try to blame poor blacks for hoodwinking sophisticated wall street bankers, reap the reward. in fact this one who started this tread, i have had to challenge him before. i just cannot understand why they hate the easy money:)

The Koch Brothers have attracted attention to themselves. Why are you not complaining about their billions?

http://www.newyorker.com/reporting/2010/08/30/100830fa_fact_mayer

I'm sure if you try, you can come up with some sort of excuse for why what the Koch Brothers did is beyond criticism yet at the same time why Soros is just plain evil. You managed to do that quite well for Juan Williams and Keith Olbermann. (Of course, you then immediately forgot the distinction and started equating the two as soon as Olbermann was reinstated and equating the two served your propagandizing better, but I digress.)

The result will be amusing, if nothing else.

I am hearing Trenton Military and Halifax Military on 11232 KHz USB.
Lots of USB aeronautical voice traffic and ocasional bursts of data.

The data bursts are NOT sel-calls.
They just are broadcast, but no voice traffic immediately aftewards, like happens with sel-calls.

<Trenton evidently has a rotatable antenna>
I hear the operator telling aircraft to wait while he "repositions " the antenna.

I also hears references to 9007 KHz, but I don't hear any traffic there.

Liberty Net: November 13, 2010

http://3950.net/2010/11/liberty-net-november-13-2010/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

THE IONOSPHERE is still acting strangely as we transition into Winter conditions, but the sharing of brilliant insights and suppressed news continued at a high pace on this weekï¿½s Liberty Net. The DRM digital audio transmissions from Britain on 3955 ï¿½ which effectively wipe out 3949 to 3964 kHz for hours ï¿½ continue, so the net used a frequency a bit outside of its normal range this time: 3966 kHz.

Hereï¿½s a sample of the ideas brought forth this time on amateur radioï¿½s longest-running discussion net:

ï¿½ As countries (like the US and China) race to devalue their own currencies to gain a temporary trade advantage, bankers rake in profits from the easy money (that they create) and, as always, individuals and families find their wealth evaporating. (29 minutes)

ï¿½ The insanely punitive estate tax that Washington is about to impose is causing many productive and intelligent people to simply leave the country ï¿½ and who can blame them? No one wants his lifeï¿½s work to feed the illegal regime in Washington and all its genocidal programs. (36 minutes)

ï¿½ With the Internet becoming the information medium of choice for intelligent young people, the alien-owned television networks are dying a well-deserved viewership and financial death. (2 hours 6 minutes)

ï¿½ Have we become a nation of _castrati_? In our fathersï¿½ and grandfathersï¿½ days, any TSA bureaucrat type who put his hands on a manï¿½s wife or daughter would have been unconscious within seconds. (2 hours 9 minutes)

ï¿½ Itï¿½s our constitutional duty to ignore unconstitutional laws and edicts from the regime in Washington ï¿½ and almost _all_ of their ï¿½lawsï¿½ are illegal. No need to tell anyone ï¿½ no need to conspire with anyone ï¿½ no need to do anything, except to _do nothing_ to comply or cooperate or obey or do in any way what the illegal regime wants you to do. (2 hours 13 minutes)

ï¿½ Asians are not ï¿½politically correctï¿½ in their view of race ï¿½ they are not guilt-ridden when it comes to Blacks or anyone else, and they are realists when it comes to the differences in intelligence, ability, and character among the races. Their race realism ï¿½ and justified contempt ï¿½ was increasingly in evidence at the recent Asian summit. (2 hours 49 minutes)

ï¿½ Behind Washingtonï¿½s swaggering murderous militarism lies rot and weakness ï¿½ the ï¿½world conqueringï¿½ USA is a lot like Freddy Kruger in a tutu. As Americaï¿½s economic power is gradually expiring, soon also its military ability to fight for Israel ï¿½ and against truly nationalist nations ï¿½ will expire also. (2 hours 53 minutes)

ï¿½ When a George Bush or Barack Obama talks about ï¿½the civilized community of nationsï¿½ or the like, what theyï¿½re really talking about is the dictatorial New World Order ï¿½ and when they talk about ï¿½rogue statesï¿½ or ï¿½eviliï¿½ nations, theyï¿½re really talking about nations that want to be independent. (2 hours 55 minutes)

Remember that you can receive the Liberty Net on the nearest clear frequency to 3950 kHz (as long as the DRM interference is active, look up around 3966) every Saturday night at 10PM Eastern Time. Or you can listen live on the Internet via N2SAG or N2IRJ, or listen at your leisure via the mp3 files posted here at http://3950.net every week; usually theyï¿½re posted on Sunday. The links to the audio files are visible in the upper right column of the site.

Once again, thanks to W1WCR for running this important and historic discussion net, and thanks also to N2IRJ for making these recordings available.

I worked a South African station a couple of hours ago on 17m and then, not long after, a station in Egypt on 20m. Both stations had strong, robust signals here in the NY area. Turn your radios on!

George Soros doesn't pal around with Supreme Court justices. That part went right past you, didn't it? Supreme Court justices aren't supposed to do overtly political stuff. It's in the federal judiciary code of conduct. As it's up to the House of Representatives to remedy the situation, I expect no swift resolution. Time...marches on.

N-S paths seem to be especially good. 8J1RL was booming in from Antarctica last night around sunset on 20m.

I also worked a 20 watt home brew station in Cuba as he slowly drifted down the band (40m).

I've worked Argentina (from California) the past 2 days on 15m, with <30 Watts, in the middle of the afternoon.

Outsourcing to Vietnam?

Foxconn denied the reports earlier this year of worker abuse, violence and poor pay had any role in staff suicides. Although the numbers of deaths did seem high given the company employs almost a million people - and 500,000 in Shenzen - many observers suggested the numbers were within statistical norms.

The company, which makes electronics for Apple, HP and Dell among others, raised wages in response. The rises should have come into effect at the start of this month.

Chinese labour relations are in flux, with recent government moves to recognise unions and try and keep a cap on wage inflation. Some Chinese firms are even beginning to offshore manufacturing to the likes of Vietnam and Bangladesh in order to cut or control costs. ï¿½

Country Comparison :: Life expectancy at birth
This entry contains the average number of years to be lived by a group of people born in the same year, if mortality at each age remains constant in the future. The entry includes total population as well as the male and female components. Life expectancy at birth is also a measure of overall quality of life in a country and summarizes the mortality at all ages. It can also be thought of as indicating the potential return on investment in human capital and is necessary for the calculation of various actuarial measures.

The ultimate irony will be the Chinese outsourcing to Mississippi or Georgia.

The stupidity of the US and Canadian governments in persisting to give the Chinese billions in Foreign Aid money boggles the mind.

Sounds like corruption at the highest levels. The North American taxpayer gives them cash in order to allow our Corporations to access almost free labour and no pollution controls.

What foreign aid is that? As far as I can tell, there hasn't been any for a long time.

That's truly rich, considering your posting history. But, I suppose you can come up with a good reason why it's OK for you to call names and not for anyone else. It's the right-wing motto for just about everything: "it's OK for me to do it to other people but it's evil and unjust when others do it to me."

UK Parliament concluded it had no bearing on the factual nature of those scientists' conclusions:

Most of the time it may have just a small crack in the solder,on the

I have to admit that I'm not sure what Ginsburg is getting at here, but if you scroll down 6 more lines in that interview <http://www.nytimes.com/2009/07/12/magazine/12ginsburg-t.html?pagewanted=
4&_r=1>
JUSTICE GINSBURG: The basic thing is that the government has no business making that choice (reproductive rights) for a woman.

I think that makes her position as clear as it can be. Not that we don't have fascists from both parties already in office.

That said, we must still have room for population engineering because 2050 will usher in the 9 billionth inhabitant to this planet, and in 2067 there may be 12 billion of us. Global warming will reduce tillable land, and reduce the hours that a farmer can work. Over population should be controllable with tax schedules going from bonuses to childless families to draconian tax rates on large families.
Now if we can only find a leader, who will lead.

Under normal circumstances the general population grows. The Native Americans didn't have the best times ever since Columbus landed here (presumably on Salvador island) 508 years ago...Now on the other side of the world, India must be the perfect place to breed- ALL countries in that region have extremely HIGH birth rate. While Old Europe,trying to maintain its status, sadly has the lowest ever recorded.

Obama0 announced this week he will bestow the Presidential Medal of Freedom – the nation’s highest civilian honor – to John Sweeney, president emeritus of the country’s biggest union, AFL-CIO.

http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=2009
http://www.keywiki.org/index.php/John_J._Sweeney

Sweeney is a socialist activist and is a card carrying member of the Democratic Socialists of America, or DSA, the principal American affiliate of the Socialist International. The DSA has evidenced a close relationship with Obama over the years.

He previously served for four terms as president of the controversial Service Employees International Union, or SEIU.

http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6535
http://www.keywiki.org/index.php/SEIU

During his reign, Sweeney famously aligned the SEIU with ACORN and other leftist groups.

Activist and author Joel Kotkin, a fellow at the Progressive Policy Institute, observed how Sweeney brought communists into his union leadership:

"Just as the Left was drawn to the communist killing machines of Lenin, Stalin, Mao, Pol Pot, and Castro, so too it is now attracted to radical Islam."

"The contempt that German Hitlerytes had for "Bolshevism" or "marxist Jews" generally should also not mislead us in assessing the similarity between National Socialism and Communism. Leftist sects are very prone to rivalry, dissension, schism and hatred of one-another. One has only to think of the Bolsheviks versus the Mensheviks, Stalin versus Trotsky, China versus the Soviet Union etc. Similarity does not preclude rivalry. Hitler and Stalin were literally brothers in arms BEFORE they became rivals. That socialist brothers sometimes fall out should not prevent us from noting the brotherhood concerned."

"The fundamental dogma of all brands of socialism and communism is that the market economy or capitalism is a system that hurts the vital interests of the immense majority of people for the sole benefit of a small minority of rugged individualists. It condemns the masses to progressing impoverishment. It brings about misery, slavery, oppression, degradation and exploitation of the working men, while it enriches a class of idle and useless parasites."

"This doctrine was not the work of Karl Marx. It had been developed long before Marx entered the scene. Its most successful propagators were not the Marxian authors, but such men as Carlyle and Ruskin, the British Fabians, the German professors and the American Institutionalists. And it is a very significant fact that the correctness of this dogma was contested only by a few economists who were very soon silenced and barred from access to the universities, the press, the leadership of political parties and, first of all, public office. Public opinion by and large accepted the condemnation of capitalism without any reservation."

Dr. Ludwig von Mises - http://mises.org/midroad.asp

"The term 'planning' is mostly used as a synonym for socialism, communism, and authoritarian and totalitarian economic management. Sometimes only the German pattern of socialism-Zwangswirtschaft-is called planning, while the term socialism proper is reserved for the Russian pattern of outright socialization and bureaucratic operation of all plants, shops, and farms. At any rate, planning in this sense means all-around planning by the government and enforcement of these plans by the police power. Planning in this sense means full government control of business. It is the antithesis of free enterprise, private initiative, private ownership of the means of production, market economy, and the price system. Planning and capitalism are utterly incompatible. Within a system of planning production is conducted according to the government's orders, not according to the plans of capitalists and entrepreneurs eager to profit by best filling the wants of the consumers.

"But the term planning is also used in a second sense. Lord Keynes, Sir William Beveridge, Professor Hansen, and many other eminent men assert that they do not want to substitute totalitarian slavery for freedom. They declare that they are planing for a free society. They recommend a third system, which, as they say, is as far from socialism as it is from capitalism, which, as a third solution of the problem of society's economic organization, stands midway between the two other systems, and while retaining the advantages of both, avoids the disadvantages inherent in each.

"These self-styled progressives are certainly mistaken when they pretend that their proposals are new and unheard of. The idea of this third solution is very old indeed, and the French have long since baptized it with a pertinent name; they call it interventionism. Hardly anybody can doubt that history will link the idea of social security, more closely than with the American New Deal and with Sir William Beveridge, with the memory of Bismarck whom our fathers did not precisely describe as a liberal. All the essential ideas of present-day interventionist progressivism were neatly expounded by the supreme brain-trusters of imperial Germany, Professors Schmoller and Wagner, who at the same time urged their Kaiser to invade and to conquer the Americas. Far be it from me to condemn any idea only on account of its not being new. But as the progressives slander all their opponents as old-fashioned, orthodox, and reactionary, it is expedient to observe that it would be more appropriate to speak of the clash of two orthodoxies; the Bismarck orthodoxy versus the Jefferson orthodoxy.

The origins of the modern left can be traced back to the famous passage in Rousseau’s Discourse on the Origin and Foundations of Inequality, in which he condemned the institution of private property:

“The first man, who after enclosing a piece of ground, took it into his head to say, ‘this is mine,’ and found people simple enough to believe him, was the real founder of civil society.”

Around the 1830s, a faction of French liberals gravitated toward Romanticism and the philosophy of the late Rousseau, proclaiming that capitalism, private property, and the increasing complexity of modern society were agents of moral decay -- both for the individual and for society at large. This is essentially the worldview that has made its way, through history, into the collective mind of the modern left; it is a worldview calling for a revolution that not only will topple the existing capitalist order and punish its corrupt leaders, but that also will replace that order with a socialist regime where the utopian ideals of perfect justice and equality will reign. Such an ambition can be put into effect only by a totalitarian state with the authority to micromanage every facet of human life, precisely the end-point toward which the policies and crusades of the modern left are directed.

When the term “liberalism” (from the Latin word liberalis, meaning “pertaining to a free man”) first emerged in the early 1800s, its hallmarks were a belief in individual rights, the rule of law, limited government, private property, and laissez faire economics. These would remain the defining characteristics of liberalism throughout the liberal epoch (generally identified as the period of 1815-1914). Yet the modern left, which portrays itself as the agent of enlightened commitment to “liberal” causes, in fact stands for the antithesis of each of the foregoing liberal ideals. Contrary to its self-definition, the left is neither “liberal” nor “progressive,” but rather a reactionary force that seeks to resurrect the traditions that characterized the epoch which preceded the rise of classical liberalism.

The following is from The World Book Encyclopedia, 1947 edition:
The chief characteristics of Fascism are as follows:

THE CULTIVATION OF IGNORANCE

Fascism, like all forms of government, rests firmly on the sincere consent of a large part of the population... To maintain this consent, the Fascist leadership must cut off the people from any information which might cause them to doubt the complete correctness of the fixed Fascist principles... All forms of communication are carefully censored, so that the public will receive only those facts that the dictators want known... Travel to other countries must be controlled, and freedom of speech and assembly must be rigorously suppressed...

http://bigjournalism.com/dloesch/2010/10/13/exclusive-cbs2-reporter-threatens-journalist-over-rahm-questioning/

SUPPRESSION OF LABOR AND INDUSTRY

Fascism in Italy and Germany at first won the support of the wealthy classes, both landed and industrial... These people saw in Fascism a protection against the demands of farmers and other workers... Both regimes at first upheld the rights of private property... They subjected the working classes to a rigorous discipline... As soon as they were firmly established, the dictators began to limit profit, impose capital levies, and regulate business in great detail...

Employment Rates under Liberal Fascism
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9ssIhiD8kKM

THE POLICE STATE

Fascism depends upon the police to crush all opposition or dissent. Secret police spy on the whole population, and any casual remark against the regime leads to swift and severe punishment... Opposition parties are dissolved. Intellectual, athletic and recreational organizations are usually brought under the control of the Fascist authority... The ruthlessness of the police gradually becomes less noticeable... This is because within a year or so after a Fascist government takes power, vigorous opponents of the regime have either left the country, been killed or jailed...

.....sound..familiar?.....

EXTREME NATIONALISM

Fascism is highly nationalistic... It tries to identify its principles with the country, so that disagreement will look like treason... Some other country, or some group within the country, is chosen to serve as the "enemy" and made to appear as the cause of all evils or misfortunes... For example, the Nazis in Germany represented their movement first as a crusade against the Jews, then as a fight against Communism and later as a struggle against the "attacks" from whatever neighboring country they wished to subdue or occupy... Extreme nationalism often becomes a kind of racial fanaticism... Sometimes it combines racial and religious bigotry...

When you hear the Liberal Fascist JackAss propaganda that THEY are the true patriots then you know the time is near. Look for it from the socialist Labor Unions such as the SEIU!
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6535

MILITARISM

Fascism maintains among the people a permanently warlike frame of mind... Every citizen feels that he is mobilized against enemies of the regime from within, and against possible foreign foes... The dictator usually comes to power during a period of economic crisis or depression... He relieves the depression partly by employing many people in the making of armaments... To justify this procedure, he must convince the people that the country is threatened, and must point toward some of the enemies against whom the armaments may be needed...

Listen to 0baMa0's rhetoric and his fascistic support from the Liberals
.....sound..familiar?.....

Here are the Three (3) Phases of Liberal Decay into Fascism:

1. Liberalism (Well Meaning, Nice Sounding, "Do-Gooder" Policies Always Doomed to Fail)

2. Liberal-Progressivism (The Drive for Social Improvement through Change and Promising Hope;
More Draconian Liberal Polices are Implemented to Transform The People into a New Society that Is Guided by 'The Party') The Party Elite Have Complete Power and Rule Un-Checked.

3. Liberal-Fascism (The Rise of the Party Leader over 'The Party' Ensuring the Unity and Uniformaty of 'The Party' and Enforcing The Will of 'The Party' Over the People.) The Party Leader will Cleanse 'The Party' of All those Who Are NOT of 'The Party'; and 'The Party' Will Cleanse the People of All Those Who Do NOT Support 'The Party' and The Party Leader. The Party Leader Now Has Complete and Total Power and Rules by the Force of His Iron Will.

Brother/Sister Are You "OF" 'The Party' ?

Does The Teaching Of 'The Party' Abide Within You ?

Does The Thoughts Of 'The Party' "Leader" Guide Your Thoughts ?

Obama0 announced this week he will bestow the Presidential Medal of Freedom • the nation•s highest civilian honor • to John Sweeney, president emeritus of the country•s biggest union, AFL-CIO.

http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=2009
http://www.keywiki.org/index.php/John_J._Sweeney

Sweeney is a socialist activist and is a card carrying member of the Democratic Socialists of America, or DSA, the principal American affiliate of the Socialist International. The DSA has evidenced a close relationship with Obama over the years.

He previously served for four terms as president of the controversial Service Employees International Union, or SEIU.

http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6535
http://www.keywiki.org/index.php/SEIU

During his reign, Sweeney famously aligned the SEIU with ACORN and other leftist groups.

http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6968
http://www.keywiki.org/index.php/ACORN

Activist and author Joel Kotkin, a fellow at the Progressive Policy Institute, observed how Sweeney brought communists into his union leadership:

Reagan was head of the Screen Actors Guild, do you consider him a union organizer, a socialist and a union organizer? He was a Socialist for

Today, the 19th, there was FANTASTIC conditions on 49 meters to the Far East, Middle East, and Africa at local sunset. All India Radio on 6280khz was S9+20db, Radio Cairo on 6270khz was +10db over S9, and on 6297khz West Sahara Liberation Front Polisario Radio was S9, the best I've ever heard them and finally got a good recording of their sign off with West Sahara national anthem!

Looking at the dancing shadows on the wall, I would guess, and that is all it is, that Ginsburg was referring to bitter sweet, unwanted pregnancies. Being Jewish (Zionists aside), I have a hard time believing that Ginsburg would be much of a racist. I have heard her speak, but I have never heard her address eugenics as a means of improving the world. Anyone who knows anything about genetics, knows the greater the diversity, the greater the chance for survival.

UV light, skin color linked

Variations due to geography

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO • Two San Francisco scientists using data from a NASA satellite say they have discovered why people come in different colors.

Variations in human skin color are the result of adaptations to the amount of ultraviolet light from the sun falling on different regions of Earth, according to Nina Jablonski and George Chaplin, scientists with the California Academy of Science.

People's bodies change their skin color over time to let in just the right amount of UV light, which is key to having healthy babies.

UV light affects the skin's production of folate, part of the B vitamin complex, and vitamin D-3, both of which are essential for having healthy children.

Folate is necessary for the proper development of the nervous system in fetuses and for sperm production in adult males. Vitamin D-3 helps build and maintain strong bones and a healthy immune system.

But too much solar UV light can not only cause skin cancer, it can also damage those chemicals, thereby hurting a person's chances for reproductive success.

The scientists' finding may also explain why women tend to be lighter-skinned than men. Lighter skin lets in more solar UV light, increasing a woman's vitamin D-3 production, which helps the fetus grow during pregnancy and helps nourish newborns through breast feeding.

UV light from the sun varies from region to region for reasons including latitude, humidity and cloudiness.

Jablonski and Chaplin's discovery isn't entirely new. For a long time, scientists have thought there was a correlation between UV light and skin color, and they knew the light helped produce vitamin D and that it could cause cancer.

"But this explanation was considered weak by some scientists because skin cancer has little or no effect on people's ability to reproduce, which is really the bottom line of every evolutionary spreadsheet," Jablonski said.

Jablonski developed the hypothesis that links UV light to reproduction in 1991. The scientists analyzed published measurements of human skin color from around the world and data from NASA's Total Ozone Mapping Spectrometer satellite, which orbited Earth from 1978 to 1993 and gathered direct UV measurements for the entire globe to find the correlation between skin color and UV light.

Jablonski and Chaplin found that dark skin acts as a natural sunscreen to help prevent UV light from breaking down folate, so it is helpful in areas with a lot of sun. But in less sunny areas, dark skin screens out too much sunlight, and can inhibit the production of vitamin D-3, so lighter skin is helpful for reproductive success.

Skin color is based on the level of melanin, an organic molecule with an undetermined chemical structure. Those with more melanin have darker skin, and melanin levels are genetic. But the variations in skin color are adaptations to solar UV light, not biological differences among people, according to Jablonski and Chaplin.

"We're all the same under the skin," Jablonski said.

The bill that ultimately repealed the Glas Steagal Act was introduced in the Senate by Phil Gramm (Republican of Texas) and in the House of Representatives by Jim Leach (R-Iowa) in 1999. The bills were passed by a Republican majority, basically following party lines by a 54–44 vote in the Senate[12] and by a bi-partisan 343–86 vote in the House of Representatives.[13] After passing both the Senate and House the bill was moved to a conference committee to work out the differences between the Senate and House versions. The final bill resolving the differences was passed in the Senate 90–8 (one not voting) and in the House: 362–57 (15 not voting). The legislation was signed into law by President Bill Clinton on November 12, 1999.[14]

The repeal of Glas-Steagal allowed investment banks to create derivatives, which were back by bad loans. Sec. of Treasury, Hank Paulson, under "W" purchase the derivatives at face value.

October 17, 2008

JUAN GONZALEZ: What about this issue of the government's bailout being aimed primarily at the financial institutions rather than the homeowners who–and the defaults that are at the root of the crisis?

PAUL CRAIG ROBERTS: Yes. Well, it suggests that the bailout is either incompetence or fraud, because the problem, according to the government, is the defaulting mortgages, so the money should be directed at refinancing the mortgages and paying off the foreclosed ones. And that would restore the value of the mortgage-backed securities that are threatening the financial institutions. If the value was restored, the crisis would be over. So there's no connection between the government's explanation of the crisis and its solution to the crisis.

I'm not trying to deflect guilt from Obama, who certainly has his share Western Sahara would probably result in a new NASWA Country, but alas, the transmitter site is apparently in Algeria at the moment.

Original, "quoted" article <http://www.nytimes.com/2009/07/12/magazine/12ginsburg-t.html?_r=1& pagewanted=all>

Perhaps you have another source that links Ruth Ginsburg to racism, but this one doesn't. Go to the original article, and you will only find one reference to "black", and it relates to black firefiighters. There is no mention, or implication of Eugenics and eliminating African-American Births.

What am I to think? You claim this article says something that it clearly doesn't.

Yes, I have internet accees again.What it was, last Wednesday around midnightish, my land line phone line crapped it's pants, Zero access untill just now.Yesterday, I drove over to my brother in law's house and I used his cell phone to call AT&T. (Atrocious Atrocious & Atrocious = AT&T)
They ran a test on my land line from wherever (in Georgia, I reckon) and said I do have a problem with my line.On Monday evening of next week, a repairman is suppose to be here.

I have a Sperry phone line tester gadget I bought at the Lowe's store a few months ago.It showed I have/had (Sh!t, I don't know) a reversed line.What does that mean, reversed line?

That -used- to be a good test for a reversal, but you're living in the past.

Every TT pad made in the last 25 or 30 years has a "Polarity Guard" -- Bell Labs Speak for a bridge rectifier that allows the pad to operate no matter which way the line is wired.

I used my phone less than an hour ago, in case Big Sis wants to know.My brother in law's son is looking for a small trailer, about five or six feet long trailer.(he can easily afford to buy a new trailer) There is a company on Highway 49 South about a ten miles drive South of doggy's couch, they manufacture new trailers there, all kinds of small and large trailers,it used to be called Blaine's, I don't know what it is called now.My old buddy lives near there.His neighbor has a nice small enclosed trailer that he almost never uses.My old buddy's neighbor and my brother in law are retired from the Air Force.My brother in law said he will go over there and look the trailer over.

In case Commie Big Sis/Commie Big Brother wants to know.

It is MY phone, and I will use it when I want to.

An enigmatic comment that many seem quick to explain.
<http://www.nationalreview.com/articles/227883/ruth-bader-ginsburg-and-qu estion-eugenics/jonah-goldberg#>

Upon re-reading, it seems she was referring to the poor not having ready access to abortions. It would be nice to have her expand upon her meaning. Additional children can be a calamity for a poor family with several mouths to feed already, as well as a boon to a childless family. This is why it's called "Pro Choice". Reading anything else into it, reflects more on the reader, than it does on Ginsburg. It is a good thing that she is a judge, and not a biologist, who would rightly be taken to task for applying social values to a natural phenomenom.

In any event, these days we all have concern about population growth and particularly growth in population(s) that 'we' don't want to have too many of", Homo sapiens. There will be about 9 billion of us in 2050, and approximately 12 billion by 2067, and our leaders don't address this problem at all. Large populations, coupled with reduced crop production, due to global warming, would seem to indicate that we all ought to join in with population reduction.

Whether Ginsburg's comment was just an awkward turn of phrase, or the glimpse of a monster inside a woman, who has to date seemed compassionate and reasonable, is anyone's guess.

There are some 2500s ca. 45 years of age out there.

But you are correct, I don't do a lot of phone work.

- Upon re-reading, it seems she was referring to the poor not having with

- This is why it's called "Pro Choice". Reading anything else into it,

So Billy - You Like USSC Justice Ginsberg support Abortion as a Means to an End Culling-Out the Un-Needed Undesirables.

FACT 1 - Since 1973, Approximately 13 Million
African-American "Black" Babies have been Killed

Are these abortions voluntary, or involuntary?
If it is voluntary, then YOU have no standing in the woman's decision.

Does the government have the right to tell you what to do with your body?
Your body: your decision.

If this is about people of color being disproportionately poor, maybe we should pay them compensation for their ancestors being put in chains, or being chase off ancestral lands.

Median Net Worth
Per Black Family

$5,598

Median Net Worth
Per White Family
$88,651

God must have wanted white guys to be rich, huh?
Or maybe God didn't want you to pay a worker what they were worth.

Who are these anti-immigrant people, some kind of flag-wrapped agents provocateur, ? la COINTELPRO, trying to misdirect people's attention away from noticing that our pockets are being picked?

Illegals are here for jobs that we don't want at wages that we won't accept. Illegals didn't send our jobs over seas? Illegals didn't weaken the provision on derivatives trading, banning Wall Street firms from acting as brokers. Illegals didn't start two vanity wars costing trillion$ of dollar$ of debt and human suffering. It isn't illegals that say that the US must spend half of the world's military budget. Illegals don't foul forest streams with mountain top removal, so that we can belch more greenhouse gases into the atmosphere. It isn't illegals who make nutritionless food for us to eat. It wasn't illegals that wrote NAFTA, that lets the US dump tax subsidized corn on the Mexican market, below the cost of production, resulting in the loss of Mexican farm jobs, and a loss of income to agricultural families.

No, it isn't illegals who are hurting us. It?s "White Guys in Suits".
So, if you have a bone to pick, go pick it with the "White Guys in Suits".

A reversed line polarity is not the cause to lose a dialtone. If the Sperry tester lights up at all it means the DC component is in order.
The -48VDC can actually be measured with the simplest basic ordinary voltmeter. What may be out of order is either: dial tone absent alltogether or the central office does not recognize the off-hook condition. Does your phone ring when the tel/number is dialed from outside ?

3698. Grayland DXpedition Report & Loggings - Nov. 15th

Newsgroup: rec.radio.shortwave

From: Guy Atkins <atkinsguy@gmail.com>
Message-ID: <ce01f918-b6b8-48b9-86cc-12b283a969ec@k13g2000vbq.googlegroups.com>

My recent two-night DXpedition to the Grayland Beach State Park had an unusual "first" for me, after 20 years of DXing at Grayland: an earthquake! This small 4.2 magnitude tremblor happened 9 miles below Mossy Rock, WA, and was definitely heard by me, if not felt. It struck at 7:51 a.m. on the 16th and sounded like a loud, large semitruck was rumbling by, right next to the yurt. In fact, I got up and looked out the door of the yurt (cabin) to see what was going on. That's when I realized it wasn't a truck or noisy RV!

While at the coast I tried a new antenna design--a dual pennant phased array on behalf on Andy Ikin of Wellbrook and two other designers--Neil Kazaross and Mark Connelly. Andy simplified Neil & Mark's dual pennant loop by placing the feed point and termination (1400 ohms) in the bottom corners. He also indicated I could use Wellbrook FLG100 matcher/amplifiers I already had on hand. Two of these 20 ft. high X 72 ft. long loops (each loop looks like a big "bow tie") were spaced about 150-160 feet apart and phased through a Wellbrook phaser. Each loop contains 200 feet of wire but due to the bowtie shape they only take up 72 feet (each) on the ground. The bottom points of the "bowtie" shaped loops were 2 feet off the ground (I used 22 ft. tall masts). The array worked well to reduce stateside station QRM while being sensitive to Asian MW DX. However, I had a heck of a time getting the loops aligned (on-axis) because a stand of trees obscured my view from one loop to the other.

The loops worked well on all of shortwave too, but with reduced directionality above a few Megahertz. On medium wave I found rearward nulls on the order of 25-35+ dB for stations in the San Francisco area. Stations on other bearings toward the rear of the antenna were reduced, but not as much. It seemed like the "null aperture" to the rear was not that wide compared to the best array I've experienced--the 4-loop QDFA. It also seemed narrower than even two phased delta loops or "KAZ" antennas.

The array was oriented at 270 degrees due west, so the best nulls off the back side should have been Richland/Pasco, Centralia, and Pendleton stations. As I mentioned though, the best nulls by far were the San Francisco bay area stations...so some skewing of the pattern was happening. Also, the phaser's balance control needed to be fully counter-clockwise for the best nulls. Andy says this indicates an imbalance situation. Ideally both phase and balance controls would be at the midpoint of their adjustment.

Bill Whitacre of Alexandria, VA hopes to replicate the phased dual pennant array this coming weekend, so it will be interesting to learn if his nulling results are better than mine.

MW DX on the 15th was strongly Asian/TP as expected this time of year. Reception was good but not outstanding. For instance, Tier 1 and tier 2 Japanese stations were easily heard, but frequencies with low power synchros were just a jumble of weak audio. The lone DU signal I heard was 2BL 702 in Sydney.

Below are MW loggings from just the first night of DXing on November 15th (UTC), mostly from listening across the top of each hour. I have yet to go through the Perseus WAV files from the 16th.

Tropical band loggings from the 15th can be read in this text file: http://www.mediafire.com/?tmifbizy5y8tzui

AN AOR7030+?? Guy is going retro. Tired of SDR DXing Guy is rediscovering the joys of DXing with a top line analogue receiver = have fun and enjoy.

Absolutely fabulous catches from a wonderful DX site = very well done!
There is just nothing like getting away from your usual home QTH and enjoying the amazing effect of "sea gain" at the coast.
Lovely exotic tropical band catches as well - I get nothing like that at our local DX sites = excellent.

Thanks for sharing all that with us Guy.

Wow... excellent, detailed report. I almost felt like I was there.
Thank you.

Perhaps someday the time will come when we all have ample bandwidth

Maybe it's because the guys in suits usually work for the ones who wear odd headgear on Saturday, and he knows that.

3709. Three letter code for Baldonnel, Ireland

Hi,
Would anyone know what 3-letter radio code was assigned to the Irish Aer Corps aerodrome at Baldonnel, Ireland during the late 1930's? This should be similar to the EIP code assigned to Ballygirreen station in Co. Clare, near Shannon.
Many thanks,
Colin

Hi John,

Yes, I'm enjoying a AR7030 again! I'm glad it was a "Plus" model that I found (locally... and a late serial number unit in LIKE NEW condition). My first 7030 in 1996 was of course before the upgraded model came along, and the 2nd one was built by me from a "kit" of new surplus (replacement) boards and parts when EEB-Virginia went out of business. I should never have sold them, but I['m happy to have an AOR again.

I'm not really tired of DXing with SDRs, but both of my main receivers were Perseus receivers and what I missed was a good old fashioned, comfy tuning knob and other controls! Although the performance of Perseus is first-rate, the filtering is phenomenal, and being able to record the full MW band a revelation...I found the SDRs to be a bit cold and "sterile" to operate. In short, they are not quite as fun to DX with (for me, anyway). So...I sold one of the Perseus receivers and got the AR7030+.

I've recently installed a Murata CFJ455K5 filter in the receiver, and have a 5.0 kHz bandwidth crystal filter to put into it. I also have a Kiwa Audio Upgrade kit and a BHI DSP noise reduction module (NEDSP-1061 KBD) to install.

One man's local pests on the radio are another's DX, of course. I'd love to hear more MW from your continent! All I've logged from Africa is Mauritania, 783 kHz from over here (it was during September's Haida Gwaii, BC Canada DXpedition).

I'll post a few links to audio files here later, with samples of a few of the stations I heard on the Grayland DXpedition last week.

We really live poles apart - you are getting ready for bed in WA state Monday night, and the early Tuesday dawn is just breaking here in the Klein Karoo for a lovely summers day. Poor reception as always in Montagu so I get really envious reading your excellent DXpedition logs. Would love to hear some of the exotic audio when you post it.

Enjoy your AOR7030+plus = it's a damn fine radio, one of the best ever made and there is little to beat it still on Bob Sherwoods tables.
As you say, Perseus is amazing, but it is the awesome Icom that gets switched on twice a day that I really enjoy DXing with.

3720. Drake R8B Tuning Technique Saves Encoder Wear

Drake R8B Tuning Technique Saves Encoder Wear

After reading several reports of premature Drake R8B tuning knob mechanical encoder failure, I recall asking Bill Frost, R L Drake service manager, about it. His cryptic response was, "it a matter of operator tuning technique." I recall thinking at the time, that he was referring to the use of the ^ & V (up-arrow & down-arrow) buttons in lieu of rotating the tuning knob.

That ^ & V tuning button technique is just right for tuning broadcast stations that transmit on the even five kilohertz'. But there is something about smoothly gliding along the frequency spectrum that provides the operator with information about signals preceding and following the desired frequency, that is absent in jumping along the spectrum in discrete five kilohertz steps.

Here's how to use the R8's automated slow-scan tuning to glide along the spectrum in leisurely 10 KHz steps:

1. Set the 'Squelch' full counterclockwise (off)

2. Press 'F', then '6' 'Carrier'

3. Press 'F' then 'Step' until 'X.00' is displayed (10 KHz)

4. Press 'F' then 'A.B' (3), enter high frequency like 26.550 MHz

5. Press '^' (up arrow), enter low frequency like 4.500.00 MHz

6. Press 'F' 'A.B', then 'Scan' to begin scanning, 'Scan' to stop

7. Tune to a desired band low-end frequency, like 4.4 MHz

8. Press 'Scan' to begin scanning from that frequency

9. Press '^ or V' (up arrow or down arrow) to reverse scan direction

10. Press 'Scan' to stop, then enter another frequency

11. Press 'Scan' to begin scanning from that new frequency

12. Press 'Scan' again to stop the scan when an interesting station is tuned

Once the 'A.B' frequency registers are loaded with upper-limit and lower-limit frequencies, you can slow-scan from any new frequency very easily. And you don't even need to touch the tuning knob.

Although these instructions look a bit daunting at first glance, you'll find that actual operation is intuitive and easy once the 'A.B' frequency registers are properly initialized; just tune to a frequency and press 'Scan.' Simple.

This technique should have specifically been included in the owner's manual in my opinion.

Opinions on the use of this technique are welcome as are any other tuning techniques you may find useful.

It makes me wonder why Drake chose to use an electromechanical encoder for the tuning knob when optoelectronic ones are easily available. The Lowe HF-150 (which if my memory serves was manufactured during approximately the same period) uses one, and I'm reasonably certain it sold at a lower price point than the Drake.

Heard both Yellowknife and Wolverine myself on Sunday the 20th UTC time.

Also: Hard Tack Radio signing off with a station ID, e-mail address (already responded to my report with an e-QSL, thanks!) and "Dixie"on 6925.05 USB at 0100 UTC; an unidentified station playing electronic music on 6935 USB at 0354 UTC; and an unidentified station playing music and airing announcements in Portuguese on 6934.99 USB (Brazilian pirate?) noted from 0010 to 0020 UTC.

The odds of someone here having the same radio as you do are pretty small. You're being told how to catch a fish rather than being given a fish.

If you check back in the forum you linked to on antiqueradios.com, there is a pretty good post giving the formula for calculating the inductance of a coil. You can count turns and measure diameters and calculate those figures for both coils.

Once you do that, you can then calculate the reactance of the coil at both ends of the spectrum you know they tune. There's standard formulas for doing this, too. I can't recall them offhand, but a quick Google search should uncover them.

The vast majority of vintage radio sets tune by varying capacitance. In an AC circuit (and radio frequency signals are AC), inductive reactance opposes a change in current, making current lag voltage. Capacitive reactance opposes a change in voltage, making voltage lag current.

So if the capacitive reactance matches the inductive reactance, the two reactances cancel each other out at a given frequency. Move away from that frequency and they mismatch, causing the signal to be attenuated, usually seriously so. The circuit is said to be resonant at the frequency where the reactances match.

Now, to review: have a variable capacitor, and you can calculate the inductive reactance at both 9.4 MHz and 17.8 MHz. Plug those values into the capacitive reactance formula, solve for C, and you know the capacitance range for the two circuits that the antenna and oscillator coils are part of.

Now that you have that, you can calculate the capacitive reactance for the endpoints of all the other bands. Then, go back to the coil formula, keep the radius the same as that of your existing coils, and you can calculate the number of turns on the missing coils. Find some suitable stock for winding the replacement coils, and voíla!

(If you can't find any stock that exactly matches the radius of that on the coils you do have, pick something as close as possible, and plug that value into the coil formula to calculate turns.)

My SW-2 had a mechanical encoder, too. It got so flaky, I started looking for options. Peter G. posted a mod for converting Drake mechanical encoders to an optical encoder. I was about to go that way before someone posted a procedure for cleaning and relubricating the mechanical model that would eliminate the current problem and forestall future issues. I opted for the cleaning, and never had another problem for the remainder of the time I owned the radio.

I'll try to dig up that remedy.

Sold mine and bought a TenTec. The tuning knob was always the worst thing about the R8B but I never used it much. I used Smart R8 Control and rarely touched the radio (except for the volume knob).

Looks like most are AM/FM only, some have VHF/UHF public service bands on them. I only noticed two with SW bands.

Biggest minus is that these simple, old single-conversion circuits are not very selective. They're also not terribly sensitive, though that can be compensated for by connecting them to a good antenna and ground
system. Tuning will also be a touchy matter (no bandspread, and backlash will probably be an issue). Biggest plus is that these simple analog circuits take very little current compared to modern digital communications receivers; batteries last much longer, particularly if the set takes C or D cells. Another plus is that they're great for listening to major broadcasters if there's no nearby signals, because that wide selectivity makes for good audio quality.
I will say that the "Grand Prix" looks real tempting with its cool retro-60s styling. Might need to have a few capacitors replaced (45-year-old electrolytics sometimes are all dried out), but that's not a terribly big deal.

If you really want a classic old transistor SW receiver, the best are the Zenith Transoceanic Royal series (good luck finding an NOS one, however). They used extra tuned sections for better selectivity, and allocated a separate tuning range for each broadcast band (much less touchy to tune stations that way). Hallicrafters and Heathkit also made some respectable battery-operated transistor SW radios in the 60s.

That number sounds familiar. It's the same 2.1 kHz filter used in my Kenwood R-1000.

Since I'm pretty much exclusivly a program listener, I'd like to swap it out for something around 4 kHz wide. (The stock 6 kHz is just too wide when the Chinese and Russians are parking 5 kHz off what I want to listen too). Any sources, anyone?

My shopping adventure this morning at the Goodwill store was, three round nesting tin cans with the lids, I think they date back to the 1950's or early 1960's, they are old and I would say they are in poor to fair condition, I like them anyway.

I also bought an old wall mount thermostat control (it is a Marvair brand name) for heating and airconditioning temperature control.It is the kind that has a little glass tube with mercury inside of the glass tube.I like it too.Some people collect all kinds of old thingys, so do I.

I heard the Portugese too. Might have been a malfunctioning Brazilian Universal Radio has a moderately priced ($19.98) CFM 455-I . If it fits, at 4 KHz, it is probably better than the stock (my AR7030 has what appears to be a 5.5KHz plastic CFW455-IT) . Any filter with 2K impedance should be an improvement .

The goal of the company was NOT inexpensive, universal telephone service. They were held to rates by the government, and a number of consumer groups. But the stated goal in internal papers was to jack rates up to levels about where they are today....in the 1970's. I sat in meetings where it was stated outright that the goal is $100 telephone bills before the end of the decade. That was in 1976.

The Labs' inventions stand on their own without my comment. Bell Labs was one of the most productive and innovative environments in the world.

But they were also the source of decades of human manipulation. With, often, disastrous effects on individuals within and without the organization.

I can't count the number of friends and colleagues I put in the ground due to stress and overwork. Or how many memoes I received leading off with the declaration: It is the position of the Company that your JOB comes first." No surprise there. But the games played with employees with the temerity to schedule things like education, on their own time, to see to it that ONLY such things that were to the benefit of the company were studied, rank as the finest examples of corporate abuse.

> A telephone system that was the envy of the world...and you say it was

The telephone system is one thing. The company that built it is another.

I used to work at the Bell System. I got to read the Bell Labs research on human productivity enhancement. They rank just below the Ethyl Corporation for corporate indifference.

As I recall it cost several 1970 dollars to make a single cross-country phone call when Ma Bell owned everything, and you weren't allowed to attach anything to the line. Answering machines took up the whole desk and had 2 reels of magnetic tape inside. Don't even get me started on

I had a phone at the time of the divestiture. I almost never made long distance calls. My local service, including call waiting and call forwarding, went from $10 a month to $39 a month.

Bell System was heavily regulated by the feds, and it was in fact a federal crime for the customer to connect anything to the system. Didn't keep many people from adding extension phones anyway, but if the ringer current went up too much, they got busted and often fined.

Answering machine and speakerphone (and autodialer) technology was primitive in the 70's. I had a late 60's autodialer that actually used a rotary dial and stepping relays. Into the late 70's, things like the Demon Dialer came out, but were very expensive. Also not all that reliable. I caught hell from the local constabulary because my Demon Dialer tones were off, and the number "2" would not register with the phone company's equipment properly. I didn't find this out until I kept trying to call the local time of day number (229-1212), and got the 911 operator three times running. I had to try to explain that I was not crank calling 911. Tossed my $240 Demon Dialer in the dumpster after that.

They were using long distance to subsidize local. I can still get measured service for $16/month (before fees and taxes). I do like the extra quality of service you get from the incumbent. I want 9-1-1 to work when I have the "big one".

I never did count them, but I reckon I own at least ten old telephones.One of them is a Western Union brass candlestick phone, it isn't the kind that has a dialer on it, it is at least 100 years old, or older.My 1914 Ford Model T car will be 100 years old in four more years, it will outlive me.Another one is a Western Union desk phone which dates back to 1933.Other phones I own which date back to the 1940's and 1950's and 1960's.One of rhem is a made in Sweden Ericaphone,something like that phone, the dialer and the hang up button are on the bottom of the phone.Another one is a funny looking made in France phone.I like all phones if they are old, old enough to suit me.

The AT&T repairman, when he got here yesterday to fix my phone line, he said he has to go down the street and check an interphase.He was gone about twenty minutes.When he got back here, he connected a portable electronic box thingy to the phone box in my carport.Then he tapped on a bunch of buttons (numbers/letters/buttons/keys/whatever) on his electronic box.Then he told me to check my phone for a dial tone.My phone line is working ok now.

That wasn't a phone repair guy. The CIA has found out you never leave the phone plugged in and want to know what you are hiding. There seems to be more to your life than sending red lace bras to Holland MI.

I am thinking about buying a Tracphone and a minutes call card so that when my AT&T land line isn't working I can call AT&T to come fix my land line.

The other day I asked my brother in law if Comcast is his ISP provider, for his computer.He said, Hell No!

Here are links to some MP3 files from my recent DXpedition. Reception wasn't spectacular, for medium wave or shortwave. However, these will give you an idea of how certain regulars come in at the Washington State coast this time of year. I've heard all of these outlets countless times since 1990 when I first started going to Grayland. I use these frequencies as indicator stations to give me a clue as to how good propagation is for MW and SW.

I was actually surprised to get audio from Kiribati and Solomon Islands in November, but I happened to catch them during sunset-at-the-transmitter enhancement (lasting about 10 minutes maximum during this particular trip to the coast). Late spring through summer is generally the best time to catch the South Pacific on MW from Grayland.

Thanks very much for the mp3s! Not only do we get to share in the excitement of hearing these distant catches, but it's also quite evident that your receiver detects AM signals very cleanly and with good audio response. A very nice Thanksgiving present to the group.

With thanks,

Kevin, WB4AIO.

Hmm, 20 millimeter metal can. Might have to drill a couple more holes in the circuit board, but that's not much of a problem. Since it's time for a lube job (the MHz switch, input attenuator switch, volume control, and headphone jack all need cleaning and relube), I'll have to give them a call. Thanks.

Is mythology based on astrology? Christianity is a franchise, like broasted chicken. A lot of Abrahamic mythology was filched from Gilgamesh, but Iraqis aren't worthy to be allowed to run their own government, because General Boykin knows better.

This guy carries 30 pounds of tools up the ladder with him? Most climbers I know take the end of a line with them, then attach a pulley where they'll be working, then they send the end of the rope back down. Then the ground crew can send up tools, parts, whatever, and you don't have to worry about not forgetting anything but the rope and the pulley.

Maybe he works alone...

Click on the maintenanceworld.com link. Certain kinds of electric motors do have an oil drain plug.

Here is how to Improve your walk behind gas engine lawn mower.That automatic engine shut off crap on there, take that crap off and throw it away.You might save that little cable, never know when it might come in handy for something.That's what I always do.I either rig a coil spring somewhere on the engine to ground the spark plug to shut off the engine, or I use a screwdriver.

The climbers you know probably climb 100 ft towers?

With this tower that would require 3,400 ft of rope, which probably weighs more than the tools and will be very difficult to handle.

The climbers you know probably climb 100 ft towers?

With this tower that would require 3,400 ft of rope, which probably weighs more than the tools and will be very difficult to handle.

Not to mention the extreme likelihood of the rope getting blown around and/or snagged on any of dozens of appendages (microwave antennas, FM and comms antennas, tower lighting, etc) that are on such tall structures.

You take a messenger rope (3/32") up with you. Once through the pulley and back down that rope is used to lift a more substantial rope, all done by the winch on the service truck. This is a safety feature. People cramp up sometimes.

You usually have a ground crew person feeding the line and watching such things. California has stricter laws than OSHA. I think you have to clip on when climbing here.

9mm static line weighs 57 gm/meter. A 1000 meter loop would weight 57kg or 126 lbs. No thanks. Also, the line has quite a bit of wind resistance and will probably cause the 30 lb tool bag to sway quite a bit in the wind. However, since he rode the elevator almost to the top, he might be able to handle a 50 meter single static line to the top of the elevator.

Nice video. I wonder what they were repairing on top of the tower?

The only lawnmowers we have here with that garbage on them are US imports and they don't sell all that well. I had one given to me and I promptly passed it on as it was a piece of trash. The B&S engine was the best part of it.

Our locally produced units have a kill switch built in to the throttle lever. I guess the US manufacturers need to cater to local operators who aren't all that bright and might be run over by their own lawnmower!!

Press Release

Tower Association Responds to Erroneous and Dangerous Video

The following statement is being issued by the National Association of Tower Erectors (NATE) regarding a dangerous video post erroneously characterizing ï¿½free climbingï¿½ on towers as lawful and common.
NATE would like to publicly denounce the message of the recently posted video depicting two men climbing a broadcast tower. NATE asserts that the posting of the content was misguided and its messages should not be given credence by any viewer.
The ï¿½Stairway to Heavenï¿½ video, reportedly launched by TheOnLineEngineer.org, suggests that free climbing is an accepted method of ascending and descending broadcast and telecommunication towers. The video incorrectly asserts that free climbing is accepted by OSHA and that ï¿½most tower workers climb this way.ï¿½ The video also depicts as standard procedure other dangerous and prohibited conduct not condoned by NATE or OSHA. There are many inaccuracies in this video.
NATEï¿½s efforts to establish a culture of safety in the wireless and broadcast tower industry encourages everyone involved with tower work to adhere to recognized safe practices. The video in question is an example of a climber who is either unaware of recognized safety practices or is unwilling to take the time to protect his life and the life of his co-worker in the video. By extension it encourages others to employ unsafe climbing techniques not endorsed by either OSHA or NATE.
Contractors who refuse to operate safely should never be hired. This video is one more example of why the efforts of NATE, our membership and industry partners are imperative.
NATE, the industryï¿½s leader in tower safety, continues to pursue working relationships with carriers, broadcasters and other tower owner/operators to ensure that only qualified contractors set foot on tower sites. The Association has worked with OSHA to develop safety best practices and educational programs to ensure every tower worker goes home safely every day. Companies which allow free climbing and other violations of recognized safety practices are placing lives in danger and jeopardizing tower work services.

NATE is looking forward to OSHAï¿½s statement clarifying this matter for the industry.
Work Quality in Question
Employers who allow such practices will likely cut corners on other aspects of their work. NATE asks, ï¿½If a company or employee will cut corners with the lives of its workers, on what other aspects of work will they be willing to cut corners?ï¿½ Owners and operators who hire this type of contractor are opening themselves up to legal and regulatory actions and are additionally running the risk of system malfunctions, adding unnecessary costs on top of endangering lives.
NATE Requests Contact From Tower Owners and Operators
NATE is requesting contact from carriers, broadcasters and other entities who own, operate or control wireless and broadcast towers as well as the industry groups who represent them. NATE is doggedly pursuing working relationships with these organizations to ensure that a culture of safety exists throughout the industry and that only qualified contractors set foot on tower sites. If your organization fits this description, please contact Patrick Howey at 888-882-5865 or patrick@natehome.com.

7-Year-Old Palestinian Child, Adam Al-Resheq, Hospitalized After Being Violently Attacked By Israeli Occupation Policemen in Silwan

Israeli forces brutally batter 7-year-old Palestinian child [25/11/2010 - 10:36 AM]

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM, (PIC)-- Israeli policemen severely battered a Jerusalemite child in Silwan, occupied Jerusalem, on Wednesday night breaking both his arm and leg, his father said.

Mansour Al-Resheq told the Quds media center in the Shaari Tzedek hospital that policemen chased his 7-year-old child Adam and savagely beat him then dragged him on the ground before leaving him in the street bleeding.

For his part, Fakhri Abu Diab, the head of the committee in defense of Silwan land, said that the child was suffering from several fractures and that the doctors were still checking his condition, noting that Adam was still screaming of pain, which pointed to more fractures other than those in the arm and leg.

He denounced the "savage act" on the part of the occupation forces, adding that he could not assimilate the idea of heavily armed soldiers chasing then beating a helpless child and dragging him on the ground.

Palestinian Child Hospitalized After Being Violently Attacked By Israeli Policemen

Thursday November 25, 2010 08:52 by Saed Bannoura - IMEMC & Agencies

A 7-year-old Palestinian child from Silwan neighborhood, south of the Al Aqsa Mosque in occupied East Jerusalem, was hospitalized Wednesday, after a number of Israeli occupation government policemen violently attacked, kicked and punched him.

The child, Adam Mansour Al-Rishiq, was taken to a Jerusalem hospital and was immediately sent to the Intensive Care Unit due to the seriousness of his condition.

Fakhri Abu Diab, a member of the local committee to defend Silwan land and property, stated that clashes were reported Wednesday between the police and local residents in Silwan, especially near a protest tent located between Jacob's Well and Ein Al Lowza.

The tent was installed several months ago to protest the Israeli demolition and confiscation of Palestinian and Arab homes in occupied East Jerusalem, which protesters say was carried out despite Israeli court orders protecting the homes from demolition.

Abu Diab stated that Border Guard Policemen chased a number of youth before violently attacking the seven-year-old child, and striking him with their batons on different parts of his body.

Adamï¿½s father stated that his child was moved to the hospital unconscious and heavily bleeding, and was directly sent to the Intensive Care Unit suffering from a number of fractures and bruises.

I don't know that much about climbing towers.But, I think I would wear a safety belt/harness and have at least two or three strong ropes a few feet long with some sort of snap on/snap off hooks so I could hook on to whatever and hopefully not fall down.I reckon I would work my way up and down like that, if you get me drift?

Maybe the weight of his rope for that size of tower is more than 30 pounds....

On Thanksgiving Day, Americans gather with their family and friends to celebrate the blessings that Providence has bestowed on their beloved country.

A deep appreciation of these blessings involves understanding that they were earned. It is to understand the awesome truth of how "God helps those who help themselves" applies to the Mayflower Pilgrims and their First Thanksgiving at America's birth.

This is an appreciation and understanding of which those on the Left are incapable - for it would mean celebrating the capitalist freedom that made that original Thanksgiving possible. This no liberal, no Democrat, no leftie can do. Thus they must distort history instead.

The distortion starts in Kindergarten, with the childish make-believe of your kid's school play portraying the noble Squanto teaching the helpless Pilgrims how to feed themselves. So let's drop the curtain on the distortion and watch the real thing. Here it is.

http://www.tothepointnews.com/content/view/4314/2/

The Tale of the Pilgrims -- Why It Needs to Be Taught

The study of the history and culture of one's own country is a vital element of education. It is important for children to understand how and why they are living the way they are now and that it is a result of what people who lived before them have done. They need to be able to connect the dots -- these prevailing thoughts led to fights, these ideas led to prosperity, this action led to that one, and so on. It is from making these kinds of connections that the child learns how to think logically.

The tale of the Pilgrims who came to America to escape tyranny is a heroic and moving story. Most children have been told the basic story of Thanksgiving. Here are some more facts for your own information or that you may want to discuss with your child this holiday:

When I worked at Delta Cotton Oil, we used to get a free Turkey each Christmas eve, also at the auto battery factory that used to be in Florence,Mississippi, we got a free Turkey each Christmas eve.When I used to have a Sunbeam bread route, we got two free loaves of Sunbeam bread every day.That is part of Capitalism.

Thanks David...good info.

The two coils I have for the AM broadcast band are sealed...so one cannot see how they are constructed without destroying them.

I have yet to bug them out...I am assuming a simple coil that can be measured for inductance.

But would still like to hear of the other values for the other coils...it is alot simpler than trial and error.

I expect to...I would be shocked to come across sets of coils for this

THANKSGIVING'S BLESSING OF CAPITALIST FREEDOM
Written by Dr. Jack Wheeler
Thursday, 25 November 2010

http://www.tothepointnews.com/content/view/4314/2/

On Thanksgiving Day, Americans gather with their family and friends to celebrate the blessings that Providence has bestowed on their beloved country.

A deep appreciation of these blessings involves understanding that they were earned. It is to understand the awesome truth of how "God helps those who help themselves" applies to the Mayflower Pilgrims and their First Thanksgiving at America's birth.

This is an appreciation and understanding of which those on the Left are incapable - for it would mean celebrating the capitalist freedom that made that original Thanksgiving possible. This no liberal, no Democrat, no leftie can do. Thus they must distort history instead.

The distortion starts in Kindergarten, with the childish make-believe of your kid's school play portraying the noble Squanto teaching the helpless Pilgrims how to feed themselves. So let's drop the curtain on the distortion and watch the real thing. Here it is.

The real history of the Mayflower Pilgrims was recounted by their leader, William Bradford (1590-1657) in his book Of Plymouth Plantation, completed in 1647. It is from Bradford that we learn of Squanto, who did indeed show the Pilgrims how to "set" or plant corn (a new unfamiliar crop for them). Then we learn that the Pilgrims taught the Indians how to grow more corn than they ever had before:

"The Indeans used to have nothing so much corne as they have since the English have stored them with their hoes, and seene their industrie in breaking up new grounds therwith."

Reading the real history of the Pilgrims is so revelatory that I want you to see it at length. The Pilgrims landed in December 1620, suffered a horrible winter, figured out how to fish and hunt that spring and summer so that there may have been some sort of feast with friendly Indians in the fall of 1621 - although Bradford doesn't recount the incident.

But by 1622 they were starving. There was no "Thanksgiving" that year. There was the next - for 1623 saw the Pilgrims in well-fed abundance, and thus was the year of the real First Thanksgiving.

What made the difference? Here are Bradford's own words (albeit with modern spelling like "been" instead of "bene" - the original spelling is in the link above; the parentheses are his, the explanatory brackets are mine), describing Anno Dom.1623:

It may be thought strange that these people should fall to these extremities in so short a time, being left competently provided when the ship [the Mayflower] left them, and had an addition by that moyetie [portion] of corn that was got by trade, besides much they got of the Indians where they lived, by one means and other.

It must needs be their great disorder, for they spent excessively whilst they had, or could get it. And after they began to come into wants, many sold away their clothes and bed coverings; others (so base were they) became servants to the Indians, and would cut them wood and fetch them water for a cap full of corn; others fell to plain stealing, both night and day, from the Indians, of which they grievously complained. In the end, they came to that misery that some starved and died with cold and hunger...

All this while no supply was heard of, neither knew they when they might expect any. So they began to think how they might raise as much corn as they could, and obtain a better crop than they had done, that they might not still thus languish in misery.

At length, after much debate of things, the Governor [Bradford] (with the advise of the chiefest amongst them) gave way that they should set corn every man for his own particular [plant corn on his own private land], and in that regard trust to them selves; in all other things to go on in the general way as before.

And so [there was] assigned to every family a parcel of land, according to the proportion of their number for that end, only for present use (but made no division for inheritance), and ranged all boys and youth under some family. This had very good success; for it made all hands very industrious, so as much more corn was planted then other wise would have been by any means the Governor or any other could use, and saved him a great deal of trouble, and gave far better content.

The women now went willingly into the field, and took their little-ones with them to set corn, which before they would allege weakness and inability; whom to have compelled would have been thought great tyranny and oppression.

The experience that was had in this common course and condition, tried sundry years, and that amongst godly and sober men, may well evince the vanity of that conceit of Plato's and other ancients applauded by some of later times -- that the taking away of property, and bringing in communities into a common wealth, would make them happy and flourishing, as if they were wiser than God.

For this community (so far as it was) was found to breed much confusion and discontent, and retard much employment that would have been to their benefit and comfort. For the young-men that were most able and fit for labor and service did repine [complain] that they should spend their time and strength to work for other men's wives and children, with out any recompense.

The strong, or man of parts, had no more in division [in amount] of victails [food] and clothes, than he that was weak and not able to do a quarter the other could; this was thought injustice. The aged and graver men to be ranked and equalized in labors, and victails, clothes, etc., with the meaner and younger sort, thought it some indignity and disrespect unto them.

And for men's wives to be commanded to do service for other men, as dressing their meat, washing their clothes, etc., they deemed it a kind of slavery, neither could many husbands well brook it.

Upon the point all being to have alike, and all to do alike, they thought them selves in the like condition, and have as good as another; and so, if it did not cut off those relations that God hath set amongst men, yet it did at least much diminish and take of the mutual respects that should be preserved amongst them.

And would have been worse if they had been men of another condition. Let none object this is men's corruption, and nothing to the course itself. I answer, seeing all men have this corruption in them, God in his wisdom saw another course fitter for them...

By the time harvest was come [fall 1623], instead of famine, now God gave them plenty, and the face of things was changed, to the rejoicing of the hearts of many, for which they blessed God. And the effect of their particular planting was well seen, for all had, one way and other, pretty well to bring the year about, and some of the abler sort and more industrious had to spare, and sell to others, so as any general want or famine hath not been amongst them since to this day [1647].

That is as effective a refutation of socialism and affirmation of capitalism as there has ever been. The Pilgrims were starving, stealing and begging from the Indians under a no private property/ everybody work for the common good economy. They switch to a private property/everybody work for themselves economy, and within one season there is abundance for all.

But how can Lefties and Zero-Reid-Pelosi Democrats be thankful for this? They cannot and are not. Their goal is not abundance. Their goal is deprivation - for where there is deprivation there must be victims, victims who can be manipulated to acquire power.

Bradford's history - the real history of Thanksgiving - is there in plain black and white, undeniable and irrefutable for anyone to see. It is the history that should be taught to our schoolchildren but is not. It is ignored and denied. It likely is the very first time you yourself have ever seen Bradford's words.

Liberals, Democrats, and members of America's Fascist Left may very well be enjoying this day - enjoying good food, good wine, good friends and family. Let's hope they are. We should not begrudge them this moment of good cheer.

But what is impossible, or at least difficult for them is to enjoy being American, being thankful for America, to celebrate the abundance of America, the abundance of its material and spiritual well-being thanks to the private property capitalism that made the first Thanksgiving and all those that followed possible.

Any celebration of theirs is always a yes...but thankfulness. "Yes, we have much to be thankful for on this day, but we must never forget what we did to the Indians and the slaves, that there is still too much poverty and racism in America, blah, blah, blah..."

The purpose of Thanksgiving is to be thankful for being American. This is the day to celebrate the goodness of our country - the moral goodness, the moral decency of American institutions, American history, and the character of the American people. Without any buts.

It's easy for conservatives to do this - it comes natural to us. It's the opposite for liberals, who relish and revel in incessant guilt-mongering - and can't celebrate a Thanksgiving with no buts.

So this day, we can relish and revel in the capitalist freedom and abundance that Providence enabled the Pilgrims to choose, and create America thereby.

That freedom and abundance is today being threatened as never before by a Fascist Left determined to destroy it. Now more than ever is the time to focus anew on all that we love about our country, to know that Providence has always smiled upon it - for we, like the Pilgrims have the capacity to choose capitalist freedom over socialist slavery.

With that choice, the original Americans created a civilization out of the wilderness. With that choice, we Americans of today can rescue our civilization from the wilderness of the Fascist Left led by President Zero.

That choice liberates us from their power-lust and make us impervious to the poison of anti-America hate that eats at all liberal souls. That is why we are what they are not: grateful for our country, for the very existence of America, for the priceless privilege of being an American.

Happy Thanksgiving to you all.

I've been noticing lately that too many so called Christians actually hate Jesus and His teachings. Without Jesus, you have NO Christianity.

On a brighter, more cheerful note, Santa Clause and the Easter Rabbit

Pt.2 http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Dvuxr7v4xzk

"Just as the Left was drawn to the communist killing machines of Lenin, Stalin, Mao, Pol Pot, and Castro, so too it is now attracted to radical Islam."

"The contempt that German Hitlerytes had for "Bolshevism" or "marxist Jews" generally should also not mislead us in assessing the similarity between National Socialism and Communism. Leftist sects are very prone to rivalry, dissension, schism and hatred of one-another. One has only to think of the Bolsheviks versus the Mensheviks, Stalin versus Trotsky, China versus the Soviet Union etc. Similarity does not preclude rivalry. Hitler and Stalin were literally brothers in arms BEFORE they became rivals. That socialist brothers sometimes fall out should not prevent us from noting the brotherhood concerned."

"The fundamental dogma of all brands of socialism and communism is that the market economy or capitalism is a system that hurts the vital interests of the immense majority of people for the sole benefit of a small minority of rugged individualists. It condemns the masses to progressing impoverishment. It brings about misery, slavery, oppression, degradation and exploitation of the working men, while it enriches a class of idle and useless parasites."

"This doctrine was not the work of Karl Marx. It had been developed long before Marx entered the scene. Its most successful propagators were not the Marxian authors, but such men as Carlyle and Ruskin, the British Fabians, the German professors and the American Institutionalists. And it is a very significant fact that the correctness of this dogma was contested only by a few economists who were very soon silenced and barred from access to the universities, the press, the leadership of political parties and, first of all, public office. Public opinion by and large accepted the condemnation of capitalism without any reservation."

"The term 'planning' is mostly used as a synonym for socialism, communism, and authoritarian and totalitarian economic management. Sometimes only the German pattern of socialism-Zwangswirtschaft-is called planning, while the term socialism proper is reserved for the Russian pattern of outright socialization and bureaucratic operation of all plants, shops, and farms. At any rate, planning in this sense means all-around planning by the government and enforcement of these plans by the police power. Planning in this sense means full government control of business. It is the antithesis of free enterprise, private initiative, private ownership of the means of production, market economy, and the price system. Planning and capitalism are utterly incompatible. Within a system of planning production is conducted according to the government's orders, not according to the plans of capitalists and entrepreneurs eager to profit by best filling the wants of the consumers.

"But the term planning is also used in a second sense. Lord Keynes, Sir William Beveridge, Professor Hansen, and many other eminent men assert that they do not want to substitute totalitarian slavery for freedom. They declare that they are planing for a free society. They recommend a third system, which, as they say, is as far from socialism as it is from capitalism, which, as a third solution of the problem of society's economic organization, stands midway between the two other systems, and while retaining the advantages of both, avoids the disadvantages inherent in each.

"These self-styled progressives are certainly mistaken when they pretend that their proposals are new and unheard of. The idea of this third solution is very old indeed, and the French have long since baptized it with a pertinent name; they call it interventionism.

Hardly anybody can doubt that history will link the idea of social security, more closely than with the American New Deal and with Sir William Beveridge, with the memory of Bismarck whom our fathers did not precisely describe as a liberal. All the essential ideas of present-day interventionist progressivism were neatly expounded by the supreme brain-trusters of imperial Germany, Professors Schmoller and Wagner, who at the same time urged their Kaiser to invade and to conquer the Americas. Far be it from me to condemn any idea only on account of its not being new. But as the progressives slander all their opponents as old-fashioned, orthodox, and reactionary, it is expedient to observe that it would be more appropriate to speak of the clash of two orthodoxies; the Bismarck orthodoxy versus the Jefferson orthodoxy.

The origins of the modern left can be traced back to the famous passage in Rousseau's Discourse on the Origin and Foundations of Inequality, in which he condemned the institution of private property:

"The first man, who after enclosing a piece of ground, took it into his head to say, 'this is mine,' and found people simple enough to believe him, was the real founder of civil society."

Added Rousseau: "How many crimes, how many wars, how many murders, how many misfortunes and horrors, would that man have saved the human species, who pulling up the stakes or filling up the ditches should have cried to his fellows: Beware of listening to this impostor; you are lost, if you forget that the fruits of the earth belong equally to us all, and the earth itself to nobody!"

Around the 1830s, a faction of French liberals gravitated toward Romanticism and the philosophy of the late Rousseau, proclaiming that capitalism, private property, and the increasing complexity of modern society were agents of moral decay -- both for the individual and for society at large. This is essentially the worldview that has made its way, through history, into the collective mind of the modern left; it is a worldview calling for a revolution that not only will topple the existing capitalist order and punish its corrupt leaders, but that also will replace that order with a socialist regime where the utopian ideals of perfect justice and equality will reign. Such an ambition can be put into effect only by a totalitarian state with the authority to micromanage every facet of human life, precisely the end-point toward which the policies and crusades of the modern left are directed.

When the term "liberalism" (from the Latin word liberalis, meaning "pertaining to a free man") first emerged in the early 1800s, its hallmarks were a belief in individual rights, the rule of law, limited government, private property, and laissez faire economics. These would remain the defining characteristics of liberalism throughout the liberal epoch (generally identified as the period of 1815-1914). Yet the modern left, which portrays itself as the agent of enlightened commitment to “liberal” causes, in fact stands for the antithesis of each of the foregoing liberal ideals. Contrary to its self-definition, the left is neither “liberal” nor “progressive,” but rather a reactionary force that seeks to resurrect the traditions that characterized the epoch which preceded the rise of classical liberalism.

The following is from The World Book Encyclopedia, 1947 edition:
The chief characteristics of Fascism are as follows:

THE CULTIVATION OF IGNORANCE

Fascism, like all forms of government, rests firmly on the sincere consent of a large part of the population... To maintain this consent, the Fascist leadership must cut off the people from any information which might cause them to doubt the complete correctness of the fixed Fascist principles... All forms of communication are carefully censored, so that the public will receive only those facts that the dictators want known... Travel to other countries must be controlled, and freedom of speech and assembly must be rigorously suppressed...

http://www.americanthinker.com/blog/2010/10/arrest_warrant_filed_for_rahms.html
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=sce0TLA5UYE

SUPPRESSION OF LABOR AND INDUSTRY

Fascism in Italy and Germany at first won the support of the wealthy classes, both landed and industrial... These people saw in Fascism a protection against the demands of farmers and other workers... Both regimes at first upheld the rights of private property... They subjected the working classes to a rigorous discipline... As soon as they were firmly established, the dictators began to limit profit, impose capital levies, and regulate business in great detail...

Employment Rates under Liberal Fascism
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9ssIhiD8kKM

THE POLICE STATE

Fascism depends upon the police to crush all opposition or dissent. Secret police spy on the whole population, and any casual remark against the regime leads to swift and severe punishment... Opposition parties are dissolved. Intellectual, athletic and recreational organizations are usually brought under the control of the Fascist authority... The ruthlessness of the police gradually becomes less noticeable... This is because within a year or so after a Fascist government takes power, vigorous opponents of the regime have either left the country, been killed or jailed...

.....sound..familiar?.....

EXTREME NATIONALISM

Fascism is highly nationalistic... It tries to identify its principles with the country, so that disagreement will look like treason... Some other country, or some group within the country, is chosen to serve as the "enemy" and made to appear as the cause of all evils or misfortunes... For example, the Nazis in Germany represented their movement first as a crusade against the Jews, then as a fight against Communism and later as a struggle against the "attacks" from whatever neighboring country they wished to subdue or occupy... Extreme nationalism often becomes a kind of racial fanaticism... Sometimes it combines racial and religious bigotry...

When you hear the Liberal Fascist JackAss propaganda that THEY are the true patriots then you know the time is near. Look for it from the socialist Labor Unions such as the SEIU!

MILITARISM

Fascism maintains among the people a permanently warlike frame of mind... Every citizen feels that he is mobilized against enemies of the regime from within, and against possible foreign foes... The dictator usually comes to power during a period of economic crisis or depression... He relieves the depression partly by employing many people in the making of armaments... To justify this procedure, he must convince the people that the country is threatened, and must point toward some of the enemies against whom the armaments may be needed...

Listen to 0baMa0's rhetoric and his fascistic support from the Liberals
.....sound..familiar?.....

Here are the Three (3) Phases of Liberal Decay into Fascism:

1. Liberalism (Well Meaning, Nice Sounding, "Do-Gooder" Policies Always Doomed to Fail)

2. Liberal-Progressivism (The Drive for Social Improvement through Change and Promising Hope;

More Draconian Liberal Polices are Implemented to Transform The People into a New Society that
Is Guided by 'The Party') The Party Elite Have Complete Power and Rule Un-Checked.

3. Liberal-Fascism (The Rise of the Party Leader over 'The Party' Ensuring the Unity and Uniformaty of 'The Party' and Enforcing The Will of 'The Party' Over the People.) The Party Leader will Cleanse 'The Party' of All those Who Are NOT of 'The Party'; and 'The Party' Will Cleanse the People of All Those Who Do NOT Support 'The Party' and The Party Leader. The Party Leader Now Has Complete and Total Power and Rules by the Force of His Iron Will.

Brother/Sister Are You "OF" 'The Party' ?

Does The Teaching Of 'The Party' Abide Within You ?

Does The Thoughts Of 'The Party' "Leader" Guide Your Thoughts ?

Let 'The Party' Change Your Life and Transform You !

Let 'The Party' Give You Hope and Renew You !

When you vote cut them off at the knees from your Tax Dollars.
Vote with your wallet.

So, AshkeNAZI is acceptable?

Out of curiosity, if you hate the United Nations so much and can't think of a thing they've done right, why would their decision to steal land from Palestinians in order to give it to Russian and New York immigrants be moral?

I think it's the biggest mistake the UN has ever made.

The original Americans were the people who were here when the crazy cultists arrived from Holland or wherever they came from. My people also killed Indians, but we've always been pro-business.

To equate what happened in Plymouth to derivatives trading is ludicrous.

Options traders are parasites. They are going for the crumbs.

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

RADIO CONDITIONS were unsettled this week, but N2IRJï¿½s superb low-noise receiving setup allowed excellent copy of almost all stations on the latest session of the Liberty Net, and there were a large number of new stations checking in as the word spreads about the most exciting net on amateur radio. Since the BBCï¿½s DRM transmission has been wiping out the area around 3950 kHz (why canï¿½t the broadcasters move to 90 meters and leave 75 meters alone?), the net has been favoring 3966 kHz.

Hereï¿½s a small sample of the issues discussed this time on amateur radioï¿½s longest-running discussion net:

ï¿½ We hear an amazing firsthand account of W8LDWï¿½s recent experiences with ï¿½airport securityï¿½ and the TSA, who are criminally violating our constitutional rights with their so-called ï¿½enhanced securityï¿½ procedures. These blue-shirted, gold-badged bureaucrats treat Americans as ï¿½animals to be contained and caged and poked and prodded and irradiated.ï¿½ (25 minutes)

ï¿½ The misnamed ï¿½Food Safety Actï¿½ criminalizes many small farms and home gardens ï¿½ what kind of tyranny makes it a crime for a man to grow his own vegetables? ï¿½ and benefits only agribusiness and the regulators theyï¿½re in bed with. (58 minutes)

ï¿½ Profiling is the answer to airport security without hassling or violating the rights of ordinary Americans. When you or I see a bunny rabbit in the woods, we ï¿½profileï¿½ it based on the past behavior of bunny rabbits. We do the same for rattlesnakes. And, if weï¿½re sane, we ought to do the same for human groups. (1 hour 12 minutes)

ï¿½ The super-rich are doing everything they can ï¿½ whether through confiscatory taxation that forces property sales, or by jiggering the banking system in order to cause foreclosures ï¿½ to divest ordinary Americans from our property. And, without property, we will not be able to preserve our familiesï¿½ wealth and secure home base from generation to generation, and we will therefore become the serfs of the multibillionaires who will, I assure you, still own real property. (1 hour 50 minutes)

ï¿½ As more and more formerly financially secure Americans become impoverished, they are often selling off their valuables and heirlooms just to put off bankruptcy for a few more months or years. A far better way for them to get their money back would be for them to join together, and humanely and legally place the Congressmen and bankers who have raped them upside down on a sturdy pole; and then shake the rapists vigorously to cause their ill-gotten shekels to fall from their pockets. (2 hours 1 minute)

ï¿½ Is China ï¿½ which already has an effective monopoly of labor ï¿½ going to embargo the rare earth elements needed for high-tech devices, on which it also has a near-monopoly? (3 hours 2 minutes)

Remember that you can receive the Liberty Net on the nearest clear frequency to 3950 kHz (lately thatï¿½s been 3966 kHz) every Saturday night at 10PM Eastern Time ï¿½ or listen live on the Internet via N2SAG or N2IRJ, or listen at your leisure via the mp3 files posted here at http://3950.net every week, usually on Sunday and visible in the upper right column of the site.

Once again, thanks to W1WCR for running this important and historic discussion net, and thanks also to N2IRJ for making these recordings available.

Chapter 1: Financing the 1933 Elections
On the cold winter weekend of January 28, 1933, Germany was officially without a government. Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher and his cabinet had resigned on Saturday afternoon, and eighty-six-year-old President von Hindenburg had not yet appointed a new chancellor. A nervous tension spread over Berlin. Everyone waited for news; most felt Germany was at an historic turning point.
Who would be the next chancellor? Hitler - the leader of the largest party, the Nazis, who pledged to destroy democracy? Papen - the aristocratic horseman who had been chancellor before Schleicher, but who had no popular following? Perhaps Schleicher again, if he could persuade the Social Democrats, the second largest political party in the country, to join him in a coalition? Governing Germany in the middle of an economic depression with nine million unemployed was not an enviable task. The country had just had three different chancellors in rapid succession. By tradition, the leader of the largest party was usually appointed chancellor. But the Nazis had been the largest party for over a year, and so far intrigues and political maneuvering had succeeded in keeping Hitler out of power. Everyone guessed what a Hitler government would mean. He had not kept his militarism, anti-Semitism, and dictatorial ambitions a secret.
Political intrigues were so numerous that weekend that no one really knew what was going on. Sensational rumors were being spread throughout the city. Some said an army coup was imminent, that Schleicher and the generals were about to abduct President von Hindenburg and declare martial law. There were also rumors of an armed Nazi uprising and a general strike by the socialist workers.
Hitler and Hermann Goering, the second most powerful man in the Nazi party, stayed up all night on Sunday, January 29, trying to figure out what Hindenburg might do. It was not until after 10 A.M. on Monday that Hitler received a summons to the president's office. Even at that point, the Nazis were not certain whether Hitler would be appointed chancellor or Hindenburg would ask him to serve as vice-chancellor. Across the street from the Chancellery, in the Kaiserhof Hotel, Hitler's lieutenants were waiting, unsure of what was going on. Goebbels, the Nazi propaganda chief, said:

In the street the crowd stands waiting between the Kaiserhof and the Chancellery. We are torn between doubt, hope, joy and despair. We have been deceived too often to be able, wholeheartedly, to believe in the great miracle. [S.A.] Chief of Staff Roehm stands at the window (with binoculars) watching the door of the Chancellery from which the Fuehrer [the leader, Hitler] must emerge. We shall be able to judge by his face if the interview was a success. Torturing hours of waiting. At last, a car draws up in front of the entrance. The crowd cheers. They seem to feel that a great change is taking place....
A few moments later, he is with us. He says nothing. His eyes are full of tears. It has come! The Fuehrer is appointed Chancellor. He has already been sworn in by the President of the Reich. All of us are dumb with emotion. Everyone clasps the Fuehrer's hand....Outside the Kaiserhof, the masses are in a wild uproar....The thousands soon become tens of thousands. Endless streams of people flood the Wilhelmstrasse. We set to work...at once.
Hitler's victory was not a complete one by any means. He had been appointed chancellor in a coalition government. Papen was to be his vice-chancellor, and all the powerful cabinet posts were held by Papen's conservative allies, rather than the Nazis. But at the moment, Hitler's followers weren't worried about the details; for them the only thing that mattered was that Hitler was chancellor. They had come to power! All day, crowds gathered in the square outside the Kaiserhof Hotel and the Chancellery.
At dusk Nazi storm troopers in their brown uniforms gathered in the Tiergarten park, along with men of the Stahlhelm, an ultranationalistic veterans' organization, for a torchlight victory parade through the center of Berlin. As soon as it was dark, they came marching by the thousands through the Brandenburg Gate, carrying swastika flags and the black, white, and red flags of the German empire. Bands marched between the units, beating their big drums as the men sang old German military songs. But as each band came to the Pariser Platz, where the French embassy was located, they stopped whatever they were playing and, with an introductory roll of drums, broke into the tune of the challenging war song "Victorious We Will Crush the French."
The torches carried by the marchers glowed hypnotically in the darkness. To foreign witnesses, it was a frightening sight. "The river of fire flowed past the French Embassy," Ambassador François-Poncet wrote, "whence, with heavy heart and filled with foreboding, I watched this luminous wake." Liberal Germans found it an "ominous sight." It was, wrote one German reporter, "a night of deadly menace, a nightmare in...blazing torches."

As the marchers came by the Chancellery, there were tumultuous cheers for Hitler, who stood in an open window saluting them. He was so excited that night, he could hardly stand still. He was raising his arm up and down heiling, smiling, and laughing so much, his eyes filled with tears. "It was an extraordinary experience," recalled Papen, who was standing behind Hitler. "The endless repetition of the triumphal cry: 'Heil, Heil, Sieg Heil!' rang in my ears like a tocsin." When Hitler turned to speak with Papen, his voice choked with emotion. "What an immense task we have set for ourselves, Herr von Papen - we must never part until our work is accomplished." Hitler and Papen were much closer allies than anyone at the time imagined.
It was after midnight when the parade ended. Being too excited to sleep, Hitler, Goering, Goebbels, and a few other Nazis sat up talking for hours. They could hardly believe it had actually happened: they were in the Chancellery at last. That evening, Hitler said to Goebbels, "No one gets me out of here alive." It was one of the few promises he kept.
On the morning of January 31, Hitler's storm troopers gave the German people a glimpse of what Nazi rule would be like. All over Germany, thugs in brown shirts took possession of the streets and roughed up Communists, socialists, and Jews; they chased socialist mayors and officials out of government buildings and even broke into the private homes of their political enemies. When people complained to Papen, he laughed. "Let the storm troopers have their fling." Among his friends at the Herrenklub, an exclusive gentlemens club, he boasted: "We've hired Hitler." To a skeptic he replied: "What do you want? I have Hindenburg's confidence. Within two months we will have pushed Hitler so far in the corner that he'll squeak."
The facts seemed to support Papen's optimism. Not only did Papen have Hindenburg"s confidence, but in fact the old president had promised never to receive Hitler unless he was accompanied by his vice-chancellor. Papen also held the important post of minister-president of Prussia, Germany's largest and most powerful state. From the composition of the cabinet, it seemed all the real power was in the hands of the conservatives: the aristocratic General von Blomberg was minister of defense, Baron von Neurath, a career diplomat, was foreign minister, and the old archreactionary Hugenberg was both minister of economics and minister of agriculture. The Nazis were outnumbered six to two.
The two Nazis in the cabinet, Wilhelm Frick and Goering, held posts that were thought to be insignificant. Frick was minister of the interior, but he did not control the police, which in Germany was under the jurisdiction of the individual state governments. Goering was made minister without portfolio, but with the promise that he would be minister of aviation as soon as Germany had an air force. He was also named minister of the interior of Prussia, an office that did not receive much notice by the public but did control the Prussian police.
The aristocrats and gentlemen of the Right who made up the majority of Hitler's cabinet hated the concept of democracy even more than the Nazis did. These men belonged to the old ruling class of the kaiser's Germany. They wanted to regain their old position of supremacy, lost in 1918. They wanted to restore the monarchy, suppress the socialist unions, avenge the loss of World War I, and make Germany the dominant power in Europe. It was obvious why such reactionary nationalists helped put Hitler in power: their goals and his were very similar.

Few people knew the full extent of Papen's collaboration with Hitler. Historians have said he "did more than anyone else outside the Nazi party to help Hitler to power." Papen helped Hitler because he was trying to control him and use the Nazis for his own aims.
Papen was a handsome aristocratic-looking man with distinguished gray hair and an officer's mustache. From an impoverished family of the Westphalian nobility, he became a General Staff officer, a skillful horseman, and a man of great charm. After a successful marriage to the daughter of a wealthy Saar industrialist, he bought a large block of shares in the Center party's newspaper, Germania. For a short time in 1932, Papen was chancellor, but his government had no popular support. Papen believed it would be rather easy for an aristocratic officer like himself to manipulate a former corporal, like Hitler, and thus be able to use the Nazi's mass following to accomplish the aims of the upper-class conservative nationalists.
Hitler immediately began to outmaneuver his conservative colleagues. He reported to the cabinet that the Center party was making impossible demands and could not be counted on to form a coalition with the Nazis and the Nationalists that would have a majority in the Reichstag. Because of this situation, Hitler argued he would have to call for new elections. The only "demand" the Center party made was that Hitler promise to govern constitutionally, but none of the other members of the cabinet bothered to check Hitler's statement. They agreed to new elections on the condition that Hitler promise that the composition of the cabinet would not change regardless of the outcome of the voting. New elections would provide Hitler with a chance to improve on the poor results the Nazis had received at the polls the past November. If the Nazis won a clear majority in the elections, they might be able to get rid of their coalition partners. Hitler had every reason to believe the election campaign would be a big success. The entire machinery of government, including the radio, was now under Nazi control and could be used for campaigning. The party had been flooded with new applicants for membership since he had become chancellor. In the cabinet meeting on February 2, Hitler discussed his preparations for the elections. Wilhelm Frick, the Nazi minister of the interior, proposed that the government set aside a million marks for the election campaign. Count von Schwerin von Krosigk, the minister of finance, rejected this suggestion. Hitler did not force the issue. He would have to get the money elsewhere.
The theme of the Nazi election campaign was to be the fight against communism. Hitler opened the attack in a late-night radio broadcast to the nation on February 1. He blamed the hard times Germany had gone through since 1918 on the Social Democrats, which had been the largest party in the Reichstag during most of those years. The Social Democrats, he reminded his listeners, were actually a Marxist party. "Fourteen years of Marxism," he said, "have ruined Germany; one year of bolshevism [communism] would destroy her. The richest and fairest territories of the world would be turned into a smoking heap of ruins. Even the sufferings of the last decade and a half could not be compared to the misery of a Europe in the heart of which the red flag of destruction has been hoisted." He went on to promise to put the unemployed back to work and save the peasants from bankruptcy.

On his fourth day in office, just after opening the election campaign, Hitler took time off to attend a very important dinner. He had been invited to the home of General von Hammerstein, chief of staff of the army, to meet the leading officers of the army and navy. In a speech that lasted almost two hours, Hitler explained his plans for rebuilding German military power.
The generals were the real power in Germany during the Weimar period. After World War II, many Germans tried to cover up the role certain members of the Officer Corps had played in helping to put Hitler in power. Many historians naively accepted this view, but the real story is quite different. Traditionally, the German Army ruled from behind the scenes and had the final "power to veto" any important issue. After the loss of World War I, the Versailles Treaty severely restricted the size of the German Army. The only way the generals could maintain mass training and develop new weapons was to finance private paramilitary units, like the Free Corps, with secret army funds.
Hitler not only began his career as an army agent, but even in the 1930s he was supported by a powerful faction in the army. Over several years, General von Schleicher, who was in charge of a secret informal political department of the army, funneled over ten million marks to Hitler. Why? Many military officers wanted an authoritarian government that could unify the nation. The people needed to be infused with a new spirit of patriotism because powerful interests were planning a war of revenge against the Allies. Naturally there was a division of opinion among the generals as to how much power to give Hitler. Hindenburg originally had strong reservations about appointing a man from a lower-class background, like Hitler, chancellor. However, the aggressive action the Nazis took against Communists was admired by Hindenburg, and his relationship with Hitler rapidly improved.
One day, Hindenburg summoned Hitler when Papen was away from Berlin. Hitler informed the president that Papen was out of town and reminded him of the rule he (Hindenburg) had made, that the chancellor could visit him only when accompanied by the vice-chancellor. "The old gentleman [Hindenburg]," said Hitler, "replied that he wished to see me alone, and that in the future the presence of Papen could be regarded as unnecessary. Within three weeks, he had progressed so far that his attitude towards me became affectionate and paternal. Talking of the elections fixed for the 3rd of March, he said, 'What are we going to do if you fail to get a majority? We shall have the same difficulties all over again.'"

At the beginning of the election campaign, Hitler and Papen persuaded old President von Hindenburg to sign an emergency decree to protect law and order. The decree gave Nazi officials the right to prohibit public meetings. Newspapers could be suppressed if they "incited" civil disobedience or published "false" reports.

The hunger for power, and the taste for abuse, does not define and is not defined by a left/right paradigm. Similarly, the hunger for power need not be rooted in anything more than a vision of how things may/should/could/need to be.

Anyone, from any point on the political contiuum, may be driven to acquire power. And not all are pathological. Some may genuinely believe such drive is of the purest altruistic motives. How many wars, purges, and acts of genocide were initiated in the name of peace?

Such a person will, by default, hate democracy, and any number of groups, ethnicities, and/or political intents that become politically inconvenient. Or useful. How many times have we heard in the last half century, 'never let a crisis go to waste.'

All that is required for the abuse of power, is a belief that the ends justify the means. And that belief is not limited to either the left, or the right. Anyone may have it, develop it, or evolve to it.

In other words...

One not need be on the right to hunger for and enjoy the abuse of power.

that is pretty much correct, except, the right has a much longer history of offenses against humanity than the extreme left. the extreme left is a human auto response to out of control capitalism, which lasted for 200 years. the out of control capitalism was defeated in 1945, but its on the rise again. both extremes are bad though.

i see little difference between a free market economy(fascism), or a communist economy(marxism), in either system, almost all wealth and power end up in the hands of a few.

That's like saying you envy the rapist for all the sex they're getting.

Avarice, greed, theft, fraud and dishonesty in the extreme are nothing to be jealous of.

Money earned honestly and by due diligence is nothing to be ashamed of.

Don't you think that dogs reflect the environment that they were raised in? I've never owned a pit bull, but anecdotal stories indicate that they are no better or worse than other dogs.

I had a Pit mix for 14 and a half years, he never wanted to hurt anyone, and he took a long time to even anger to the point of even defending himself when he was attacked several times during walks. Every dog who pushed him to that point regretted attacking him when it was over. It's kind of like attacking a martial arts expert, hoping he won't defend himself. Odds are, it won't happen.

Pits are just the latest, and worst, victims of an hysterical press. Dobermans, German Shepherds, and a couple others are past victims. I had a friend with an 80 pound Pit who slept with his daughter almost every night from infancy (They didn't know he was getting into bed with her for a long time, he was good at getting in and out without them catching him) until he died over 13 years later. They never had to worry about anything happening to her while he was alive. He guarded her like she was his puppy. When he (and the girl) met the one grandmother the first time, he wouldn't let grandma anywhere close to her until he got the ok from my friend's wife and him. Then he was fine with her picking up the baby, etc. Grandma cried almost as much as the girl did when he died.

Power is inherently corrupt. No one is immune. People who need leaders

I've had dear Roy on a filter since shortly after his resurrection. I don't mind an occasional non-sequitur [sic] but to just go on and on like he does; one must assume there's a pathology involved. You shouldn't hang with crazies, it is contagious. Glenn Beck is hazardous to your mental health.

Religion is the last thing we need right now. We need everyone to have their wits about them to get through this slow motion disaster.

Brother Peter listens to Citadel Broadcasting all day long, which means a right wing local morning show, Limbaugh, Hannity, either Savage or Levin, then a right wing afternoon drive local show. He listens to headlines on NPR, but it just reinforces his perception of a giant socialist media conspiracy. He cant listen to the BBC World Service anymore, because they're "in on it" too. Truthiness is French and gay.

It is. Whatever capitalism used to be, today it is not. It originally provided opportunity to take a risk and maybe make some money. No guarantee, but an even playing field. The reward was proportional to the risk taken by the capitalist.

Today there is much less risk but much more reward. Profits are privatized; liabilities are too often are written off, leaving the rest of us to take up the slack, essentially socializing the risk and removing it from the equation.

The playing field is nowhere close to even. You support a flawed obscene institution.

Turbo and Prop Engines place into and moving through the Earths Atmosphere spreads and amplifies the actual Pollution on Global Scale.

However - Passenger Cars Pollute More when Measured on a Per-Passenger-Mile Metric Plus there are many many more Cars in use than Airplanes : Resulting many more pounds of Pollutants
-but- The nature of the Car/Truck Engine and it's proximity to the ground 'localizes' the Pollution.

Therefore America Needs {The World Needs} an Improved Nation Wide Rail Transportation System for both Freight and Especially Passengers http://www.aar.org/PubCommon/Documents/AboutTheIndustry/Overview.pdf

IMHO : For the 21st Century the USA needs a completely new roadbed of Triple (3) Track National System of Interstate and Defense RailRoads : One Exclusive Track just for Passengers and 2 others for Fright.

-why- Internal to the USA : RailRoads are the most Efficient Movers of People and Goods and the least Polluting.

-translation- INVEST IN AMERICAN RAILROADS ! ~ RHF

NOTE - Replace the old Diesel Electric Train Engines with newer modern designed Steam Train Engines for greater efficiency and lower pollution.

Back in the horse and buggy days, there was horse poop and horse urine everywhere.And there weren't hardly any paved streets and paved roads anywhere.And when it rained, those roads and streets had horse poop and horse urine all mixed up in those dirt roads and dirt streets.In the hot Summer time, those horses were dropping dead in the roads and streets and those flies everywhere too.You really had to watch your step when crossing the street.

My nerves would not be the bottleneck. I used to drive to Mt. Wilson all the time. There are places on the road where it's close to 1,000' straight down if you wander off the side. People died on that trip, all the time. The transmitter site itself is already a mile above the city, so the towers are only a few hundred feet tall.

I have hired many engineers with tower skills over the years, from guys using nylon tow rope and a 12V windlass to companies with 5,000' of wire rope on hydraulic spool thingies.

It's against the law for them to work at night in most instances, but they do anyway. They don't like help from spotlights. It's like a giant erector set in the moonlight. Don't park under the tower.

You do realize it's a lot easier to just turn the mower halfway over and drain from the fill plug, than it is to turn it all the way over, remove the drain plug, turn it all the way back, taking careful aim, waiting, then turning it all the way over again to replace the plug, You do realize this is why a sane person doesn't need to know where the plug on the bottom is.

Until fairly recently it was customary to pull off the road to allow passing by faster traffic. They start dismantling the whole "Drive

There is a certain city high speed freeway in Houston, I have been on it before.I don't remember the name of it, I think the name starts with a K.If you aren't doing a million miles per hour, you better stay off of that freeway! I took the first exit I could and I wound up next to an old shopping mall.I drove on the slower speed streets untill I got out of Houston.That was back in 1992 or 1993 when I visited Mexico for five days, on my vacation.

What would be a good price buying a refurbished one?

Exactly what were the top three main reasons it was discontinued?

Should I seek out one? Or just be happy with my Sony 2010 which works fine.

If I can find a new one, or a refurbished one for $300.00 would that be a good deal?

Eton isn't saying, directly. I've asked. Only got a confirmation that it was being discontinued. Nothing more.

The reason a radio comes out of production, especially this radio, can be wide and varied. Low sales usually tops the list. This is an expensive radio to produce. There simply may not have been sufficient interest to keep the line alive.

In the case of this particular radio, parts availability had stalled production for more than a decade. The processor chip, in particular, discontinued prior to production as Sat 900, was quite a seemingly insurmountable problem.

A similar snag in chip availability would require a retooling of the motherboard, which, given low sales would be cost prohibitive.

Then, again, the radio was in production for a couple of years.
That's a long run for some models with mediocre sales. The production strategy may simply have run its course.

But, until Eton speaks definitively on the subject, ANY conversation is strictly speculative.

One cannot have TOO many radios.

The Eton line is not known for robust support. Or support with mulitiple options. There is no service data published for this radio. And parts availability is limited to items that may be self serviced without technical expertise, like antennae, knobs, adaptors, and external components. Before you buy, verify that 1)
YOU are capable of servicing this radio, or 2) that factory support exists.

As to price....that's entirely a matter of your desire to own one. $300 was a street retail price new. A refurb, or NOS should be prices less.

I once saw a lawn mower tip in a Popular Mechanics magazine many years ago.What it is, get a few pieces of pipe and rig your lawn mower muffler so it is aimed down close to the ground, suppose to kill off nasty insects while you are mowing the grass.Be careful you don't start any grass fires.

Nobody knows the actual figures. Paper work in prisons gets fucked up too. I just got out of prison today, on a bond pending appeal in a medical marijuana test case. The last couple months have been very educational; I shouldda gone a long time ago.

The crying need is for halfway houses that are not hindered by Xian propaganda, which inherently guilt trips. They should also be setup for long term residency with 'sheltered workshops' cause a lotta inmates are too retarded to be educated in any field that still has employment opportunities.

Hominid evolution over the past few millennia shows lotsa men would be adapted to agrarian villages where the witches did the brewing and hosted (safe) sex drinking parties where nobody hadda drive home on, say, the new and full moons. Add in the livestock, orchards, and gardens, and most - considering the above fringe benefits would never want to leave.

The witches also provided herbal birth control; so if nobody is driving drunk or stoned, who cares as long as the women dont become welfare queens and the witches (case managers) all keep them out of trouble?

Oh yeah. Thing about this kind of sex is that men who dont own women, dont fight over them. Nobody gets raped or violently attacked. Gonzo cheaper than prisons also.

Xians mite say they are not saved and headed for hell; as may be, but that's not a taxpayer problem.

A Shortwave Radio as very good {exceptional} as the Eton "E1" with the XM 'Satellite' Option being distributed by the Eton Corp {Grundig NA] and using the "Eton" Brand Name -imho- Would not sell as well as a the same Shortwave Radio using the "Grundig: and "Satellit" Brand Names without the XM 'Satellite' Option*

* Since by using the true Grundig "Satellit" Brand Name Eton Corp would not have to try an end-around by offereing an XM 'Satellite' Option in order to work the name 'Satellit'e into the product name.

Had the Eton "E1" with the XM 'Satellite' Option been named the Grundig Satellit 900 Radio it's sales would have been significantly greater; simply because of the Grundig Satellit Brand Name and the 'myth' of the soon-to-be {but-never-was} Grundig Satellit 900 Radio.

But then too look at the Grundig Satellit 800-M Radio which only had a 3~5 Year Production Run.

Consumer Electronics* is a 1~3~5 Product Churn Market with a constant need to be offering some thing that is New and Impoved {Exciting} to Capture the Buyer's Interest and Imagination in a Highly Competitive Market Place.

* The Latest Toy with the Most Bells and Whistles $500 Shortwave Radio = $500 Lap-Top = $500 HDTV etc...

The death of the Eton 'E1' Shortwave Radio was the introduction of the Grundig Satellit 750 Shortwave

Radio -by- Eton Corp : In with the latest new and exciting -and- out with the old . . .

Sad fact is more people under the age of 25 in the USA know who Joe Biden is; than have heard of Shortwave Radio. Shortwave Radio is a dying {some say dead} Consumer Electronics Market.

Good decision. They won't be sold or manufactured for much longer.

Frequencies are in kHz. Usual spacing in shortwave broadcast bands is 5 kHz. Frequencies above 10000 kHz tend to propagate better during the day; frequencies below 10000 kHz tend to propagate better at night.

Phone line as SW antenna

Changes preceded by "|".

WARNINGS AND DISCLAIMERS

Connecting unapproved devices to phone lines may be illegal in your area. Telephone lines present a potential shock hazard. Do not use this antenna for transmitting. Use at your own risk.

INTRODUCTION

This article describes how to use a phone line as a shortwave receiving antenna. Performance will vary depending on the kind of phone line you have. Overhead lines usually make okay antennas, while underground lines | usually don't. Phone lines carrying DSL service may be unsuitable because | DSL operates over a wide spectrum. A phone line antenna will generally pick up more power line noise than a dedicated antenna, so don't expect to | use it for DX work. Nevertheless, I found that it outperformed the
| telescopic whip antennas built into many portables.

A reader sent in this suggestion: If you're concerned about connecting the phone line directly to the receiver, try wrapping the phone cord several times around the receiver's telescopic whip antenna instead. Performance may not be as good as a direct connection, but it will probably be better than the whip antenna by itself.

Someone else wrote asking about lightning protection. I haven't thought much about it because thunderstorms are rare in my area. Most phone lines have lightning arrestors on them where they enter the house, but the lightning arrestors may pass enough energy during a lightning strike damage a receiver. My suggestion is to disconnect the antenna when not in use if you experience frequent thunderstorms.

HOW TO DO IT

The simplest connection is a single capacitor between the phone line and receiver. The capacitor eliminates all phone line voltages, including | ringing, so that they will not harm the receiver. The capacitor should | be rated 250 volts or higher.

Phone line RF connector
red .01 uF center cond. / \ or o--------||-----------------------------|-o | To receiver
green \ /
50 ohm coax |
ground |
or o-----------------------------------------+ N.C. shield

N.C. = no connect. I originally connected the phone line ground (yellow wire) to this terminal, but reception was better without it (if you do this, play it safe and put a .01 uF capacitor in series). If another ground is available, you can connect it to this terminal.

If you are picking up local AM or FM radio stations on the shortwave bands, it is likely that your receiver is overloaded. Inexpensive and portable receivers usually lack the filtering needed to eliminate this interference, but you can make your own filters. Filters can also be | purchased from shortwave dealers (see below for recommendations).

A high-pass filter can be used to remove signals below the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from local AM stations and presents a high impedance to the phone line at audio frequencies so that the phone line remains balanced.

A low-pass filter can be used to remove signals above the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from FM and TV stations, as well as VHF 2-way radio transmitters. If you use both filters, connect the output of the first filter to the input of the second (don't forget to connect their ground terminals together). It doesn't matter which filter is connected first.

These filters also work well with random wire antennas. Just connect the antenna in place of the phone line.

The filter(s) should be connected to the phone line in this manner:

Phone line RF connector
red -------- center cond. / \
or o----| |-------------------------|-o | To receiver
green | | \ /
| FILTER | 50 ohm coax |
ground | | |
or o----| |----------------------------+
N.C. -------- shield
```

FILTER PLANS

The original credit for the high-pass and low-pass filters goes to Paul Blumstein and John Shalamskas, respectively. Edited versions of their articles are included here:

Date: 09 Jan 91 00:54:08 GMT
From: paulb@harley.TTI.COM (Paul Blumstein)
Subject: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

The following ascii-schematic diagram is a high pass filter that will filter out Broadcast Band (MW) stations. I found it a great boon to my shortwave listening since local MW stations overload my ATS-803A front end & appear in SW, especially with a long antenna.

If you remember my antenna saga, I went from 50 feet to 150 feet & had overload problems causing me to cut back to 50 feet. (Even at 50 feet, I still have some MW interference). I took the advice of Gary Coffman and looked up filters in the ARRL Handbook. With the filter in place, I intend to try to increase my antenna length again.

Anywho, here is the filter, for interested parties.

--------||---+----||-----+----||-----------
} }
{ {
} }
-------------+-----------+-----------------

The outer capacitors are 1500 pf ceramic disks.
The inner capacitor is 820 pf ceramic disk.
The squiggly things are coils (two total). Each one is 2.7 uh.
(a close value will do).

From: bill@videovax.tv.tek.com (William K. McFadden)
Subject: Re: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

I built the filter that Paul Blumstein posted recently and measured it on a gain-phase analyzer. Here are its characteristics:

100 kHz -120dB
500 kHz -68dB

1000 kHz -38dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2100 kHz -3dB

The source and load impedances were 50 ohms. Because the filter has five elements, the attenuation is 30dB per octave. The measurements confirmed this.

This filter seems to be a good compromise between interference attenuation and passband response. There is very little attenuation in the 120m band and above. It could use a little more attenuation at the upper end of MW, which could be done with more stages or a higher cutoff frequency. Alternatively, you could build two of these filters and put them in series. (Since two 1500pF capacitors in series are really 750pF, you could eliminate one cap.)

Just for fun, I put 470 ohms in series with the input to see how the filter performed with an antenna mismatch. The response was:

500 kHz -60dB
1000 kHz -35dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2300 kHz -3dB

These figures are normalized to the passband response of -15dB, which is due to the impedance mismatch between the source and load and would have been there without the filter. Hence, the filter works almost as well in spite of the mismatch, which is good news to those who use long-wire antennas.

Subject: Construction of filters for SW reception

Several people have asked for construction details of the filters I built for my DX-440.

The high-pass filter helped some, but in my location the VHF/UHF broadcasters are also causing problems. So, I dug out the ARRL handbook and chose a 7-element Chebyshev low-pass design that is -3 dB at 35 MHz, -20 dB at 43 MHz, and -50 dB at 64 MHz (all calculated; it works well in practice!)

LOW-PASS FILTER (Rejects FM, TV, etc.)

chassis ground

I had to do a little more improvising at this point. I used .33 uH instead of .36, and .66 uH instead of .42, but it works fine.

The 5-lug terminal strips were perfect for these circuits, since there are 4 lugs plus a grounded lug. All "ground" connections go to the lug that is mounted to the chassis, and the other 4 lugs are used for each of the connections on the signal line. One terminal strip is used per filter. Since both filters were necessary to clean up the hash, I am going to put them both into one box when I get the time.

The proper way to connect them is in series, i.e.

signal in ------- filter 1 -------- filter 2 -------- signal out

There is no difference between ends. They are "bilateral" which means you can't possibly hook them up backwards. (In the above schematics, left and right ends are interchangeable.)

COIL WINDING

You can make the coils yourself using this formula:

L = 0.2 * B^2 * N^2 / (3B + 9A + 10C)

L is the inductance, in uH
A is the length of the coil, in inches
B is the mean diameter of the coil, in inches
C is the diameter of the wire, in inches
N is the number of turns

For small wire, you can assume C = 0.

Recently was looking at a Deck/Table Lamp at a Wal*Mart Store and several of the Boxes included a 26 Watt {~100W} CFL Bulb in them for Free.

The Deck/Table Lamps were only Rated for a 60~75
Watt Incandescent Bulb ; So the Message was two

Somewhere -iirc- I read that by putting two old Incandescent Light Bulbs in Series : That you will get about as much Light and that they will last as Long as a CFL Bulb -about 6~8 Times Longer.
-now-is-that-true-?-

Also read that putting a Diode in Series with an old Incandescent Light Bulb : That then the iBulbs will last as Long as a CFL Bulb -but- You have to use an iBulb that is rated at +50% more Watts :
40W upped-to 60W
60W upped-to 100W
75W upped-to 100W
100W upped-to 150W

Katy Fwy is I-10 West of downtown. Sometimes you go 80, sometimes you go
8. Next time take Westheimer, it's a surface street about 2 miles South.

Perhaps not. There is gathering momentum to repeal the acts that mandate their discontinuation. It's being discussed in Congress. And there's already been some European retraction of the mandate.

Awaken America !

"B-b-b-but it's his fault ... he started it"

The Washington Post babbled again today about Obama inheriting a huge deficit from Bush. Amazingly enough, a lot of people swallow this nonsense.
So once more, _a short civics lesson.

Budgets do not come from the White House. They come from Congress and the party that controlled Congress since January 2007 _is the Democratic Party_.

Furthermore, the Democrats controlled the budget process for FY 2008 and FY 2009 as well as FY 2010 and FY 2011.

In that first year, they had to contend with George Bush, which caused them to compromise on spending, when Bush somewhat belatedly got tough on spending increases.

For FY 2009 though, Nancy Pelosi and Harry Reid bypassed George Bush entirely, passing continuing resolutions to keep government running until Barack Obama could take office. At that time, they passed a massive omnibus spending bill to complete the FY 2009 budgets.

And where was Barack Obama during this time? He was a member of that very Congress that passed all of these massive spending bills, and he signed the omnibus bill as President to complete FY 2009.
Let's remember what the deficits looked like during that period:(below)

If the Democrats inherited any deficit, it was the FY 2007 deficit, the last of the Republican budgets. That deficit was the lowest in five years, and the fourth straight decline in deficit spending. After that, Democrats in Congress took control of spending, and that includes Barack Obama, who voted for the budgets.

If Obama inherited anything, he inherited it from himself..

In a nutshell, what Obama is saying is I inherited a deficit that I voted for and then I voted to expand that deficit four-fold since January 20th.

There is no way this will be widely publicized,Unless each of us sends it on! This is your chance to make a difference.

Stay Focused, Connected, Informed & Inspired...

Southern Norway has a very mild climate for it's lattitudes. Most winters it just rains for weeks at a time. But when it gets cold,occasionally,temperatures can drop to the extremes. Northern Europe is well prepared and always ready for such harsh winters. By the way, in the Bay of Bothnia (part of the Baltic Sea between Sweden and Finland) freezes so solidly for several months that one can take a bus ride!

We had SEVERAL body- parts-for-sale scandals in the last few years.
Nothing new...

Heard about this one.

1) It's currently ONLY in regards patients that have massive heart attacks and are unable to revive.
2) Once death has happened, and this is ONLY after a minimum of 30 minutes of attempt to revive, then the family must be contacted for permission for the patient to become an organ donor.
3) The potential donor, once and IF the family has given permission, is then removed to a hospital.
4) Once at the hospital, the family is then given a second chance to decide on organ donation. If they change their minds, the body may be taken to a funeral home.

Off the books spending on two illegal wars (which then Senator Obama voted against BTW) and a trillion dollar Medicare expansion were a big part of the Obama deficit. If you can't dig below the surface you should not be allowed to participate.

It is pretty fucking obvious that the Republicans are trying to bankrupt the country and blame it on anyone else.

Since the poles have warmed they are blending with the so called

FCC PROPOSES INITIAL STEPS TO OPEN TV SPECTRUM TO NEW WIRELESS BROADBAND SERVICES

Washington, D.C. -- The Federal Communications Commission today took important steps to meet the nationï¿½s demand for innovative wireless broadband services and preserve the benefits that free over-the- air TV provides for consumers.

In adopting proposals to make more efficient use of the nationï¿½s airwaves, the FCC set the stage for voluntary broadcast spectrum auctions that could provide consumers with the robust mobile broadband services they demand while preserving over-the-air TV that many rely upon. The resulting efficient use of airwaves will help ensure that America leads the global wireless revolution and enjoys the resulting jobs and economic growth.

Specifically, a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking adopted by the FCC today proposes that wireless broadband providers have equal access to television broadcast frequencies that could become available in spectrum auctions. The Notice seeks comment on establishing new allocations for both fixed and mobile wireless services in the TV broadcast bands.

The Notice also explores enabling TV stations to voluntarily combine their operations and distinct programming lineups on a single TV channel. The Notice requests comment on the proposed rules that would enable TV broadcasters to opt to share channels by further tapping the technical capabilities that became available following the nationï¿½s historic transition to digital television in 2009.

Paranoia strikes deep, eh Sparky?

You make electricity too expensive to waste by eliminating taxpayer funded subsidies on fossil fuels and nukes, and making end-users pay the true cost.

Why do you think solar costs so much more than natural gas? Because the gas producers don't have to pay for their collateral damages is a big reason.

WikiLeaks Embassy Cables Reveal Venezuela's Health-Care System
Collapsing

Some of Venezuela's public hospitals are closing. Others are ridden with crime. Many physicians are quitting medicine -- starting new careers in Venezuela or emigrating, upset at being paid a pittance or not at all. Medical supplies are in short supply.

Cuban Physicians Flee

Not surprisingly, hundreds of Cuban physicians have sought and been granted visas from the U.S. Embassy, according two separate Embassy cables describing the plight of Cuban physicians. The doctors complained of "poor working conditions, inadequate medical supplies, and of constantly being watched and monitored by co-workers," according to a "secret" Embassy cable sent in April, 2009, and titled:
"Cuban Medical Personnel Flee Venezuela."

You seem to live in a simple little world. Since at least 1945, the idea of an "ethnically pure" has had few supporters.

You must know that all Zionists are Jews, but it doesn't follow that all Jews are Zionist, at least not in the sense above. There was the possibility of a "one state" solution, which the founders of Israel abandoned back in 1945.
Israel creates its own ill will.

Israel accused of silencing political protest

Israel breaks international law by annexing occupied land, and not seeing to the welfare of the occupied population. Resistance isn't a crime.

Israel is also in defiance of UN Resolutions
<http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/List_of_United_Nations_resolutions_concerning_Israel>
40. Resolution 237: Six Day War June 14, 1967) " ... 'urges' Israel to allow return of new 1967 Palestinian refugees".
41. Resolution 240 (October 25, 1967): concerning violations of the cease-fire
42. Resolution 242 (November 22, 1967): Termination of all claims or states of belligerency and respect for and acknowledgment of the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of every State in the area. Calls on Israel's neighbors to end the state of belligerency and calls upon Israel to reciprocate by withdraw its forces from land claimed by other parties in 1967 war. Interpreted commonly today as calling for the Land for peace principle as a way to resolve Arab-Israeli conflict
43. Resolution 248: (March 24, 1968) " ... 'condemns' Israel for its massive attack on Karameh in Jordan".
44. Resolution 250: (April 27) " ... 'calls' on Israel to refrain from holding military parade in Jerusalem".

The answer is: no. Again:no. And the third time: no. They both vary in size,from very,very tiny to some truly oversized monsters.Not all apples are edible,the wild apples may be not just extremely sour but poisonous as well ! Not all oranges seem to have seeds (must be genetic mutilation involved). Juice-ok,agreed.And lastly- cleaning solutions ? Don't know. Never tried. How about apple-based liquor and orange-derived cognac ? I think (guess) S.Comfort has both as ingredients.

- You must know that all Zionists are Jews,

Actually that is NOT True in the sense that there are 'non-jews' who believed-in and worked-for the Jews Return To "The Holy Land" as a Fulfillment of Biblical Prophesy. {a matter of faith} https://zionist.org.uk/index.php?id=40 http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Christian_Zionism http://christianactionforisrael.org/4thcongress2.html http://www.informationclearinghouse.info/article12516.htm
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Zionism#Christians_supporting_Zionism

And presently there is a Large Christian "Zionist" Movement in the USA and the World that is in full 'support' of the Nation of Israel and the Existence of a Jewish-State in the Middle East.

next year,,, in jerusalem ~ RHF

- but it doesn't follow that all Jews are Zionist,

Now you do have that right :

There are 'Religious' {Observant} Jews and about an equal number of non-religious jews.
? Do You Have To Be Religious : To Be A Jew ?

There are Jews who support Israel as a Nation and about an equal number of jews that are non-supporters of Israel.
? Do You Have To Support Israel : To Be A Jew ?

There are Jews that would call themselves 'Zioists' and about an equal number of non-zionists jews.
? Do You Have To Be A Zionist : To Be A Jew ?

gee,,, sort of like 'jews' can be just like every other . . . type/class/group of peoples ~ RHF
Christians Ask Yourself -when-you-say/think-
"JEW" {Jewish} ? How Do You Define Him/Her/Them ?
-or- Are They {Jews} An "IT*" to You ?

* The Evil 'It'.

Remembering That Every Christian Has One Rabbi and His Name Is : JESUS - Amen ~ RHF

Foreign contractors hired Afghan 'dancing boys', WikiLeaks cable reveals

Episode fuelled Afghan demands that private security firms be brought much more under government control

Hanif Atmar was Afghanistan's interior minister until his resignation on 6 June this year WikiLeaks cables show Afghan interior minister Hanif Atmar was in a panic over the scandal involving foreign contractors. Atmar resigned in June this year. Photograph: Massoud Hossaini/AFP/Getty Images

A scandal involving foreign contractors employed to train Afghan policemen who took drugs and paid for young "dancing boys" to entertain them in northern Afghanistan caused such panic that the interior minister begged the US embassy to try and "quash" the story, according to one of the US embassy cables released by WikiLeaks.

In a meeting with the assistant US ambassador, a panicked Hanif Atmar, the interior minister at the time of the episode last June, warned that the story would "endanger lives" and was particularly concerned that a video of the incident might be made public.

The episode helped to fuel Afghan demands that contractors and private security companies be brought under much tighter government control. However, the US embassy was legally incapable of honouring a request by Atmar that the US military should assume authority over training centres managed by DynCorp, the US company whose employees were involved in the incident in the northern province of Kunduz.

There is a long tradition of young boys dressing up as girls and dancing for men in Afghanistan, an activity that sometimes crosses the line into child abuse with Afghans keeping boys as possessions.

Although rarely discussed or criticised in Afghanistan, it is conceivable that the involvement of foreigners could have turned into a major public scandal. Atmar himself warned about public anger towards contractors, who he said "do not have many friends" and said they needed far greater oversight.

He also said tighter control was needed over Afghan employees of such companies as well.

"He was convinced that the Kunduz incident, and other events where mentors had obtained drugs, could not have happened without Afghan participation," the cable said.

Two Afghan policemen and nine other Afghans were arrested as part of investigations into a crime described by Atmar as "purchasing a service from a child", which the cable said was against both sharia law and the civil code.

Yet Bernie Ebbers still went to jail. There were several billion dollars worth of bullion in WTC7. Where are the audio logs?

GHW Bush didn't do 9-11. He did do JFK murder, Watergate, Iran Hostage, Reagan assassination attempt. It's not his style to kill buildings and he doesn't need the money.

And that 1.1 percent is too large, as many of those people make between $200,000 and $250,000, and so every dollar of their income will be eligible for the tax cuts the Democrats are pushing.

So in all likelihood, what separates a tax cut bill that's "chicken crap" from a tax cut bill that's great is its treatment of the richest 1 percent of households in Boehner's district. And $700 billion slapped right onto the deficit. If Republicans win this debate despite the unpopularity of their position and its violent contradiction to their stated concern for the deficit, it'll be one of the most impressive coups in recent political memory.

Blah blah blah. It is extremely tiresome to hear the endless banter of people so irrationally impassioned about the political game of "who gets the money?"...

It seems to me that one of the defining characteristics of the political class and their sycophants is the belief that it is permissible to use taxes to make people's incomes more "equal." Such a belief is totally incompatible with freedom. Freedom prevails only when no one -- especially not a politician or a bureaucrat -- has the right to even _know_ what your income is.

With all good wishes,

Kevin Alfred Strom.

Not make incomes more equal; to redistribute wealth. This concept is part of the original social contract that helped precipitate our founding back in the 18th century. You don't get full freedom in exchange for a social safety net. That is a decision western civilization (your ancestors) made and have been trying to live up to ever since. The oligarchs and the aristocrats are not happy with the social contract, they prefer the feudal system which it replaced.

The main points of neo-liberalism include:

4. PRIVATIZATION. Sell state-owned enterprises, goods and services to private investors. This includes banks, key industries, railroads, toll highways, electricity, schools, hospitals and even fresh water. Although usually done in the name of greater efficiency, which is often needed, privatization has mainly had the effect of concentrating wealth even more in a few hands and making the public pay even more for its needs.

1. THE RULE OF THE MARKET. Liberating "free" enterprise or private enterprise from any bonds imposed by the government (the state) no matter how much social damage this causes. Greater openness to international trade and investment, as in NAFTA. Reduce wages by de-unionizing workers and eliminating workers' rights that had been won over many years of struggle. No more price controls. All in all, total freedom of movement for capital, goods and services. To convince us this is good for us, they say "an unregulated market is the best way to increase economic growth, which will ultimately benefit everyone." It's like Reagan's "supply-side" and "trickle-down" economics -- but somehow the wealth didn't trickle down very much.

2. CUTTING PUBLIC EXPENDITURE FOR SOCIAL SERVICES like education and health care. REDUCING THE SAFETY-NET FOR THE POOR, and even maintenance of roads, bridges, water supply -- again in the name of reducing government's role. Of course, they don't oppose government subsidies and tax benefits for business.

3. DEREGULATION. Reduce government regulation of everything that could diminsh profits, including protecting the environmentand safety on the job.

5. ELIMINATING THE CONCEPT OF "THE PUBLIC GOOD" or "COMMUNITY" and replacing it with "individual responsibility." Pressuring the poorest people in a society to find solutions to their lack of health care, education and social security all by themselves -- then blaming them, if they fail, as "lazy."

<http://www.commondreams.org/views04/0312-08.htm>

. . . the rules of the game of business are defined by government. Any sports fan can tell you that football, baseball, or hockey without rules and referees would be a mess. Similarly, business without rules won't work.

Which explains why conservative economics wiped out the middle class during the period from 1880 to 1932, and why, when Reagan again began applying conservative economics, the middle class again began to vanish in America in the 1980s - a process that has dramatically picked up steam under George W. Bush.

The conservative mantra is "let the market decide." But there is no market independent of government, so what they're really saying is, "Stop corporations from defending workers and building a middle class, and let the corporations decide how much to pay for labor and how to trade." This is, at best, destructive to national and international economies, and, at worst, destructive to democracy itself.

Markets are a creation of government, just as corporations exist only by authorization of government. Governments set the rules of the market. And, since our government is of, by, and for We The People, those rules have historically been set to first maximize the public good resulting from people doing business.

If you want to play the game of business, we've said in the US since 1784 (when Tench Coxe got the first tariffs passed "to protect domestic industries") then you have to play in a way that both makes you money AND serves the public interest.

Which requires us to puncture the second balloon of popular belief. The "middle class" is not the natural result of freeing business to do whatever it wants, of "free and open markets," or of "free trade." The "middle class" is not a normal result of "free markets." Those policies will produce a small but powerful wealthy class, a small "middle" mercantilist class, and a huge and terrified worker class which have traditionally been called "serfs."

Sorry to waste everyone's time with this crap, but I think you will all share my shock, shock I tell you, that the U.S. Embassy would have harsh things to say about Hugo Chavez.

<http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mission_Barrio_Adentro>
Defections
In August 2006 the United States under GEORGE W. BUSH created the Cuban Medical Professional Parole program, specifically targeting Cuban medical personnel and encouraging them to defect when they are working in a country outside of Cuba.[16] According to a 2007 paper published in The Lancet medical journal, "growing numbers of Cuban doctors sent overseas to work are defecting to the USA".[17][18] Cuban doctors working abroad are reported to be monitored by "minders" and subject to curfew.[17]

HEY! First-of-All : Why Hasn't Prez Obama proposed the Continuation of the Extension of the Indexing of Alternative Minimum Tax [AMT]
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Alternative_Minimum_Tax

US Federal Tax Brackets are "Indexed" Yearly by Law and so should the Alternative Minimum Tax be Indexed Yearly by Law in Matched-Step with the Tax Brackets.
http://finance.yahoo.com/how-to-guide/taxes/12810

The Alternative Minimum Tax [AMT] is Taxed-to-Death by Prez Obama and Democrats Pelosi & Reid.
http://www.house.gov/jec/tax/amt.htm

NEXT! Second-of-All : Why Hasn't Prez Obama proposed the Continuation of the Elimination of the Marriage Penalty which will Increase Taxes on Married Couples ?
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Marriage_penalty Why haven't the Democrats permanently eliminated the Marriage Penalty as a matter of Federal Law ?
Tax Fairness = Tax Equability for All -cause- Prez Obama and Democrats Pelosi & Reid are Anti {High Income} Families !!!

NOW! Third-of-All : Deling with the New Higher 2011
Obama & Pelosi & Reid Democrat Income Tax Brackets
http://www.fivecentnickel.com/2010/02/15/2011-federal-income-tax-brackets-irs-income-tax-rates/

All they have to do is Keep the good-old-lower Bush Income Tax Brackets for those under $375K capped at 35%
http://www.fivecentnickel.com/2009/11/27/2010-federal-income-tax-rates-irs-tax-brackets/

And set a Stepped '5-Tiered' approach for Incomes that are above $375K :
High Income Tier #1 : $376K ~ $1.125M @ 36%
High Income Tier #2 : $1.126M ~ $3.375M @ 37%
High Income Tier #3 : $3.376M ~ $10.125M @ 38%
High Income Tier #4 : $10.126M ~ $30.375M @ 39%
High Income Tier #5 : $30.376M and above @ 40%
* This reportedly would capture 2/3rds of the $700 Billion the New Higher 2011 Obama Income Tax Brackets would Tax as new Revenue for the Obama Regime and the Democrats to Spend Spend Spend . . .

NOTE -if- The Currently IRS Tax Brackets 'Define' the Bottom of the Highest Income Tax Bracket as 35% for Incomes Over $373,650
-then- ?Why? Did Prez Obama Set the Bracket Artificially Lowered a $250,000 [2/3rds] of what the IRS currently Rates as the Bottom of the Highest Tax Bracket !?!?!
-cause- Prez Obama and Democrat Party Leaders like Pelosi & Reid Want To Increase Taxes On All Small Business Owners {The Middle-Class} and Drive Them Out of Business and Kill More Jobs.

Ireland was mentioned in the original post. Is Oslo northern enough?

Oslo also happens to be affected by the warm Gulfstream oceanic current. Just looking at a map may be very misleading,as far as climates go. Northern Europe never had hot summers until just a few years ago. And global warming may not last long,according to some studies we can expect a Little Ice Age soon.

I am still amazed at how well Radio Fly, 5960, Papua New Guinea, holds up here. Still being heard, though very weak, at 1330, an hour and a half past my local sunrise.

Supposedly running 1 KW, they do quite well.

Bedouins have been roaming the deserts since the ancient times. As a

- Oslo also happens to be affected by the warm
- Gulfstream oceanic current.
- Just looking at a map may be very misleading,
- as far as climates go.
- Northern Europe never had hot summers until
- just a few years ago.
- And global warming may not last long,according to
- some studies we can expect a Little Ice Age soon.

Thanks, excellent article. It's an absolute crime what the West has done to facilitate Israel's takeover of other people's land.

The Zionist concept -- if stripped of its insane religious dimension and the myths that 1) modern Jews have a god-given imperative to own Palestine and 2) that the Middle East and its goat-herder religions have any connection whatever to _us_, the peoples of the West -- is not a bad concept.

It would be better for everyone if the Jews had a land of their own and ceased to be a wandering people and all that that entails. But a largely unpopulated area should have been chosen instead of Palestine, or an area where the natives would have happily relocated with positive incentives instead of guns and tanks and a nuclear arsenal. France once offered them a huge swathe of land in Africa.
It might have worked. But lunatic religion wouldn't permit it.

With all good wishes,

Kevin Alfred Strom.

WebTV does not have a hard drive, except for some early models of WebTV set top boxes, for down loading and storing tv search programs.
How can they spy on me?
I Spy!

Doggy and I have to watch the old 1946 movie (starting on the TCM channel right now) Courage of Lassie.Doggy is sleeping through the movie.

It's not called the Lone Star of David State for nothing.

Didn't you find it a bit too suspicious when the Shuttle carrying a Jewish passenger blew up over PALESTINE, Texas?

This is as good as intact passports surviving the Trade Centre debacle.

- Not make incomes more equal; to redistribute wealth.

'Special Dave' here is the Original Social Contract : Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness {Property/Wealth}
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Life,_liberty_and_the_pursuit_of_happiness
NOT The Re-Distribution of Someone Else's Happiness, Liberty and Life.

- This concept is part of the original social contract that
- helped precipitate our founding back in the 18th century.

'Special Dave' you must live on a Bizzaro Planet {different from Earth} and Live in the USB {United States of Bizzaro}
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bizarro_World

- You don't get full freedom in exchange for a social safety net.

A 'Fool' seeks out a Social Safety Net and Abandons His Freedom.

=WRT= Secure the Blessings of Liberty to Ourselves and our Posterity
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/United_States_Constitution#Preamble:_Statement_of_purpose

- That is a decision western civilization (your ancestors)
- made and have been trying to live up to ever since.

The 1870's Social Safety Net was 'A More Perfect Union, Establish Justice, Insure Domestic Tranquility, Provide for the Common Defence, Promote the General Welfare,"
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/United_States_Constitution#Preamble:_Statement_of_purpose

- The oligarchs and the aristocrats are not happy with
- the social contract, they prefer the feudal system
- which it replaced.

and made them Oligarchs and the Aristocrats with-in that Feudal System.

I have driven through Palestine,Texas twice before, there is, or was, a Campbell soup factory in Palestine.
The second time was on October 29,1965 when my three years in the Army was up.
I was driving up a hill and around a corner, a lady in her front yard tending to her flowers, her cat ran out in front of my 1963 Volkswagen car.I gave her ten dollars because I killed her cat.A cop came along, he said he was going to give me a ticket.I asked him why? He said, For buying p.... on the highway.

SOVIETS TO SAUCIER TO SCRAP YARD
By GEOFF PENDER
GULFPORT, MISSISSIPPI -- The Soviet Bloc military vehicles that for so many years stirred nationwide intrigue among conspiracy theorists -- and even once drew a visit to the Coast from since-executed terrorist Timothy McVeigh -- are being piled unceremoniously into a heap at a metal scrap yard on Canal Road.

Alter Metal Recycling of Gulfport isn't just cleaning up an eyesore. It's closing one of the weirder chapters in Coast history, which spans the globe from Saudi Arabia to East Berlin to Saucier.

"We bought them, and we're going to cut them up, then send them to a shredder in Mobile," said Michael Goldstein, manager of Alter Metal Recycling in Gulfport. "They'll be recycled. One person's trash is our treasure."

Goldstein quipped: "And we're helping prevent a Communist overthrow of the government," after he heard of the bizarre rumors the rusty old vehicles garnered over the years in fringe Internet and print publications.

Neither past nor recent owners of the Russian- and German-made vehicles could be reached for this article. But over the years, the Sun Herald and many other publications interviewed them and wrote reams about them.

Here is their story.

A jailhouse friendship

Fred Koval, a retired Air Force colonel from Biloxi, met Egyptian businessman Charles Chawafaty while the two were in a Saudi Arabian jail in the 1980s.

Koval had been working for a contractor in Saudi Arabia, teaching electronics.

He had become friends with a New Orleans businessman who had a conflict with a Saudi company. He said the Saudis often jailed foreigners until business disputes were settled, so he helped the man flee the country.

The Saudis jailed Koval, where he met Chawafaty, also jailed over a business dispute. The U.S. Embassy secured Koval's release. He returned to Biloxi and over the next five years worked to get Chawafaty released.

“(Chawafaty) came here to Biloxi to visit me after that,” Koval once told the Sun Herald. “We got involved in a couple of business things. We tried one time to sell Egyptian paper, papyrus. … One day (Chawafaty) called and told me he was shipping all this equipment to Gulfport, and that I had to find some land to put it on.”

The two men created a partnership, Airmar Resources Inc. Chawafaty in 1993 had bought 1,000 Soviet Bloc military trucks, most of them water tankers, for $1.4 million at an auction in Berlin.

Their plan was to refurbish the vehicles into ambulances, garbage and dump trucks and public-works vehicles and sell them around the globe, perhaps even to the United Nations.

Chawafaty stored a few hundred in England, but spent about $1 million to ship the bulk of them here and parked them on a lot on U.S. 49 between Gulfport and Saucier.

The arrival of the trucks emblazoned with the Soviet hammer-and-sickle and German hammer-and-compass made local news, and Koval and Chawafaty explained their business plan.

But their plan was flawed. Nobody wanted to buy the poorly made vehicles and many countries, the U.S. included, had environmental, trade and transportation regulations that would prevent their use. Koval once told the Sun Herald his main investment in the venture was buying the land on which to park the trucks.

“What a waste of money,” he said.

From the banana file

So the vehicles sat on the sparsely wooded lot by the highway, collecting rust and, very soon, rumors.

Dozens of reports in fringe magazines and on the Internet were that a communist or multinational U.N. force was being gathered to overthrow the United States government.

The U.S. 49 stockpile was often cited as evidence of this plot, with its contents exaggerated to include “Soviet attack helicopters and tanks” and chemical-warfare equipment.

One report claimed a large road had been built from the U.S. 49 depot to NASA’s Stennis Space Center in Hancock County.

Mike Blair, a correspondent for The Spotlight, a Washington-based publication, wrote one of the first articles about the trucks in 1994, headlined “Secret Military Maneuvers Concern to Loyal Americans.”

He later told the Sun Herald although it became clear the trucks were just rusty water tankers, he believed he and others were justified in their suspicions.

“Several hundred Russian and East German vehicles appear in Mississippi behind a chain-link fence, at a time when the Cold War had still not completely softened, and they planned to sell them to the U.N.?" Blair said.

"Am I satisfied now as to their plans? One thing I could point out is that there has been sufficient publicity that it might have blown anything they planned before. There have been all kinds of foreign troops training in this country and foreign equipment arriving. We were posing the question: Is this all part of some U.N. scheme? A lot of people in this country don't like the U.N."

Koval over the years said he got a chuckle out of the reports about the vehicles. He sold his interest in the vehicles in 2000.

"I used to keep a file on all this stuff," he told the Sun Herald in 2001. "I called it my banana file.

"I've always gotten a laugh about it. I'm not trying to overthrow the government. I'm a former World War II bomber pilot, with lots of medals. I bombed all of Germany, including Berlin …. We did give four of the trucks to Feed the Children. They modified them and cleaned them up and took them to Mexico to help poor people."

McVeigh checks out rumors

The last major headlines the trucks made where after the release of "American Terrorist," a best-selling book about Oklahoma City federal-building bomber Timothy McVeigh.

The book, which was based on hours of interviews with the since-executed McVeigh, recounts a cross-country trip he took months before the bombing in 1995 to check out reports of government conspiracies and cover-ups.

He wanted to see firsthand whether U.N. troops and equipment were being gathered near Gulfport for a takeover.

The book said McVeigh climbed over the fence and checked out the equipment, noting the trucks lacked armor or weapons mounts.

The book said McVeigh moved on, debunking other rumors because, "as concerned as he was about the New World Order, he also saw a danger in the increasing spread of mystified paranoia in the Patriot community."

Wooo, I messed around and let my Black & Decker Electromate 400 Portable Power Station Jump Starter Air Compressor sit a long time without plugging in an extension (AC 120 volts) cord and charging it back up.Right now, there are two red LED lights and the green LED light is flashing.I bought it in January 2010 at the Walmart store.I am going to leave it plugged in untill that green flashing LED light stops flashing.A day or two ought to do it.Instructions say it can't be hurt by overcharging.

That is immoral in the extreme, when it comes to individuals. No one in Washington, or anywhere else for that matter, has any right to even _know_ what my income is, much less seize and "redistribute" it.

Corporations -- which are creatures of the state and probably shouldn't exist anyway -- cannot have rights and so do not deserve such protection. But damn it Dave -- I do, and you do, and everyone in rec.radio.shortwave does too.

NO ONE should be able to seize our wealth (or even know what it is!), whether they do it with guns or majority votes or trickery.

> This concept is > part of the original social contract that helped precipitate our > founding back in the 18th century.

No, that "social contract" was merely the extreme overreaction of some people, particularly the loonier "philosophes" like Rousseau, to the excesses of the dynasts and oligarchs, and was _not_ the norm in most countries that threw off monarchy.

It most particularly was _not_ the direction taken by America's revolutionaries, who knew -- and specifically stated -- that the tyranny of the majority was to be feared just as much as the tyranny of royalty. They specifically stated that even the government of a republic must be "tied down" with the "strong chains" of the constitution and for that very reason they made progressive taxation of incomes _totally illegal_.

(In America, Jefferson et al. wanted a real aristocracy of merit to arise under freedom; while the insane equalitarians in France believed that all must be made "equal" no matter how many had to be enslaved or murdered to do it.)

>That is a decision western > civilization (your ancestors) made and have been trying to live up > to ever since. The oligarchs and the aristocrats are not happy with > the social contract, they prefer the feudal system which it replaced.

The opposite is true. The oligarchs _love_ mass democracy, since a plurality of voters are near-morons, as easily manipulated politically as they are manipulated to buy harmful and wasteful junk at a 900 per cent. markup.

With all good wishes,

Kevin, WB4AIO.

It's an amazing tale, to be sure. But not half as amazing as the story of the 800 million tiny insect-sized Jews:

http://tinyurl.com/2cc37zt

> Were the founding fathers racist pigs, or did they see something of

The founding fathers were racial realists who knew that nations are biological entities -- _not_ geographic entities.

But in recent years we have been bamboozled by the Jewish-owned media to believe that anyone able to walk or crawl to the correct side of an artificial line drawn on a map can become a member of our nation. We might as well declare that a mouse born in a stable is a horse.

It doesn't make you a "racist" or a "pig" to believe that peace and harmony is best served by racial self-determination and the necessary separation that that entails.

With my best,

Kevin.

Liberty Net: November 27, 2010

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

THE CONTINUING ANNOYANCE of DRM transmissions from the BBC means that the weekly Saturday night Liberty Net is meeting a little higher up the band than usual, this week on 3969 kHz. But participants are getting used to the change, since check-ins were numerous despite ionospheric disturbances that made close-in stations fade at times.

Hereï¿½s an abbreviated list of the issues debated and discussed this time on amateur radioï¿½s most venerable discussion net:

ï¿½ A Spanish woman has now officially registered the Sun as her personal property. She claims that the international law which prohibits ownership of our home star by any government does not apply to individuals, and she will soon be charging all ï¿½Sun usersï¿½ a fee, of which she will generously keep only 10 per cent. (1 hour 6 minutes)

ï¿½ Now that the regime in Washington has arrogated to itself the ï¿½rightï¿½ to shut down Web sites based on supposed copyright violations, has a precedent been established that will allow the regime to also shut down sites based on ideological content? (1 hour 25 minutes)

ï¿½ There is a deep divide in the United States between the producers and the parasites ï¿½ and the one fact that cannot be evaded is that the parasites need the producers, but the producers do _not_ need the parasites. (1 hour 39 minutes)

ï¿½ In Florida, the first-ever ï¿½transgenderedï¿½ trial judge has been appointed in the Miami-Dade area. Actually, there is no such thing as ï¿½transgenderï¿½ or ï¿½sex changeï¿½ operations: A personï¿½s sex is encoded in the DNA of every single cell of his body and no operation, known or even imaginable, can ever change that. (1 hour 57 minutes)

ï¿½ Obama is pushing hard for the so-called ï¿½Dream Act,ï¿½ which would not only give all illegal immigrant applicants money for college tuition (which White Americans canï¿½t get) and grant them amnesty and protection from deportation, but would also make them immune from prosecution for the many other crimes they may have committed. (2 hours 2 minutes)

ï¿½ Why is the J.P. Morgan Chase bank engaging in naked short selling of silver? Since they are selling something they do not have ï¿½ in order to drive the price down and make a quick profit ï¿½ are they engaging in fraud? Can viral communications (such as email, blogs, and the Liberty Net itself) spark an investor revolt and thwart Chaseï¿½s plans? (2 hours 27 minutes)

ï¿½ Itï¿½s fascinating to watch Glenn Beck exhort his followers to sell their valuables on an auction site (from which he gets a cut) and use the proceeds to buy gold (from which he also gets a cut). We should remember that gold is an asset that may be banned and seized by the regime in Washington, which has a history of doing exactly that. (4 hours 30 minutes)

Thanks to Marty, N2IRJ, youï¿½re able to listen to the Liberty Net right now on your computer here at http://3950.net/ ï¿½ or download the file and listen on your portable mp3 player. And N2SAG operates a live feed and chat during Net times that lets you make an end run around jammers and a fickle ionosphere.

Join in or listen to the most exciting net on the amateur bands every Saturday night starting at 10PM Eastern Time.

Our thanks go to W1WCR for his hard work and courage in keeping an important part of the amateur radio service alive since 1974!

A smaller group, 14 percent, want the Bush tax cuts ended for everyone, and hey, at least those people are deficit hawks worthy of the name, unlike the Republicans now in Congress. And here's the real kicker: Just 46 percent of Republicans polled, less than half, want tax cuts extended for everyone. That represents a plurality of Republicans, with 41 percent wanting just the middle class cuts, but if the Republicans in Congress aren't even carrying out the will of the majority of their base, and far from the will of the American people at large, just who the hell are they catering to?..."

(The repubs claimed the demos were wrong not to listen to the opinion polls last summer, now the shoes are juxtaposed. Will the republicans be swayed by the lack of even a majority of republican support for higher deficits out here in the hinterlands?)

"Another means of silently lessening the inequality of property is to exempt all from taxation below a certain point, and to tax the higher portions of property in geometrical progression as they rise." --Thomas Jefferson to James Madison, 1785.

"The rich alone use imported articles, and on these alone the whole taxes of the General Government are levied. ... Our revenues liberated by the discharge of the public debt, and its surplus applied to canals, roads, schools, etc., the farmer will see his government supported, his children educated, and the face of his country made a paradise by the contributions of the rich alone, without his being called on to spend a cent from his earnings." --Thomas Jefferson to Thaddeus Kosciusko, 1811. ME 13:41

"The great mass of the articles on which impost is paid is foreign luxuries, purchased by those only who are rich enough to afford themselves the use of them. Their patriotism would certainly prefer its continuance and application to the great purposes of the public education, roads, rivers, canals, and such other objects of public improvement as it may be thought proper to add to the constitutional enumeration of federal powers." --Thomas Jefferson: 6th Annual Message, 1806. ME 3:423

"We are all the more reconciled to the tax on importations, because it falls exclusively on the rich, and with the equal partition of intestate's estates, constitutes the best agrarian law. In fact, the poor man in this country who uses nothing but what is made within his own farm or family, or within the United States, pays not a farthing of tax to the General Government, but on his salt; and should we go into that manufacture as we ought to do, he will pay not one cent." --Thomas Jefferson to Pierre Samuel Dupont de Nemours, 1811. ME 13:39

"I rejoice, as a moralist, at the prospect of a reduction of the duties on wine by our national legislature. It is an error to view a tax on that liquor as merely a tax on the rich. It is a prohibition of its use to the middling class of our citizens, and a condemnation of them to the poison of whiskey, which is desolating their houses. No nation is drunken where wine is cheap; and none sober, where the dearness of wine substitutes ardent spirits as the common beverage. It is, in truth, the only antidote to the bane of whiskey. Fix but the duty at the rate of other merchandise, and we can drink wine here as cheap as we do grog;

and who will not prefer it? Its extended use will carry health and comfort to a much enlarged circle. Everyone in easy circumstances (as the bulk of our citizens are) will prefer it to the poison to which they are now driven by their government. And the treasury itself will find that a penny apiece from a dozen, is more than a groat from a single one." --Thomas Jefferson to Jean Guillaume Hyde de Neuville, 1818. ME 15:178

Maunder Minimum may coincide with historically cold periods,but it may be just that. Accidental coincidence. No solid scienific study has proven that to be a rule.

Thank you for posting that. None of it contradicts in the slightest way anything I said.

I heartily support what Jefferson wanted: no income tax whatsoever, the ability of citizens to rise or fall on their own merits, and an extremely small and constitutionally limited federal government (with a racial definition of citizenship) -- supported entirely by tariffs and the like, which require no snooping or interfering with the lives of individuals and families.

With all good wishes,

Kevin.

Why do you, of all people, even care about all this blather.

The regime in Washington is totally illegal and has no right to tax anyone whatsoever. Surely you are aware of this.

I occasionally drift into the real world. Democracy is of course long dead and buried. Major trauma will ensue before we can successfully re-animate its stinking carcass. A lot of serious re-prioritization needs to happen. People are way too casual about this stuff.

BTW: I like black people. I think they are as capable as anyone and deserve respect like everyone.

Democracy isn't desirable anyway. But those who want to try it should be able to.

I'd like devolved, smaller, kinship-based societies, but with lots of choices for those who find a particular form of government intolerable and need someplace to go. Confederations for mutual defense might be necessary.

My choice would be a kinship-based society with a strictly limited representative government and strictly limited franchise so that the wisest and most thoughtful and knowledgeable would be the vast majority of the electorate.

But mass democracy? No. There really can never be such a thing, at least as its advocates promote it. I mean, just _look_ at the majority of people. Look at them _close up_, in places where they like to gather, like Wal-Mart. Taken as a whole, they are never going to be able to even govern themselves, much less a society. They will always be the pawns of knaves who want to buy their votes with other people's money.

> BTW: I like black people. I think they are as capable as anyone and > deserve respect like everyone.

I agree that all races deserve respect -- and deserve to survive as independent entities.

I am not sure what you mean by "as capable as anyone," since individuals and races both vary widely in the things they're good at. Black people are certainly better at racial loyalty and unity than White people. They are also better at sprinting, boxing, quick verbal reactions, and a number of other things. Europeans are better at some things, too. Like astrophysics and medicine.

You might believe that because I've advocated for White people, that somehow I don't respect other races. But you'd be wrong. My respect goes considerably further than the phony respect the establishment promotes. I don't think White people should govern non-White people -- ever. Or the reverse. I don't think we should be murdering the non-White peoples of the Middle East or setting up puppet governments in their countries -- and I was one of the first to speak out against this. And I don't think the regime in Washington should be setting up an economic/military empire to control and rule over non-Whites in cooperation with Zionist billionaires.

With all good wishes,

Kevin.

Past posting history show you don't know very much.....

You once said "Unquote" Those russian vehicles have black helicopters hovering over that area etc. , etc. You must have been listening the "Mark of the Michigan Militia" on 7415 along with the rest of the wackos (of which there are hundreds of thousands of in Mississippi) along with you living in that hovel in the "quarters" of Jackson.....need I say more?

Say, did you ever get on of those wimmens to take their clothes off for you?

That wouldn't be purty, would it? Neither you nor the wimmen.

What President oversaw the Afhan War from October 7, 2001, and Iraq War from March 20, 2003 until January 20, 2009, when Obama became President?
How did he pay for these wars? Did he raise taxes for pay as you go, as we did in WWII?

Defections
In August 2006 the United States under GEORGE W. BUSH created the Cuban Medical Professional Parole program, specifically targeting Cuban medical personnel and encouraging them to defect when they are working in a country outside of Cuba.

Really, you'd think that Cuba was under an economic embargo by an economic world power that was trying to kill Castro.

In 2008 the top 10% of earners paid 70% of all federal taxes.
The top 25% of earners paid 86% of all federal taxes.
Is it really your contention they should pay more?

Just to show how unequal the tax burden is, the bottom 50% of earners paid
a measly
2.7% of federal taxes.

I'll say it again 50% of tax payers only paid 2.7% of all federal taxes paid.

I'm only a casual listener to SW and I only have a Grundig 400YB that I have had for 15 years or so, but now when I go through the channels, I find mainly static and an occasional Christian (or so called) station. I have found a few from Europe and ofcourse a few Spanish stations, but in the old days you would find the BBC on about 5 stations, VOA on several and a host of others. I mainly use my radio to check the time signals. Speaking of which, I seem to only get them on 2500, 5000 and 10,000. Are they still on 20,000 and 25,000? I know the internet has put a lot of stations out of business, but there seems to be a lot of bandwidth not being used. If my radio died, I really don't know if I would replace it. Ric.

YB400 is a decent receiver. The problem is propagation is awfully bad last few years. And many powerful broadcasters cancelled NA services-what is left is what you hear... Solar cycle 24 is very slow to start-it has been delayed for over a year,at least. It will improve eventually, and things will improve gradually. It happens every 10 to 12 years.

Just to show how unequal the tax burden is, the bottom 50% of earners paid
a measly
2.7% of federal taxes.

I'll say it again 50% of tax payers only paid 2.7% of all federal taxes paid.

Perhaps because the bottom 50% only made about 3% of the income??

I'm certain that many would like to see AFN out of Puerto Rico return as well as that put PR on the map as far as the WWV transmits on 2.5, 5, 10, 15 and 20 MHz. The 25 MHz signal was discontinued in 1977. If you are not hearing certain frequencies, it is due to propagation (or possibly a rare transmission technical failure).

I note you left out my reference whose source, charts from the Internal Revenue Service.
And you did not include any reference for your 3%.
A quick search shows more like 13%, if I understand correctly.
From http://www.taxfoundation.org/news/show/250.html
Also the top 50% pay 97.3% of Federal taxes
The bottom 50% pay 2.7% of federal taxes.
Same Chart.
What percentage of those in the bottom 50% would you think put zero effort on moving out of the bottom?
My guess is that is a high number. I don't think a lot of people think about their financial future. I'm convinced that lack of wealth is a temporary condition,
a health problem or a lack of mental training.
Some families or cultures are just expected to do well and the children are raised to think that way. The schools need to teach this thought process.
But then, somebody's got to be in the bottom 50%!

Jefferson didn't think of it. It preceeds the founding of the US by a century, dumbass. Instead of wasting your time on Mewsmax, why don't you find out what's really going on, in proper historical perspective. You are a freaking chrome plated pinball bouncing off right-wing talking point bumpers.

"John Locke (1632ï¿½1704) is among the most influential political philosophers of the modern period. In the Two Treatises of Government, he defended the claim that men are by nature free and equal against claims that God had made all people naturally subject to a monarch. He argued that people have rights, such as the right to life, liberty, and property, that have a foundation independent of the laws of any particular society. Locke used the claim that men are naturally free and equal as part of the justification for understanding legitimate political government as the result of a social contract where people in the state of nature conditionally transfer some of their rights to the government in order to better insure the stable, comfortable enjoyment of their lives, liberty, and property. Since governments exist by the consent of the people in order to protect the rights of the people and promote the public good, governments that fail to do so can be resisted and replaced with new governments. Locke is thus also important for his defense of the right of revolution. Locke also defends the principle of majority rule and the separation of legislative and executive powers. In the Letter Concerning Toleration, Locke denied that coercion should be used to bring people to (what the ruler believes is) the true religion and also denied that churches should have any coercive power over their members. Locke elaborated on these themes in his later political writings, such as the Second Letter on Toleration and Third Letter on Toleration.

1. The Law of Nature

Perhaps the most central concept in Locke's political philosophy is his theory of natural law and natural rights. The natural law concept existed long before Locke as a way of expressing the idea that there were certain moral truths that applied to all people, regardless of the particular place where they lived or the agreements they had made. The most important early contrast was between laws that were by nature, and thus generally applicable, and those that were conventional and operated only in those places where the particular convention had been established. This distinction is sometimes formulated as the difference between natural law and positive law."

I generally don't trust random figures thrown into a conversation. I know that they possess 90 something percent of the income so paying 86% of taxes seems a little low.

I have nothing against people amassing huge amounts of money for sport, they have that right. But ultimately, that karma needs to be cleansed, so tax heavily above a reasonable amount, and use the money for great public works. That is the American way (or was prior to Reagan's revolution against all things American).

Potential for upward mobility is virtually non-existent right now. The banksters have taken 30 trillion dollars and fled to Dubai. The house of cards has collapsed. It's over. The banks are broke. The country is broke. The only people who have any money today are the thieves who stole it.

Then, all the Democrats would have to do is to make them permanent.
That's all they've ever had to do. If protecting citizens from this sunset was their goal, the Democrats could have done it 20 months ago, when they had a super majority in both houses of Congress.

They didn't.

By allowing the near-endless "economic expansion" required by the finance-capitalist system (the system, that is, of having the banks create all our money) we have all despoiled our own nests to some extent.

But, having said that, I invite the reader to contemplate Zurich versus Mexico City; or Rutland versus Detroit; or Florence versus Harare -- or for that matter, Salisbury (Harare's former name) during independence versus Harare today. There is a difference.

The primitive as it really is, Dave, is no better; in fact, it is so much worse that its stench is unbelievable. (Now, if you are advocating a primitive society composed of Thoreau and his kin, that would be a different matter. Alaska, and other parts of rural America where the Third Worlders haven't made a big impact yet, is like that in some ways.)

It will take advanced minds to solve the problems that are inherent to life on Earth and human societies, _not_ more primitive minds. It will probably take more advanced minds than even exist today.

So making sure that such minds continue to exist -- and exist with greater powers and in greater numbers in the future -- is our most urgent need.

Making sure that somebody's "baby mama" has enough "benefits" so she can run on up to the Burger King today -- which, in practical terms, is exactly what "income redistribution" accomplishes -- should not only _not_ be a societal priority, but taking away the precious resources of our families to accomplish it should be regarded as an ignoble crime.

With every good wish,

Kevin.

Amen to that. The Bush administrations tax cuts for the rich are the gift that suddenly stops giving after a while. Why on earth would they screw their own people like that? This tax cut was aimed almost exclusively at the top 5% and now the Bush administration is taking it away from them from beyond the political grave.

Thanks for the replys so far. I still get an occasional broadcast but it is not like the old days. I heard Poland I think it was a few weeks ago, but there used to be so many broadcasters on that you could go through the freqs. and find more stations than you could listen to. Now I can go through whole bands and find one only station broadcasting. (And that is probably in Spanish.) I guess the world is changing more than I thought.
Some I will admit is due to the terrible static from this sun cycle, but still more local (by that I mean only a 1000 miles away) stations are not being heard any more. Sad to see such a nice hobby as SWL going the way of the dinosaurs. Ric.

There really has not been much on the shortwave broadcast bands for the past 10 years. There are still some bible pounders for momentary fun but that's really about it. The always entertaining survivalists have all but abandoned shortwave as well. The active days of SWLing peaked in the 1980's and began a decline. As the internet became a more efficient way to communicate the falloff in SWL targets declined even faster. The ham bands are experiencing a more prolonged decline.

Are you kidding? HF is actually much cleaner/quieter now than ever before. We can hear mini-powered stations from almost anywhere when propagation is good. And all the digital transmissions,utes or DRM, are spreading unnecessary interference,in regard to SWL DX-ing or Ham operations. And that's the way it is.

The only people you listen to on shortwave are nut cases. If you listened to everything you wouldn't be so warped.

I am referring to chasing DX (not collecting "veries"). There is no sport in hearing a 100,000 Watt radio station 4,000 miles away (unless of course it's a VHF FM station). Hearing someone on the edge of the sea operating out of a backpack from 4,000 miles away, that's exciting!

Hearing WWV on 20 MHz just before sunset in SE Michigan - 2200UTC @ S8 with a heterodyne from some other station. WWVH is not on 20 MHz.

I notice if you can find a quiet location that you can hear more DX stations due to the loss of some the high power international broadcasters, except of course China. China has more transmitters on the air than most I think although as of 2008 some South American countries are in the lead according to this website (Peru 189 SW stations):
http://www.nationmaster.com/graph/med_rad_bro_sta-media-radio-broadcast-stations

I don't think this takes into account the jammers such as the Chinese music jammer or utility jammers.

West Chester University, based in West Chester, Pennsylvania, is presently embroiled in a debate over flyers advertising the establishment of a "White Student Union." According to school officials, the flyers were part of an effort to "organize students who are against racism." While that may be true, the dither over a potential student union raises questions and concerns far deeper then the formation of a campus club.

That in itself is a prime example of rightard lies. It is undeniable that the bush tax cuts contained a sunset. Taxes are going up because of Bush. Dems are trying to preserve middle class tax cuts and the GOP says NO!! GOP says "RAISE TAXES for the middle class!!"

Convenient denial of the past 20 months.

If the Dems had wanted to spare the middle class this tax hike, they had super majorities in both houses, and two chamber leaders who have demonstrated no problem with skirting the rules.

They could have. They didn't.

Simple. They don't want to.

Japan invaded China in 1931. FDR had 10 years to see the inevitable.

The fact that the US was blockading trade destinations and fuel sources for years had nothing to do with it? The half million dead Filipinos killed by the Marines also hadn't gone unnoticed.

Japan was reacting more than starting.

You need to go back a lot further than that. Japan was fully into colonialist expansion, and had been attacking, invading and occupying the far east for hundreds of years. The 1930's was just the final straw.

So is the fact that with a super majority in both houses, and the White House, they could have done this at will, at any time within the last 20 months.

That they're so 'concerned' about it now is a joke.

Actually, they have.

Both Pelosi and Reid suspended the rules to preclude posting of the healthcare bill for the required 72 hours prior to the vote in the middle of the night.

They suspended the rules to hold closed door 'debates' on the issue, to preclude opposition debate.

You should read more.

A super majority is not a filibuster proof majority. The GOP has been the most solid political bloc in US history with the sole purpose of ensuring that the Obama administration can accomplish nothing significant (they would prefer nothing at all).

They are not going to cut any taxes.Taxes are going up.

About eight or nine something years ago, old country boy from Edwards (Edwards isn't a country town, it is a suburb of Jackson, about 13 miles West of doggy's couch) knows all about chainsaws, show me where that oil drain plug is!, he brought me a styrofoam plate of 'food' over here.I couldn't figure out what kind of 'food' it was.Some kind of mystery meat, or something, it was deep fried, whatever it was.I threw it in the trash can.I can't eat any kind of fried food, it gives me an upset stomach.

One time, Joyce Creel at the auto battery factory where I worked at, she gave me a dog food sandwich.At least I discovered what kind of sandwich it was.

One time in 1969 I brought a Burger King burger home for my Cocker Spaniel dog.That dog never even touched that burger.

It is when you prevent the opposition from speaking at all.

It is when you lock the opposition out of the room and 'debate' behind closed doors.

They could have done this at any time. They didn't.

They didn't want to.

- A super majority is not a filibuster proof majority. The GOP has been the
- most solid political bloc in US history with the sole purpose of ensuring
- that the Obama administration can accomplish nothing significant (they would

So . . .BAD - The Obama-Stimulus© Did Not Happen !?!

So . . .BAD - Obama-Care© Did Not Happen !?!

For the last few weeks, we've been chronicling efforts by right-wing activists in Texas to replace Republican House Speaker Joe Straus, who is Jewish, with a true "Christian conservative." And last week we noted that while David Barton was saying that the efforts to replace Strauss had nothing to do with his faith, State Republican Executive Committee member John Cook was sending out emails saying "We elected a house with Christian, conservative values [and] we now want a true Christian, conservative running it."

That's crazy talk. You can comfortably have 50 psk31 QSOs in a single

The GOP has not actually fillibustered much. The dems are basing a lot of their inability to pass anything on the simple threat of a fillibuster. In other words they use the excuse to not even try.
BTW, a 60 vote majority is effectively fillibuster proof.
Even if the Republicans were to attempt to fillibuster the dems still have the voting power to approve anything regardless.
So the dems just throw their hands up and cry fillibuster and give up and you want to blame the party that had no power.

That is of course a lie. The GOP has blocked everything that is good for the middle class in order to extort for the rich. FACT that cannot be ignored.

The bill is up for vote RIGHT NOW, kook. GOP is AGAINST tax cuts for the middle class. They voted AGAINST it.

Nope, it's the GOP that doesn't want to. GOP voted AGAINST tax cuts

* HEAVY SNOW FOR THE MIDDLE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY AND UPPER MIDWEST
DEC 12.
* MUCH BELOW NORMAL TEMPERATURES FROM THE NORTHERN PLAINS BUILDING SOUTHEASTWARD TO THE SOUTHEAST US DEC 10-14.
* MUCH BELOW NORMAL TEMPERATURES ACROSS MOST OF CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN ALASKA, DEC 10-11.
* SEVERE DROUGHT FOR PORTIONS OF THE EASTERN GULF COAST STATES, SOUTHWESTERN TEXAS, AND SOUTHEASTERN COLORADO. ADDITIONAL AREAS OF SEVERE DROUGHT INCLUDE THE LOWER OHIO AND TENNESSEE VALLEYS, THE LOWER MISSISSIPPI VALLEY, AND A SMALL PART OF EAST TEXAS.

DETAILED SUMMARY

FOR THURSDAY DECEMBER 09 - SATURDAY DECEMBER 11: AN ALBERTA CLIPPER SYSTEM IS EXPECTED TO PROGRESS EASTWARD FROM THE NORTHERN PLAINS TO THE NORTHEAST DURING THE PERIOD. TEMPERATURES AHEAD OF THIS SYSTEM WILL SUPPORT AT LEAST A LIGHT TO MODERATE SNOWFALL ACROSS THE NORTHERN PLAINS, GREAT LAKES AND THE INTERIOR NORTHEAST. GIVEN THE PROGRESSIVE NATURE OF THIS CLIPPER SYSTEM, SIGNIFICANT SNOW ACCUMULATIONS ARE NOT ANTICIPATED. BEHIND THE CLIPPER, A POTENT SURGE OF ARCTIC AIR IS EXPECTED TO PUSH ACROSS THE NORTH-CENTRAL US, WITH AN ASSOCIATED AREA OF MUCH BELOW NORMAL TEMPERATURES ANTICIPATED INITIALLY ACROSS THE NORTHERN PLAINS ON FRIDAY, AND THEN IS EXPECTED TO SPREAD INTO THE UPPER AND MIDDLE MISSISSIPPI VALLEYS BY THE END OF THE PERIOD. DAYTIME TEMPERATURES ARE EXPECTED TO RANGE BETWEEN 16 AND 20 DEGREES BELOW AVERAGE.

AN ONGOING AREA OF UNSETTLED WEATHER IN THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST, IN THE FORM OF HIGHER ELEVATION SNOW AND LOWER ELEVATION RAIN, IS LIKELY TO CONTINUE THROUGH THURSDAY AND FRIDAY; HOWEVER, PRECIPITATION AMOUNTS FOR BOTH DAYS ARE EXPECTED TO REMAIN BELOW HAZARDOUS LEVELS.

BY THE END OF THE PERIOD, AN AREA OF LOW PRESSURE IS EXPECTED TO DEVELOP NEAR THE EAST-CENTRAL ROCKIES AND MOVE EASTWARD OUT INTO THE CENTRAL PLAINS. A BURST OF AT LEAST MODERATE SNOW IS EXPECTED ACROSS THE NORTH-CENTRAL PLAINS ON SATURDAY; HOWEVER, SNOW MAY BECOME HEAVY AT TIMES LATE SATURDAY ACROSS THE MIDDLE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY AS THE SURFACE CYCLONE DEEPENS.

IN ALASKA, ANOMALOUS EAST TO NORTHEAST FLOW IS EXPECTED ACROSS MOST OF THE SOUTHERN HALF OF THE STATE THROUGH THE WEEKEND AS STORM SYSTEMS ARE FORECAST TO PASS WELL TO THE SOUTH. THE NORTHEAST FLOW IS FORECAST TO ADVECT BITTERLY COLD AIR FROM THE ARCTIC SOUTHWARD ACROSS CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN ALASKA FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, WITH DAYTIME TEMPERATURE ANOMALIES BETWEEN 20 AND 30 DEGREES BELOW AVERAGE FOR BOTH DAYS.

FOR SUNDAY DECEMBER 12 - THURSDAY DECEMBER 16: TELECONNECTION FORECASTS INDICATE A NEGATIVE NAO (WITH GFS ENSEMBLE FORECASTS SHOWING A HIGHLY NEGATIVE AO) FOR THIS PERIOD. NEGATIVE AO/NAO VALUES ARE OFTEN ASSOCIATED WITH BELOW AVERAGE TEMPERATURES FOR THE EASTERN AND SOUTHEASTERN CONUS.

RECENT MODEL GUIDANCE HAS INDICATED THAT THE STORM SYSTEM MOVING ACROSS THE CENTRAL PLAINS IS FORECAST TO STRENGTHEN RAPIDLY AND BECOME A MAJOR STORM SYSTEM THAT IS EXPECTED TO AFFECT THE MIDWEST, OHIO VALLEY AND THE EASTERN STATES SUNDAY AND MONDAY. HIGH WINDS ARE EXPECTED ACROSS THE MIDWEST AND THE OHIO VALLEY ON SUNDAY AND MONDAY ASSOCIATED WITH AN ENHANCED PRESSURE GRADIENT BETWEEN THE DEEPENING SYSTEM AND A STRONG AREA OF HIGH PRESSURE (PROJECTED TO BE AT OR ABOVE 1040 MB) CENTERED OVER THE CENTRAL PLAINS. HEAVY SNOW IS ALSO LIKELY ACROSS THE MIDWEST AND MIDDLE MISSISSIPPI VALLEYS THROUGH AT LEAST SUNDAY, AND ACCOMPANYING HIGH WINDS MAY LEAD TO REDUCED VISIBILITIES AND NEAR-BLIZZARD CONDITIONS. DUE TO MODEL DIFFERENCES ON THE TRACK OF THE SYSTEM, THE PRECIPITATION TYPE FORECAST IS LESS CERTAIN ACROSS THE MID-ATLANTIC AND THE NORTHEAST ON MONDAY. ONCE MODEL SOLUTIONS COME INTO BETTER AGREEMENT ON THE TRACK, ADDITIONAL WINTER WEATHER AND/OR HEAVY RAIN HAZARDS MAY BECOME NECESSARY FOR THE MID-ATLANTIC AND NORTHEAST.

BEHIND THIS SYSTEM, MUCH BELOW NORMAL TEMPERATURES ARE FORECAST TO PROGRESS SOUTHEASTWARD ACROSS THE TENNESSEE VALLEY AND THE GULF COAST STATES SUNDAY THROUGH TUESDAY. THERE IS SOME UNCERTAINTY ON THE SOUTHWARD EXTENT OF THE COLD AIR; AT THIS TIME, MUCH BELOW NORMAL TEMPERATURES ARE CURRENTLY EXPECTED AS FAR SOUTH AS CENTRAL FLORIDA.

FOR FRIDAY DECEMBER 17 - MONDAY DECEMBER 20: ASIDE FROM THE SEVERE DROUGHT AREAS, NO SPECIFIC HAZARDS CAN BE CONFIDENTLY PREDICTED AT THIS TIME. HOWEVER, BELOW NORMAL TEMPERATURES IN THE EASTERN AND SOUTHEASTERN STATES IS A POTENTIAL HAZARD THAT WILL NEED TO BE MONITORED. LONG-TERM DROUGHT IS EXPECTED TO PERSIST ACROSS THE EASTERN GULF REGION, PARTS OF TEXAS, SOUTHEASTERN COLORADO AND THE LOWER OHIO, TENNESSEE, AND LOWER MISSISSIPPI VALLEYS.

That's your problem You think you are God's chosen one, but you're just another slob on the bus.

The American way is to tax the rich and use the money to invest in America. Things like education and infrastructure to make us competitive with the Indonesians.

That's pretty far fetched, Pete. The Senate rules are wacky. Any single senator can stop a bill regardles of which party has a majority.
Hopefully they'll do a rules change on % January and shut that freak McConnell up. He is a total corporate hack who HATES the American worker.

Well, when you consider that he said in an interview that he also had tens of thousands of embarrassing documents on the Russians, giving up to the Brits, who may send him to the Swedes, is the safest move he could make.

I would say...errhhm...why compare US with the world's most populous Moslem country with a very spotty political history? BTW,some parts of Indonesia still live in the Stone Age (IrianJaya,aka West Papua). That would be unfair to the native population,who oppose any development and urbanization of their lands...Why should we be competitive with them??? How about Pakistan or Bangladesh? And what infrastructructure does Indonesia possess??? And how many people are rushing to go to Indonesia to get education??? Where do you obtain your information???

Paine is interesting in that his initial enthusiasm for the "democracy" and "equality" of the French Revolution (he lived there and even served in the National Convention) was dimmed somewhat when the demagogues of that insane regime and their screaming, murderous mobs threw him in prison where he might easily have been killed had things gone just a little differently.

He was a freethinker, but not an atheist. His brilliant _Age of Reason_ is chock full of his Deism, which wasn't all that different from that of the more rational Classical philosophers and their _animus mundi_.

One must sympathize with Paine -- even though his naivetï¿½ with regard to "democracy" and economics was extreme -- because, unlike almost all other writers and politicians then and now, he did not alter his ideas to fit the public mood of the moment. (He even denounced Napoleon as a "charlatan" while in Napoleonic France!) Once he realized that the Bible was bunk, he continued to proclaim the truth even though it caused many former friends to attack and abandon him. Jefferson (also a free-thinking Deist in addition to being a White separatist) was one of the very few who remained faithful.

With all good wishes,

Dave:

It's absurd to say that Mestizo Mexicans (and virtually all of the ones migrating north are Mestizos) were here before Europeans, since they're part European.

Inuits and pure-blooded Indians in the Chiapas might have some claim to have been first in their land. But they aren't the ones invading our living space, which they never inhabited anyway.

Solutrean arrowheads have been found in North America, so there's good reason to suppose that early Europeans may have predated any Amerindian presence in some parts of North America too. This would explain the European physiognomies of some tribes that the first pioneers found on their way west in colonial times.

The real issue is not where we draw the borders, but whether the cryptocracy of money will succeed in its drive to wipe out all kinship-based nations. The money-seeking and environmental-destruction-making Mestizo invaders are just hapless pawns in their game.

With every good wish,

Kevin Alfred Strom.

Its a free-for-all around 6.0Mhz. It seems as if everyone feels they need to be in the first 100kHz of the band. I hope as the upper bands open up that the radio broadcasters will take advantage of it and give a little breathing room to the lower bands. I finally heard Radio Serbia's interval signal last week. Either a station moved or the band was short and closer stations were blacked out.

Increasing temperatures are associated with a decrease in sea ice (both the amount and length of time sea ice forms).
ï¿½ Since polar bears use sea ice as a platform to prey mainly on ringed and bearded seals, changes in sea ice can lead to less access to prey and an increase in malnourished or starving bears.
ï¿½ Because of their strong association with the ice, ringed seal populations may also plummet due to loss of sea ice and result in even further reduction in polar bear food supplies.
ï¿½ In addition, with less sea ice, female polar bears may have a more difficult time reaching traditional denning areas.

I must have missed that week. I have not heard him bash anybody. Any idea what he said?

The show is repeated a bunch of times 8:35,9:35 or 10:35,11:35EST I think. Sorry I did not get back sooner. Signed into the 3905 Century Club on 40 meters. It was rough. Denmark was coming in better than US stations.

By the way, anyone wanting to listen to the show, best frequency is usually 6.000MHz except for the first broadcast when there is QRM.

Sounds like you need to bone up on some basic economics, fuckwit.
Government spending in a recession is essential to avoid a GOP Depression. Even a president as stupid as AWOL recognized this as he left Obama holding the bag.

JUAN GONZALEZ: What about this issue of the government's bailout being aimed primarily at the financial institutions rather than the homeowners who - and the defaults that are at the root of the crisis?

PAUL CRAIG ROBERTS: Yes.
Well, it suggests that the bailout is either incompetence or fraud, because the problem, according to the government, is the defaulting mortgages, so the money should be directed at refinancing the mortgages and paying off the foreclosed ones. And that would restore the value of the mortgage-backed securities that are threatening the financial institutions. If the value was restored, the crisis would be over. So there's no connection between the government's explanation of the crisis and its solution to the crisis.

Department in the Reagan administration and a former associate editor of

Indirect and delayed costs
According to a Congressional Budget Office (CBO) report published in the U.S. wars in Iraq and Afghanistan could cost taxpayers a total of $2.4 trillion dollars by 2017 when counting the huge interest costs because combat is being financed with borrowed money. The CBO estimated that of the $2.4 trillion long-term price tag for the war, about $1.9 trillion of that would be spent on Iraq, or $6,300 per U.S. citizen.[9][10]

October 2007,

Stiglitz, former chief economist of the World Bank and winner of the Nobel Prize in Economics, has stated the total costs of the Iraq War on the US economy will be three trillion dollars in a moderate scenario, and possibly more in the most recent published study, published in March 2008.

[11] Stiglitz has stated: "The figure we arrive at is more than $3 trillion. Our calculations are based on conservative assumptions

RHC has more simultaneous transmissions on at least a dozen different frequencies, especially at night. Sometimes they are the only station audible due to extremely poor propagation.

They contain about 4 mg of mercury, much less mercury than a coal burning power plant spews into the atmosphere making the extra electricity needed to heat up the air around your 19th century wizardry bulb. Instead of concentrating the mercury in an easily recycled glass envelope, your coal plants distribute mercury for a thousand square miles. This is why it is unsafe to eat fish caught wild in fresh water where you live.

Let me get this straight; Soros has been fighting fascists and commies his whole life; and you're saying he has now joined the people he has opposed since the 1940s? I find that hard to believe.

Much more likely is that he is fighting YOUR fascists and YOUR commie friends and they are trying to make him look like the bad guy to deflect attention away from them, the real bad guys.

You won't get any argument from me about Bush's spending. But, pick your poison. Was is tax cuts that caused the recession or borrow and spending? If you claim that it's tax cuts then you better be prepared to admit that the bulk of the "cost" is attributed to those under $250K. You also need to remember who held the purse strings during Bush's term. For the life of me I can't figure out why the dems didn't stop him. Well, actually I do. And, you are proving it right here for everyone to see (i.e. borrow and spend, then blame everyone except themselves).

The answer is obvious since Dems SAVED AMERICA from the very brink of Great Republican Depression II, which even a total moron like Bush realized as he exited stage far-right.

Of course. The depth of the Bush/GOP Recession has been unlike any other. When it comes to destroying economies, you fuck-ups are the best! Hint: Bone up on economics, kooker. If Obama hadn't spent most of the stimulus act on useless tax cuts that don't stimulate like direct spending, we'd be even further from the Bush Basement.

Yes, I see that. Which is why unemployment hit double digits during the last two years, but topped out at 4.5% during the previous 8. That's why the market tanked in the last two years, and is only now where it in the 90's. And why the deficit tripled in the first 5 months of Obama's presidency, and has only grown since.

You know, sitting here at 22 months since the election, you can't blame Bush for the economy. A recession only lasts a couple of months, historically, before it starts to grow. With full recovery in 16 months. The only time that's not been true, is when Roosevelt got involved in economic matters, and spent the treasury back to cobwebs. And a depression resulted that lasted more than a decade.
Sound familiar?

Economists, my friend (and you'd know this if you'd actually studied Economics, yourself) have been saying since 1931, that had Roosevelt simply sat back and let matters right themselves in 1929, that the recession would have be been severe, but over in less than a year. Instead, it dragged on and deepened to a depression because of the massive spending, accompanied by the massive tax increases.

Does any of this sound familiar?

Had Obiteme kept his mits off the economy, and stopped his hammering of the people who actually create jobs, this economic downturn would have been over in the summer and we'd be looking at a fat and happy Christmas goose.

You may wish to consider boning up on economics, yourself, there, Bubba.

Government spending does nothing for the economy. Nothing. It demands higher taxation, which does nothing for the economy. Nothing. And it's inflationary. Which does nothing for the economy.

And since you're so concerned with facts, consider this, also. Obama, himself, in the first 45 days of his presidency, said during one of his speeches, that the economic malaise was EXPECTED to last beyond our lifetimes. And that changes being made would bear fruit only for future generations. But that we, and our children would not see relief from this economy during our lifetimes. Such is the nature of sacrifice.

So before you canonize this guy and his pack of raiders, consider that all of this economic turmoil is by choice, if not design, and that it could have been over months ago.

And the party in power is the Democrat Party. With supermajorities in both houses of Congress.

And to get back to the point of this thread, if they can pass Health Care in the middle of the night, without the Republicans, in the first year of their power, they could easily have passed the extension of these tax rates in the middle of the night, without the Repubicans at any time in the last two years.

They didn't.

Because they didn't want to.

You may now babble your final insult. Have a good day. Try not to drool on the electric fence.

D. Peter Maus.

Washington, DC (Vocus) December 8, 2010

The polar bears of Western Hudson Bay went without eating this year for approximately 3 weeks longer than usual. According to the National Wildlife Federation, the combined early summer break-up of sea ice and delayed winter freeze-up foreshadows what is likely to be a fast-approaching and grim future for these polar bears.

ï¿½These bears are spending longer periods off the ice, their body mass and reproductive rates have been steadily declining, and their numbers are dropping,ï¿½ said Sterling Miller, senior biologist with the National Wildlife Federation.

For nearly 5 months, Western Hudson Bayï¿½s polar bears have had little to nothing to eat, relying on their dwindling fat stores for survival. In the 1970s, this period of fasting averaged about 120 days, after which they were able to return to the sea ice to hunt for seals, their primary food source. The fasting period for radio-marked bears this year was 140 days.

Scientists project that if sea ice continues to decline at the current pace as a result of a warming climate, years like this one will become more common. For the bears of Western Hudson Bay, which exist at the southern most range of the species, consecutive years of early ice breakup and longer fasting periods ï¿½ such as this year ï¿½ will lead to a sharp decline in bear numbers.

ï¿½I recently returned from Churchill, Manitoba where I saw with my own eyes how climate change is transforming the region for polar bears,ï¿½ said Dr. Miller. ï¿½At a time when they normally are out hunting for seals on the frozen ice during mid-November, they were all still on shore looking forlornly at open water and waiting with increasing desperation for the ice to form up.ï¿½

Unlike other populations of polar bears further north, the bears around Churchill spend part of the year on land because the ice on Hudson Bay completely melts during the summer. During this time, these polar bears are largely food deprived. The more time they must spend on land, the longer they go without eating. Once the ice forms up, the bears return to the ice to hunt and feed on seals.

In a year like 2010, however, when the ice broke up exceptionally early in the summer and formed up exceptionally late, it is likely that some bears, especially the young ones, will die even after they make it back out on the ice because their condition will be too poor to recover.

According to Dr. Andrew Derocher, Professor of Biological Sciences at the University of Alberta and a Scientific Advisor to Polar Bears International, a leader in the conservation of polar bears, the first radio-marked bear came off the ice on June 25 this year, meaning that some bears have been off for 163 days.

ï¿½The Western Hudson Bay polar bears are experiencing two difficult situations in 2010: they were forced ashore 2-3 weeks earlier than what used to be considered normal,ï¿½ said Derocher. ï¿½And theyï¿½ve also had to wait an extended period of time for the winter freeze up ï¿½ which is also several weeks later than in the past.ï¿½

Nah...CFLs have a -minimal- amount of mercury in them -- and if the CFL isn't broken, it's a non-issue.

Just for the record, the standard 4 foot fluorescent bulb has a lot more mercury than the CFL...and nobody is wetting their pants about them.

BTW, got any amalgam fillings in your teeth? They contain mercury -- and most of us are still here to talk about it.

Had a tuna fish sandwich for lunch? Tuna is -full- of mercury.

IMHO, CFLs are near the bottom of the list of our mercury worries.

Just my 2 cents...

Unsubstantiated bullshit. Maybe one day you'll ber able to think for yourself instead of waiting for what the far left tells you to believe.
And just how does a hellascious tax increase stimulate the economy dumbass?
Just how does taking more from the public create a better economy?
The question has been asked dozens of times yet the only combeack you brain dead drones come back with is "WHATTABOUTBUSH?!"
The only entity that benefits at all from tax hikes is the government.
Your repetitive argument that higher taxes result in a better life for those paying the higher taxes is borderline insanity to say the least.
You idiots' credibility on the matter got shot to hell when you fell in with extending the middle class tax cuts that you have been claiming for years do not exist.

Nah the b;ame is not One-Man's

The Greatest Blame goes-to / falls-on the 537 Members of the US Congresses over the last 30+ Years :
A 'Pox' On Both Their Houses !
A 'Pox' On Both Their Parties !

- What if BHO is just an innocent lamb?

Often it is the 'Innocent Lamb' that is the one lead to the slaughter . . .

It is happening today; this week; this month; this year during the term of Prez Obama
-ergo- BHO Gets The Blame !

The-Public can Critically 'focus' on the single object of "The-Man" {Prez-A-Duntz}
-while- 'The-Congress' is to broad; to scattered; and to fragmented for The-Public to 'focus' on.
-ergo- "The-Prez" Gets The Blame !

You may not agree with Prez Obama's Politics and Policies -but- IMHO You Got To Like The Guy {Person}
-at-least-i-do-

Funny, but I listened to Rush for years, mostly just to catch his latest rant. I NEVER heard him say anything about the United States that even remotely hinted at his love for America or that he likes living here.He was always angry, always picking through the news to disparage, insult and condemn people, and never had anything positive to say. Now, there are sound indications that he likes Costa Rican whores, but he doesn't talk about it, and we know that he likes drugs. He drove himself deaf with them. But love America? He's like a guy who berates his wife in public then insists he loves her. He doesn't. He hates America and he despises his listeners, is grossly manipulative, and thinks you're all idiots. He does love money, though, or at least what it can buy,

Two months, then fell below. Much much better than the First Great Republican Recession that Reagan caused in '81-'82 when unemployment topped 10 percent for a full 10 months. Hint: The rate STAYED ABOVE 10 percent for six months afyer the official end of the Reagan Recession, and Reagan's poll numbers were lower than Obama's. Deservedly since unlike Obama who inherited the Great Bush/GOP Recession, Reagan's was all his own.

> but topped out at 4.5% during the > previous 8.

You're not a very good liar, you know.

AWOL's unemployment rate, even before the recession he started, was at or below 4.5 percent for only 13 of the 96 months his miserable incompetent ass was in office.

Are you truly stupid? Don't you know that unemployment rates are recorded and KEPT in records so that when you lie we can easily prove it? What a FUCKWIT you are!! BWAHAAHAHAAAA!!!! TOPPED OUT AT 4.5 percent under AWOL? It was only under 4.5 percent for SEVEN of those 13 months!! YOU MUST BE STANDIN' ON YOUR FUCKIN' HEAD and looing at the chart, since the TRUTH is the opposite of what you claim, as usual.

> That's why the market tanked in the last two years, and

You REALLY need an edjumacation as your hero would say in economics. Hint: Recession=lack of spending. Encouraging cuts in federal spending during a recession is economic suicide, which of course is the natural result of GOP policies.

Hint: AWOL's decision to wage two budget-busting wars on credit cards while cutting taxes and conveying our economic future to China seems to have gone under your radar, traitor.

Hint: Obama SAVED CAPITALISM from GOP malfeasance.

> You know, sitting here at 22 months since the election, you can't

Not after the incredible damage AWOL did to it. FACT.

BWAHAHAHAHAAA!!!! Another chronologically challenged revisionist!

HINT: Hoover -- Restupidcan -- was in office when the Great Depression resulted from a decade of economy-killing GOP policies.

Hint: Roosevelt was not the president in 1929, you fuckin' nutjob.

Wow.

> that the recession would have be been severe, but over in less than

Roosevelt took office in 1933 and immediately moved to save America and capitalism from GOP disaster. Unemployment began falling adn continued until he agreed in 1937 to cut deficit spending at GOP urging and caused the mini-recession of 1938. FACT.

Here, use this chart to avoid making your stupid mistakes again:

BWAHAHAAHAHAHAAAA!!!!

> Does any of this sound familiar?

Yeah, it's the lies and nutbaggery being sold on Faux News by the America-hating crowd.

It has been a pleasure kicking your stupid kooker ass as you leave in defeat. Thank you for giving me a post filled with blatant lies (FDR president in 1929??? BWAHAHAHAHHAHAHAAA!!!) that made it soooooooo easy!

Undeniable TRUTH, kook.

You're not even worth a full reply, you're so stupid.

Ask Bush... it's his tax increase, he signed it. Obama was trying to preserve it for the middle class and the GOP was opposed.

course cannot admit to the truth!! To them, FDR projected back in time

What is SINPO ? & SIO ? (Shortwave Radio)

The SINPO Report
(Signal, Interference, Noise, Propagation, Overall) http://www.giangrandi.ch/electronics/radio/reports/reports.html

For Shortwave Radio Listeners [SWLs]
The Simpler SIO Code is recommended :
http://www.faqs.org/faqs/radio/monitoring/shortwave-faq/

1st - The SIO Code Deletes the Extremes Ratings of 1 and 5 and simply uses the 4 & 3 & 2 Ratings

2nd - The SIO Code Eliminated both the Noise and Propagation Categories.

-hence- SINPO becomes SIO
[S+I+N+P+O > > > S+I+O]

THE SIMPLER "S I O" CODE :

"S" = Signal
4 ~ Good to Great to Excellent !
3 ~ Fair to OK Average to Listenable
2 ~ Poor to Weak to Hard-to-Hear

"I" = Interference
4 ~ Slight to None
3 ~ Moderate to Some but Listenable
2 ~ Severe to A Lot to Bad to Hard-to-Hear

"O" = Overall

Ecuador offered asylum to Julian Assange the other day . That is weird. It is a real Banana Republic. And they stopped printing their national currency lately. US money is more reliable.

- Walmart is causing the Trade Deficit with PRC.

No the Customers buying Chinese Goods at Wal*Mart Stores are contributing to the Trade Deficit with the PRC
-but- Their Are Many Other Factors and some of them are Major Factors that actually Created the Conditions that Un-Taxed Chinese Goods sell much cheaper that Fully-Taxed USA Make Goods.

The USA is 'Net' Importer -aka- A Consumer Nation Society :
-and- In a Consumer Society where Imported Goods are equaly or greater than Domestic Goods

#1 - A National Sales Tax is better than an Income Tax

#2 - The National Sales Tax : Taxes both Imported and Domestic Goods Equally. {Price Fairness}

#3 - An Income Tax adds a Hidden Tax to the Price of Each and Every Domestic Good; that the Imported Good Does NOT Pay and makes the Imported Good lower cost.

NOTE #1 is a National Sales Tax for Retail One-Time Point-of-Retail-Sale -not- A "VAT" Value-Added-Tax that Taxes and Taxes each and every transaction and adds to the Cost of a Good many times over so that it is as bad or badder than an Income Tax for inflating the Price of a Good {Product}.

Political Rant - Prez Obama supports a "VAT"
-so- Just Say NO to Prez Obama and NO to a "VAT"

- I don't shop at Walmart.

Never the less many/many/most do.

- One can make toilet paper out of old newspapers
- or phonebooks. Saves trees.

So NewsPapers are NOT originally make from Trees . . .

So PhoneBooks are NOT originally make from Trees . . .

D'Oh! My "Hot' Light-Bulb Just Went On !

Besides CFL Bulbs Saving Electricity
-example- 60 Watts of Electricity use by a Incandescent Bulb
-equals- 15 Watts of Electricity use by a CFL Bulb
-that's-a- 75% Reduction in Electricity

CFL Bulbs Reduce The Heat Index
-example- 60 Watts of Heat from a Incandescent Bulb
-equals- 15 Watts of Heat from a CFL Bulb
-that's-a- 75% Reduction in Heat {Feel the Chill}

LIGHTING Application 334M Americans each with about 3 Light Bulbs : That's One Billion Light Bulbs
-and- the Transition from Incandescent Light Bulbs to CFL Bulbs would be like turning-off 750M of the old Incandescent Light Bulbs.
-or- Un-Plugging three out of the four [75%] of the Light Bulbs being used by Americans.

HEATING Application 334M Americans each with about 3 Light Bulbs : That's One Billion Light Bulbs
-and- the Transition from Incandescent Light Bulbs to CFL Bulbs would be like turning-off 750M of the old 60 Watt Incandescent Light Bulbs.
-that's- 45 Billion Watts of Heat : Which is about 45 Million Electric Room {Space} Heaters @ 1KW
-or- Un-Plugging 45 Million Electric Room {Space} Heaters in American.

=SO= CFL Light Bulbs Provide and Produce Two Valuable Ecological and Environmental Benefits :
#1 - 75% Reduction in National Electrical Use
#2 - 75% Reduction in National Heat Index

CFL's ?may? Help to Reduce the National Heat Index of the USA and Prevent Global Warming
-but-may-also- Bring On Global Cooling {Mini-Ice-Age}

It says on the plastic covering on my six pack (six rolls to a pack) rolls of toilet pamer, Made in U.S.A.

When I was in boot camp, a DI (Drill Instructor) explained to us lean to wipe our arses.You tear off a tiny piece of the middle of the paper

Pizza Chemtrails? WEIRD.

An Italian family I know has a Grandmother living with them. She says the Pizza was basically a means of using stuff left over after after cooking and baking. The crust was a bit of dough not large enough for a loaf and the toppings were all remnants of ingredients for other dishes.

I'm led to believe that, like Chop Suey, Pizza is a North American dish.

SB PROP @ ARL $ARLP049
ARLP049 Propagation de K7RA

ZCZC AP49
QST de W1AW
Propagation Forecast Bulletin 49 ARLP049
>From Tad Cook, K7RA
Seattle, WA December 10, 2010
To all radio amateurs

ARLP049 Propagation de K7RA

Average daily sunspot numbers for the week were up over nine points, to 35, and average solar flux rose over six points to 87.3. These differences compare the dates December 2-8 with the previous seven days. Average planetary A index declined 2.5 points to 2.1, while average mid-latitude A index dropped 1.1 points to 1.6. These are nice numbers, with higher sunspot numbers accompanied by lower geomagnetic indices.

Predicted solar flux for the near term is right near or slightly above the average for the past week, at 87, 87, 88, 88, and 88 for December 10-14. Predicted planetary A index for December 10-14 is 8, 10, 10, 8 and 5. Planetary A index is expected to remain around 5 from December 15-24.

Geophysical Institute Prague has a slightly different prediction for the next seven days. They predict unsettled conditions for December 10-11, quiet to unsettled December 12, unsettled December 13, quiet December 14 and quiet to unsettled December 15-16.

Note the period of somewhat unsettled geomagnetic activity centers around this weekend, the dates for the ARRL 10 Meter Contest, December 11-12. But only a mild increase in geomagnetic activity is expected. The Geminid meteor shower peaks December 13-14, and could provide some ionized trails enhancing 10 meter propagation.

This year's 10 meter contest is the first time that Mexican states will be counted as multipliers along with U.S. states and Canadian provinces, as well as DXCC countries. You can see a map of the 32 Mexican states in PDF format at http://www.dxxe.org/concurso/xe-mults.pdf. Complete contest rules are at http://www.arrl.org/10-meter.

Ten meters offers many opportunities for working Mexico from other North American locations this weekend. For instance, Distrito

Federal, which includes Mexico City, should be workable from Salt Lake City from 1730-1900z, and possibly from 1700-2100z. The path from the San Francisco Bay Area looks even better, with the possibility of strong signals from 1700-2130z. From the Chicago area, a likely opening is 1700-1830z, possibly open as early as 1630z and as late as 2000z. From Ohio the path looks good 1630-1930, extending possibly 30 minutes early and an hour later. From Winnipeg, Manitoba (VE4) the possibilities look excellent 1730-1900z, very good 1630-2030, and possibly extending to 1600-2100z.

If you want to use the predicted smoothed sunspot number with a propagation prediction program for this month or next, you can find the latest predicted values in the table on page 11 in issue PRF-1840 at http://www.swpc.noaa.gov/weekly. The values are updated there about every 4-5 weeks.

You can also do a peek into the future, as this table shows a predicted smoothed sunspot number for December 2010 of 38, 74 in December 2011, and 89 in December 2012. You can download W6ELprop at http://www.qsl.net/w6elprop and run several instances of the program at once, and flip back and forth, comparing projections for 2010 with 2011 and 2012. The 10 meter possibilities expand dramatically during periods of higher solar activity.

During the weekend the STEREO craft will surpass 97.95% coverage of the Sun. You can calculate an approximation of the coverage by looking at http://stereo-ssc.nascom.nasa.gov/where.shtml and noting the number at the bottom, "Separation angle A with B." When I look at this early Friday morning, the number is 172.234, which corresponds to about 97.84% coverage. Subtract the separation angle from 180, then divide by 360, subtract the result from 1 and multiply times 100. Or skip the subtraction from 1 to determine the percent gap in the coverage.

To calculate the coverage at some time in the future, use the "STEREO Orbit Tool" at http://stereo-ssc.nascom.nasa.gov/where. Just use any date and time you want to test, and use the same method described above. At some point in early 2011 after STEREO reaches 100% coverage the gap will begin to grow again, but this time on the earth-facing side of the Sun. The image will be filled in with data from the Solar Dynamics Observatory (SDO), which has a web page at http://www.nasa.gov/mission_pages/sdo/main. In fact, the current STEREO image (see http://stereo.gsfc.nasa.gov) already uses SDO data for the Earth-facing side of our Sun, even though that may seem redundant. But this probably assures us that the transition to 100% coverage will be seamless.

Randy Crews, W7TJ of Spokane, Washington lives 231 miles almost directly east of my home in Seattle. He's at the eastern end of Washington state, 15 miles from the Idaho border. Although his latitude is slightly lower than mine, the exact beam heading is slightly north of east at 89.3 degrees, instead of some fractional amount south. Why is this? Because the shortest path is via the great-circle route, and at 231 miles it is far enough to put the path leaving my place just slightly north of east, even though he is at 47.6017 degrees north latitude and I am at 47.6693 degrees north latitude.

Randy has looked over his old station logs recently, and has observations about the progress of Solar Cycle 24.

"Most don't realize how low we went in the Cycle 23/24 low: Previous cycles began with a Sunspot Number of 10-12. This cycle began with a Sunspot Number of about 1.5!

"Usually the cycle bottoms and picks right up within 12-13 Months from the low. Not the case with Cycle 24.

"This cycle has yet to see the Solar Flux above 100. By comparison, Cycle 22's official bottom was September of 1986, and as early as April of 1987, Solar Flux Values were above 100 on many days (about 6 months later).

"With Cycle 24 (if you measure from the low of the lows (July/August of 2008) we are past the 2 year point, measuring from October of 2009 (when the number of Cycle 24 spots exceeded the old number of Cycle 23 spots) we are out over a year.

"I am grateful for what we have thus far. The High Bands are open (17 meters consistently) which is a nice improvement and the higher bands from time to time also which is a huge step from the long dry spell in 2008.

"However, the bands have not really stepped into high gear. Flux values consistently above 100 (years 2004/2005) would really move us into the fast lane."

Thanks, Randy!

There is a bakery north of Detroit called Vito's that sells Sicilian pizza called Sfinciuni. It has carmelized onions and romano cheese on it. Awesome when you can get it right out of the oven.

On February 11 2011 at 8 AM local time all medium wave stations carrying KNR (Radio Greenland) - Upernavik (810 kHz), Uummannaq (900 kHz), Qeqertarsuaq (650 kHz), Nuuk (570 kHz) og Simiutaq (720 kHz) - will be switched off for good, and the transmitters will be dismantled. On the same day the relays of KNR newscasts twice daily via Tasiilaq 3815 kHz will also cease.

The decision has been taken by the Ministry of Housing, Infrastructure and Transport in the Government of Greenland.

After February 11 2011 KNR will only be available via Low Power FM-radio in inhabited areas of Greenland. Thus no coverage of the waste country outside the towns and villages - and KNR will no longer be available for the fishermen at sea nor the Inuit population in Canada.

The decision was made because the transmitters were getting old and too costly to maintain. Besides - very few people are using the MW transmissions.

Weather forecasts will be available for fishermen and others via VHF coastal radio.

At a point it was considered replacing the aging MW transmitters with one or two new SW AM-transmitters near Nuuk, but it was estimated that it would cost 4 million DKK (535.000 euro) to establish such a new SW operation. It was also felt that few listeners would invest in a SW receiver and the quality would be 'doubtful' - suffering from 'atmospheric phenomena'. So these plans were given up.

But they do invest in "VHF coastal radio". .?

That's not the proposal. They want to bring back "ascertainment" as a condition of license renewal, which was SOP until fairly recently.

Reality rears its ugly head. AM radio doesn't work very well near the poles anyway. I'm sure they have access to satellite.

Ships are required to maintain VHF watch 24/7, as are coastal rescue

Just another example of buffoon politicians making the wrong decisions. I am sure the Danish government is as scummy as the rest of them and will not touch their private golf courses and leaders' private retreats. Meanwhile the "regular folk" will go without something like basic radio and the transmitters must be shut down and dismantled. What a crock of shit. Is THAT what they tell the people of Greenland? Do the thinking people of Greenland really BUY that?

No, the truth is that, like too many places the politicians are running over the people. They'd rather divert the money from serving to people to serving themselves. The leaders like their perks.

What assholes.

But then again it is little different than what has happened here. They've turned local radio into a joke where you no longer can get timely weather information or find out why the main street is blocked with fire trucks. The automated recording of an announcer keeps telling me I am listening to "home town radio" but it is nothing more than satellite automation of the same 50 mundane musical selections cycled over and over. I listened to 40 minutes of dead air on a 5 KW major market station six months ago. They're not even listening AT THE STATION!

Meanwhile, in this remote area that we live our leaders forced that damned digital TV down our throats (which has caused many other countries to point to the US and laugh). Where we once received 6 TV channels, we now can get 1 and very occasionally 2 if we don't mind all the pixels and frozen audio. Thank you, digital boneheads. We get shit for TV reception on one damned channel now but, I guess, we get it in "high def." What stupidity.

So it looks like the Greenlanders are victims to the same oafish morons running their country as ours.

Kalaallit Nunaata Radio
(The Greenlandic Broadcasting Corporation)
http://knr.gl/index.php?id=13

Greenland has less that 100 Human 'Settlements' and with 100 Watt FM Transmitters they can cover each of them {all}; except for about 10 larger 'Settlements' which would require 1~5 KW FM Transmitters t for full coverage of their larger areas.

For Greenland and may Countries FM Radio is the answer to their Over-the-Air 'Local' Broadcast Radio Future.

One simple fact is that FM Radio Transmitter Towers for Small 'Local' Area Coverage are smaller and lower; cheaper and easier to build; lower maintenance; and weather better than Taller and Larger AM/MW Radio Transmitter Towers.

For World Wide News and Information {Global Contact} a single Satellite {Dish} Internet Land Station that is Co-Located at the FM Radio Transmitter Towers with 'Local' WiFi a/o Cable would bring "The World" to most of the Homes in a 'Settlement'.
-also- Co-Locate the Cellphone Transmitters on the same FM Radio Transmitter Towers.

Finally for Marketing "Greenland" to the World an Internet 24/7 WebSite would reach more people around the World more consistently and at a lower cost than Shortwave Radio.

While this News is not good for World Wide AM/MW DXers and Shortwave Radio Listeners : It is a good practical solution for the Radio Listeners of Greenland.

It seems that most (all?) posts regarding pirate reception show a frequency of 69XX. Is this a coincidence, or is it due to other factors, i.e., propagation, time of day, etc.?

It's a lot worse than you think. Let's look at a few other variations of the child molesting pervert class:

Following his well established pattern, RHFink will now accuse me of Antisemitism. In his eyes, child molestation by the Rabbi is just fine.
The real crime, in his opinion, is someone actually mentioning it.

If the answer is NO, why are there Jews only highways in Palestine? The Israeli government taxes the original inhabitants of the land, then gives them no benefits. They kill them, instead.

I suppose some of the reasons are:

1. Easy or no modifications needed to convert 40 meter amateur gear;

2. Relatively small and low wire antennas will give continent-wide and greater reception (67 feet of wire 30 feet up will do what an antenna more than twice as long and twice as high would do on 90 meters);

3. And often there are no skip zones on those frequencies, meaning that, unlike higher frequencies, closer cities and states -- say, within 150 miles -- can still receive the transmissions.

Also, a tradition has developed in the last few years -- so that's where the listeners are tuning.

With every good wish,

Kevin, WB4AIO.

Liberty Net: December 4, 2010

http://3950.net/2010/12/liberty-net-december-4-2010/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

A NEW DIGITAL SIGNAL on 75 meters, probably from Europe, along with very long propagation, offered a lot of challenges to Liberty Net operations this week, but the participants and N2IRJï¿½s low-noise diversity receiving setup were up to the battle. Not only were there new check-ins aplenty, but statistics show that hundreds of people are checking out this siteï¿½s Liberty Net mp3 files every day.

Here are just a few of the many topics discussed and debated on the Liberty Net this week:

ï¿½ While the media and the politicians are trying to get us all excited about some minor tweaks to the illegal income tax system, the regime is planning to impose a huge inheritance tax that will make hundreds of thousands of families lose their homes, their businesses, and their futures. (33 minutes)

ï¿½ Thereï¿½s a proposed constitutional amendment that would require all ï¿½lawmakersï¿½ to live strictly under the systems ï¿½ retirement, health care, et cetera ï¿½ that they force the rest of us to endure, with no special pension deals or health programs for legislators. (1 hour 24 minutes)

ï¿½ The native European people of Switzerland have passed a referendum that requires immediate deportation ï¿½ by aircraft ï¿½ of illegal Third World migrants. America, which has 1.5 million incarcerated illegals, would greatly benefit from such a program, but unfortunately it is ï¿½politically incorrectï¿½ here to oppose the genocide of White people by what the UN openly calls ï¿½replacement migration.ï¿½ (1 hour 35 minutes)

ï¿½ One way to return reason and peace to the huge insane asylum between Canada and Mexico would be to end the ï¿½drug warï¿½ by recognizing that mere possession of drugs ï¿½ or any other substance ï¿½ cannot possibly be a crime. (3 hours 10 minutes)

ï¿½ Chinaï¿½s state investment managers, who are known for their realism and intelligence, have increased their purchases of gold by a factor of five in the last year. (3 hours 51 minutes)

ï¿½ Unless you have fully secured your privacy or escaped totally from the regime in Washington, that regime will try to seize your gold through inflation. It works this way: Washington inflates the money supply, which raises the dollar price of your gold even though all the gold has really done is _retained_ its value ï¿½ _not_ gained in value. But when you sell the gold, Washington expects you to pay a huge ï¿½capital gainsï¿½ tax on this fictitious ï¿½profit.ï¿½ (3 hours 57 minutes)

ï¿½ As the new Depression worsens, barter and gardening will become larger and larger parts of the economy. The good thing about that is that such activities are by their nature private and free from state control. But you can expect the regime to make some underhanded efforts to control them. (4 hours 5 minutes)

ï¿½ Is ï¿½Net Neutralityï¿½ going to be used as an excuse for censorship of the Internet ï¿½ just as the misnamed ï¿½Fairness Doctrineï¿½ was used to control broadcasters ï¿½ and discourage free speech on controversial matters? (4 hours 10 minutes)

ï¿½ One good thing about Wikileaks is that it provides a forum for whistleblowers who have shown us where billions of Obamaï¿½s bailout dollars went ï¿½ and, surprise surprise, much of it went to banks and major government contractors. (4 hours 12 minutes)

ï¿½ In Israel, two ambulances are dispatched if a Palestinian man or woman has an emergency: one to attend to the patient, and the other to harvest his organs for profit in case that becomes possible. Now a similar procedure is being implemented in New York City. (4 hours 20 minutes)

Thanks to Marty, N2IRJ, youï¿½re able to listen to these Liberty Net recordings at home, at work, in your car, or while hiking or jogging with your portable mp3 player. And remember N2SAGï¿½s live feed during Net times that lets you hear the Liberty Net via multiple receivers ï¿½ and chat too.

Check out amateur radioï¿½s longest-running discussion net every Saturday night ï¿½ usually within 20 kHz of 3950 kHz SSB (in recent weeks above 3950; but we have to be flexible to evade jammers and intruders), starting at 10PM Eastern Time.

Kudos and thanks go to Vic, W1WCR, for his decades of hard work for free speech and amateur radio!

Once upon a time you could bend a coil and get a 40 meter ham transmitter to load up just below the 40 meter band.

One other thing is that it is a relatively unused part of the frequency spectrum. Other than a couple of AM stations on 6890 and 6915kHz and an occasional utility broadcast on 6955kHZ the span is almost unused. Although I am hearing more fisihng boat and other pirates using these frequencies as well (usually LSB - little or no music - just voice communication)

In Europe the pirate band seems to be from 5800-6400kHz and operating hours early in the morning - 0700-1100UTC. Central frequency around 6300kHz. Not sure why that is - maybe its pirate tradition handed down from Marconi or something.

PS. Right now a pirate is on 6930AM - playing blues @2200UTC and just heard "thinking man radio" at 6925.07 USB playing rock @2217UTC.

NYC Public School Pedophiles

"the rate of substantiated sexual abuse of minors committed by New York City public school workers is approximately three times the rate found among Catholic priests nationwide.
Importantly, two-thirds of the New York City school employees who molest kids are teachers.

http://www.academia.org/nyc-public-school-pedophiles/

‘the physical abuse of students in schools is likely more than 100 times the abuse of priests.’

‘The problem in education dwarfs the Catholic Church problem.’

http://www.academia.org/public-school-pedophiles-revisited/

A seven month investigation by the Associated Press found that between 2001 and 2005, more than 2,500 educators were disciplined for sexual misconduct. This however does not tell the full story.

http://www.newsvine.com/_news/2007/10/20/1037899-ap-sexual-misconduct-plagues-us-schools

Teacher, Robert Sperlik Jr., pleaded guilty last year to sexual abuse and kidnapping of more than 20 girls, some as young as 9. Among other things, he told prosecutors that he put rags in the girls' mouths, taped them shut and also bound their hands and feet with duct tape and rope for his own sexual stimulation. According to court documents, he rubbed their inner thighs and shoulders and forced them to sit, while bound, in closets and school storage rooms. At least one girl told prosecutors that when Sperlik stood behind her, she could feel his erect penis on her back.

He pretended it was a game, gave the girls candy and told them not to tell.

And for a long time, none of them did.

It's a silent epidemic is what it is," the girl's father says. "People are protecting people who aren't worth protecting. I hope our daughters will have that instilled in them, too — that you report what

The future of shortwave DXing points away from commercial broadcast stations and has for a long time now. I don't find this depressing, as I always preferred to DX other kinds of signals, but I know it is depressing for some.

It's two pairs of contacts that close when you put the receiver into the 'standby' position. They're used when you interface the receiver with a transmitter.
